able, and Mitchell plots the murder of Garfield. Eventually peace settles once more on Sheephead Bay.

This picture should provide a small amount of thought from each of us. It was adapted for the screen from Irwin Shaw's play, "The Gentle People." It has been well done and represents the better side of Hollywoodiana.

A brilliant splash of tropical color is the eye-filler in the thin story about Alice Faye and John Payne in "WEEK-END IN HAVANA" at the Campus tomorrow and Monday. In addition, Carmen Miranda and Cesar Romero keep things sizzling with those famous song-and-dance numbers.

The lavish use of the technicolor and Cuban music helps to overcome greatly the lack of weight in the plot, which is practically nonexistent. On the whole, the show should prove most entertaining with Carmen to liven up the scene continually.

the fastest start-off in the conference, running hard and low all the way, and picking up most of the Mustang yardage. He was the nearest to a one-man team in the conference, and when he caught the flu in the final game with Rice, and could not play, S. M. U. was defeated.

Many Other Backs

There are many more backs that deserve a lot of praise for their excellent work this year. For example, Texas' Vernon Martin was the best blocking back in the conference, but just did not have enough to beat the above quartet. Marshall Spivey of the Aggies was a great pass defense man, Jack Wilson was the big star of the Baylor Bears, Brumley of Rice too was great, and so on down the line. But the quartet of backs, Moser, Crain, Layden, and Johnston, just can't be beaten.

Now for those unheralded heroes of the gridiron—the linemen. Leading the all-conference forward wall are such stalwarts as Jim Sterling and Mal Kutner at ends, Martin Ruby and Darrell Palmer at tackles, Bill Sibley at center, and Chal Daniel and Art Goforth at guards.

The above seven linemen could play on any first team in the country. The combination of blocking and tackling is present all around. There will be some argument as to the choice of some of the linemen, but we are sure nobody could find any better men than Martin Ruby and Darrell Palmer at tackles and Bill Sibley, the Aggies' dynamic center. Ruby in our point of view is the best tackle in the whole nation, having every valuable trait any coach would want.

He has been unanimously picked on every all-opponent team, proving once and for all that he is the best tackle in the nation. Darrell Palmer of T. C. U. is close on his heels, as he has been the spark-plug of the Frog forward wall all year. His best performance was in the Texas game which T.C.U. won, 14-7.

Sibley is one of the best defensive centers in the history of the conference, ranking alongside such greats as Ki Aldrich, Charlie DeWare, and Darrell Lester. His offensive work has been his main weakness but he has shown improvement each week. Mark him down for All-America next year.

Jim Sterling and Mal Kutner ARE the best ends in the conference. Sterling is one of the best blocking wingmen in the Southwest, while Kutner can do everything more than creditably. Chal Daniel and Art Goforth at guards make up a pair that can't be beaten at blocking or tackling.

crosswires of a directorscope the destruction of gunnery targets at sea, miles away. But for the treachery of our enemy, those guns might have made history.

Casualty lists have not been published, but when The Star Spangled Banner is played, this writer is deeply moved by a scene out of the past . . . not long ago, but it seems a century. The Marine Color Guard has been piped aft for evening colors . . . as "attention" is sounded and the soft notes of the National Anthem drift over Pearl Harbor, I can see the faces of shipmates facing "O! Glory" in salute—men with whom I served for four years—Wimmer Shelden, Tumlinson, O'Neal, Taylor, Coburn, Thompson, Hann Troupe, Davis . . . men of the Fox Division. How many have made their last liberty in "Hawaii Nei"? When this war is over, and we have defeated the forces arrayed against us, we shall all remember them as the first of those in this conflict who died that we might still be free.

War Department Seeks 100 Armoured Force Instructors For Duty at Fort Knox; Positions Offered by Examination

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 12.—Instructors are being sought by the War Department for its Armored Force School at Fort Knox, Ky. Approximately 100 positions are to be filled through the civil-service examination, it was announced by the Civil Service Commission today. The examination announcement just issued covers five grades of positions with salaries ranging from $2,000 for junior instructors to $4,600 a year for senior instructors. Optional branches of instruction for which persons are being sought are radial engines, internal combustion engines, motorcycles, automotive (chassis less the engine), radio operating, and radio electrical. Instructors will plan the courses of instruction, prepare and revise text material, and conduct classes in these options. Instruction in the maintenance, repair and overhaul of all mobile armored combat equipment of the Armored Force is to be given.

It is expected that most appointments will be made to the junior instructor positions. However, there is excellent opportunity for advancement inasmuch as it is the policy of the School to fill the higher-grade positions by promotion whenever possible.

Shop experience or technical experience—including some as a shop foreman or responsible instructor—in one of the specific optional branches of instruction is necessary. In addition for senior instructors, two years of experience is required. For part of the general shop or technical experience, applicants may substitute successfully completed study in a residence course in engineering in a university or technical school, or in a teacher-training course in vocational education, trade and industrial education, or industrial arts. No written test is to be given; however, after an initial rating on applicant's education and experience, an oral test may be given to a sufficient number of eligibles to meet the needs of the School.

Best Christmas Wishes

As we approach another holiday season we have the pleasant privilege of looking beyond the business transactions of the year, and counting our profits in new friendships formed and old friendships strengthened.

- To express our appreciation of those friendships, and the confidence invested in us . . .
- To give assurance of increased efficiency for serving our friends during the coming year : : :
- To express the good wishes of the season.

That's what we mean when we wish you a Merry Christmas and a New Year abounding in Health, Happiness and Prosperity.
