Geologists Discover Ancient Sea Reptiles

A glimpse into that dim past of 100,000,000 years ago when oceans engulfed what now are the Rocky mountains was afforded as geologists unearthed remains of a giant sea serpent near here.

The ancient serpents measured from 40 to 50 feet, and had broad turtle-like bodies, long necks and elongated flippers.

The fin of one of the serpents—known as the plesiosaurs—already has been uncovered, and the neck is in process of being removed. The diggings are expected to reveal the head of the plesiosaur, as well as other bone structures.

The new find, made by Ed Gregory, a junior forestry student at Colorado State College will add much to the historical record of the North American continent, in the opinion of Major Roy Coffin, professor of geology at Colorado State College.

and it was the National Championship team of 1939 that did the trick then. The full time record of the two teams favors Arkansas, the present score is Arkansas 7, A. & M. 6, and 1 tie game.

From all indications the Aggies will have a job on their hands with the Razorbacks if they want to continue undefeated. For the first time this year the Arkansas team will be at full strength and will have all their boys waiting to go, while the Aggies are probably at their weakest. Four Farmers are on the injured list. Tom Pickett is suffering from a hurt knee while Alabama Smith, Les Richardson, and Lincoln Roman are down with bruised knees. Pickett will probably not see any service in the game, and Bama Smith was left behind. Roman will be replaced by Skarke, who returns to action after being out with a bad knee. Martin Ruby, the Aggie candidate for All-Conference tackle, is still bothered with a broken hand, but the protection of the plaster cast will allow him to see service.

'Make Haste Slowly'-Health Officer Warns-Defense Work Causes Strains

"For the last twenty years or more speed has been one of the dominant factors in American life. Today, because of the tremendous defense needs, assembly-line technique, whenever possible, has been injected into all activities connected with the emergency. Thus, more than ever, speed is being emphasized in the nation's life. Plainly, the need of conserving health and strength in the face of present demands is greater than ever before. It follows that 'to make haste slowly' in the art of living, at this time not only is basic good sense but patriotic also. It does not help vitality or health to apply a sixty-mile-an-hour pace to essentials. Nevertheless, evidences of this type of existence are quite apparent. One of the numerous proofs of this fact is the habit many persons have of more or less bolting their food," states Doctor Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer.

"In short, everyone should realize that whether with respect to the young or the adult, speedy eating with its inevitable accompaniment of insufficient mastication is a practice which can give rise to conditions that in varying degrees deprive one of maximum health, and sometimes is directly responsible for even greater penalties. The practice, therefore, should be discontinued," concludes Doctor Cox.

The "Y" opened a swimming pool in 1916, and in the dedication ceremonies christened it with a bottle of perfume.
