Aggies Leave for Little Rock at Midnight

Team to Have Light Workout Before Saturday

The Texas Aggies leave Aggie-land at midnight tonight for Little Rock, Arkansas, where they meet the Arkansas Razorbacks Saturday in their fourth "foreign" game of the year. The cadets have five wins against no defeats and will be trying for their third conference victory. Upon their arrival in Little Rock at noon Friday, the Aggies will go into a final workout on the Little Rock High School field.

Few Injuries

Four Aggies are on the injured list: Tom Pickett is suffering from a hurt knee and cracked ribs while Alabama Smith, Les Richardson and Lincoln Roman are down with bruised knees. Pickett is not likely to see service against Arkansas as Coach Norton wishes to allow him to fully recover before putting him back on the firing line. Martin Ruby is still bothered with a fractured hand but the protection of the plaster cast will allow him to deal lots of misery to the Razorbacks.

The scrimmage sessions have been featuring punt and kick-off returns. Derace Moser, Leo Daniels, and Bob Williams have been shining with some brilliant run-backs. The cadet line has been doing nice work in scrimmage and should be up to the usual high par it has shown so far this season. Running plays have been stressed in an effort to bring the Aggie ground game parallel to the outstanding passing offensive.

The Razorbacks, with their bean-pole ends, will more than likely open up with a threatening passing attack and the Aggies have been working on a pass defense designed to stop the Arkansas aerials. With their three crack-jack backs in the pink of condition, the Porker ground play is not being taken too lightly.

Norton Cautions Corps

Coach Homer Norton reports that the usual squad of about 35 men will make the Arkansas trip. He says that aside from the four men on the injured list the Aggie squad is in fine condition. Norton issued a warning against the corps and the team becoming too optimistic; stating that five games, all of them against tough teams, are still to be played—ONE AT A TIME.

INTRAMURALS

By DUB OXFORD

Attention class A and class B cross country runners! To compete in the race you must have had five preliminary workouts before the meet. If you want to enter a team in the race you must have your men down on or before Friday of this week. So, come on all you fellows who want to join the ranks of the "thinly-clads", see Colonel Anderson and sign up for the big race.

Class A football starts Monday and class B football is in the play off stage. With class A football beginning Monday, the rules of the sport will be run in a coming issue so that all participating may familiarize themselves with the new rulings.

D Engineers won with ease their class B touch football game Wednesday. Rice of the Engineers led his team in the winning of the victory and in the words of the referee, Bob Yerkes, "Of all the games I've refereed this year, this is the best one I have seen." Good work, Engineers.

Interest in Bowling Is Declining at A & M

Bowling, heretofore one of Aggie-land's favorite sports, has shown a decided decline in popularity this semester. R. D. Hill, manager of the Y. M. C. A. alleys, states that the only reason he can determine for the decreased attendance is the fact that the students this year are spending more time studying.

Women bowlers on the local alleys haven't slowed down, however, but are increasing in number each week. At all hours of the day women can be seen occupying at least one of the Y alleys.

The idea of intramural bowling was brought up last year, but because of the scarcity of alleys on the campus this idea was given up altogether. Building ten new alleys in the Assembly Hall was also discussed by the Y. M. C. A., but this idea too has been cast aside—at least temporarily.

Hill relates that, strangely enough, the biggest week of bowling on the A. & M. campus is the week of mid-term examinations in January. During this week the alleys are always full, from opening in the morning till closing time at 10 p. m.

Williamson Picks Clemson, Penn State to Win Friday

By Paul B. Williamson

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 30

Top game among the Friday contests remains the Penn State-N.Y.U. clash at New York. This game will decide between these two neck and neck teams. Another fray which should prove to be interesting is the Clemson-George Washington battle. The Clemson lads should have little trouble here, but one can never tell.

Of all the games this week—big and small—this writer would like to be present to see West Texas State top Hardin Simmons. There are two real teams among the so-called "little" schools.

The predictions for games of today and Friday are listed below with the probable winners in Capitals.

You've got to be good for the Signal Corps

That goes for both men and equipment—for dependable communications may make the difference between victory and defeat.

Gathering information and delivering orders in a flash—that's the job of the field telephone. Compact and rugged, these telephones by the thousand—and many other special types of communication apparatus—are being produced for the armed forces by Western Electric.

Our 60 years' experience as manufacturer, purchaser, and distributor for the Bell System fits us to handle all this special work and—at the same time—to step up our production of Bell Telephone apparatus to speed the whole defense program.

Grandstand Heroes!

All the admiring glances in the stands are not directed toward the field—there's many an eye directed toward the smart new Griffon top coats that we've been selling!

New are the unusual blends of brown and blue that are the season's style hit! New is the shortness of the coat which makes last year's styles look antique!

Drop in and take a look. It's easy to pick a winner—and there are no losers!
