to stand in the way of A. & M. and the Rose Bowl. It was beyond his power, however, to cancel the game.

"Tacoma has been red hot for the game since A. & M. won the Southwest Conference title, and ever since the Washington State team became the best on the Pacific coast. Never had an inter-sectional game in the state of Washington created as much interest as this one. That made it far more difficult to try to cancel the game. . . . After working on the matter for many hours, the task was found to be impossible."

Bruce Lyster, sports editor of the Houston Post, brought forth the same report as Jinx Tucker in the former's daily column, "Sports of the Day," in Tuesday's Post. Lyster said, in reference to post-season games, "December 6 date with Washington State at Tacoma, Washington, cost the Texas Aggies a chance to face Oregon State in the Rose Bowl New Year's Day."

"Texas A. & M. was in the middle of the Rose Bowl picture this year, but there was a little contract for a tilt with W. S. at Tacoma and efforts to cancel out of the contest failed."

"When that happened the Aggies faded from the Pasadena setup. . . . Washington State defeated the Rose Bowl host team and will be meeting the club Oregon State tried to get for the Pasadena attraction."

"So Saturday afternoon, in far-away Washington, I'll be watching the "Little Rose Bowl" game of 1941."

ON KYLE FIELD

Henderson hit the charmed circle on the Collegiate Football News' eleven. . . . Jack Crain, Pete Layden, and Malcolm Kutner are the Texas' contributions to several All-America teams. . . . If this corner had to take one man from this conference for the All-American team, Martin Ruby of the Aggies would certainly and unhesitatingly be the choice. . . . And don't forget Darrell Palmer of T. C. U., either.

Aggies Water Polo Team To Play Texas U Team in Gregory Pool

The Texas Aggie Water Polo team will meet the Texas university Longhorn water polo team in Austin Friday night for the second time this year. The Aggies met the Longhorns on Aggie ground and beat them 18-1. Water polo team captain Ernie Conway says that the squad is ready and will attempt to make the score even greater.

The game will be played in Gregory Gym pool and scoring for the Aggies will be led by Happy McKee, who is high score man for the water polo squad so far.

Coach Adamson has indicated that he will take the regular squad which includes such stellar players as Fred Renaud, Bob Taylor, Bob Cowling and Bob Lapham. Game time is 8 o'clock.

—BACKWASH—

"Over in Havana, Cuba, there is a statue in one of the many plazas, and this particular piece of statuary is devoted to the memory of a man who killed himself. He set as the objective of his life the amassing of a fortune of twenty-five millions of dollars. The first twenty he accumulated in due time but further than that he could not go. In great mental distress and embarrassment because he could gain a fortune of only twenty million dollars instead of the coveted twenty-five, he hanged himself.

"Our loss last Thursday, bringing hurt as it did to all of us, is not nearly so important as our reaction to that disappointment. Let us not get our viewpoint warped—as for me, I am tremendously proud of you boys on the club for the nineteen fine victories you won, giving us a new high in continuous victories for this conference and area. You did a fine job. The college, cadets, officers, faculty, and supporters generally are proud of you and are indebted to you for two successive seasons of most exceptional football. That pride and that gratitude surpasses by great extremes our disappointment of last Thursday's loss."

There are no regrets. After all, we've been on top of the conference heap for three successive seasons, losing only two games during that time. . . . And it's only 51 weeks to Thanksgiving Day, 1942.

strong. The click of the ball may be heard constantly which signifies that the fellows are putting in a lot of practice on the sport. Class B Swimming is now in the quarter-finals, and in the game the other night, H Coast outclassed F Field to win 38-10. The Coast boys simply "walked" away with the meet.

Intramural Heroics and Hysterics
In the class A basketball game between I Replacement Center and A Infantry, which I RC won 23-7, K. Brendle of A Infantry was cautioned that he already had three fouls against him. "Coach" Bert Hill then instructed him to make his "fourth" a good one. Hey, "coach," that's not an attitude to take.

and it was they who said an emphatic "no" to any fight ideas. Surely, by their actions, the Aggies set a standard for all schools in the conference. No matter how much rivalry exists between two student bodies the place to settle disputes is on the athletic field, not in the stands or on the campus.

Musical Meanderings

By Murray Evans

Jack Teagarden does himself proud in all the musical sequences of "The Birth Of The Blues." As a matter of fact he is the only one in the cast who looks natural playing a horn. Although Bing Crosby and Brien Donlevy surpass him infinitely in acting ability, still they look about as much at home playing the clarinet and trumpet as Paderewski would swinging the blues. Teagarden builds his library at the rate of four tunes a week. His arranger is a young Negro, Phil Moore, who holds a master's degree in music and is therefore no duffer when it comes to turning out sparkling arrangements for his now boss' up-and-coming band.

Tommy Tucker's smooth orchestra started something when it recorder "I Don't Want To Set The World On Fire," with winsome Amy Arnell doing the vocal. Sales for this particular record are now knocking at the door of half a million. Nickelodeon operators, not being able to secure the record fast enough to replace worn-out ones from so much playing, just turned the record over and used "This Love Of Mine" on the reverse side. And so now this number promises fair to be Tucker's next smash hit.

The people of North Carolina provided for a state system of higher learning in their first constitution of 1776.
