Stamps costing 10¢, 25¢ and up and bonds selling for $18.75 and up may be purchased at either the main post office or the new area substation.

Vacancies Exist in CPT Training And Ground Courses in Aeronautics

Vacancies now exist in the Civilian Pilot Flight and Ground School Courses being offered under the sponsorship of A. & M., it was announced by Paul Higgins, instructor. Although previously these courses were closed, a change in the eligibility requirements reopened them for enrollment.

Minimum age for enlistment has been reduced from nineteen to eighteen, which age must have been reached by January 2, 1942. The maximum age limit still stands at twenty-five years.

A survey recently conducted revealed that the percentage of those that have taken the C. P. T. course and "washed out" of the Army or Navy Air Corps is much lower than the percentage of those who have had no previous flying instruction.

Any men interested in going in the Army or Navy Air Corps and desirous of improving their opportunities to stay in actual flight work while staying in school are urged to apply at the Department of Aeronautical Engineering immediately for further information.

Late schedules will affect the Agricultural Experiment Station, Extension Service, and Forestry Service.

The new time schedule will remain in effect until further notice. Actually the only change made by this section is to coordinate College Station timepieces with those of large cities throughout the state and nation which adopt daylight saving time on this date. Aggies will still arise at the same time with respect to the sun although the clock will say 7:15 when reveille blows.

Ashton Writes Hereford Journal Article for January

Dr. John Ashton of the A. & M. Rural Sociology Department submitted a feature article to the American Hereford Journal which was printed in the January issue.

Dr. Ashton gained information for his article in a recent visit he paid to the headquarters of the Matador Land and Cattle Company in Cottle and Motley counties. Dr. Ashton also unearthed interesting historical facts on the financial operations of the Matador empire at the State Library at Austin.

The article tells of the writer's reception at the ranch headquarters and of the advanced methods employed by this organization. The article is illustrated by photographs taken by the author, whose articles on Texas Cattle industry have been printed far and wide during the past decade.

Registration for National Defense Courses Started by C E Department

Registration for the six national defense courses being offered by the federal government was started by the civil engineering department yesterday according to J. T. L. McNew, head of the department.

A total of 84 had registered yesterday afternoon in the various courses, and it is likely that a few more may register today McNew stated.

In advanced engineering drawing, 23 had registered. Fourteen were signed up in camp sanitation; materials testing and inspecting, 16; radio communications, 14; surveying and mapping, 10; and power and electric circuits, 7. The course in chemistry and powder explosives will start next Monday instead of this week as originally scheduled, McNew added.

The courses will last for 12 weeks. The students are required to pay their living expenses during the period of instruction. They are required to have their own drawing instruments in those courses in which they are necessary. Some of the text books used are furnished, others must be purchased by the students.

No fees are charged the students for enrollment in the courses and hospitalization is furnished them by the federal government. They pay the regular maintenance fees that are charged to in the mess hall or the project houses.

Some of the students are living in the project houses and a portion of them are staying in the mess hall dormitory at the rear of Sbis Hall. The total cost for the 12 weeks course to the student is $81.

Instructors for the courses will be made up for the college staff and any outside teachers that are necessary.

ture appearances on his programs. An outstanding negro swing band from Lufkin is being contacted for the February 14th program and "Mysterious" Howard, Houston magician, will be brought here if possible.

As a means of furnishing spice to his programs, Jenkins announced today that he is interested in any kind of local talent. Any Aggie interested in trying his ability before the Assembly Hall audience is invited to contact Jenkins. As now planned the outstanding local talent developed will be brought into one big show later in the spring. It is also planned to take outstanding local artists to Denton to repay the visit here of the Serenaders.

The Assembly Hall programs are given free to the Corps. They are built around the idea of audience participation, informality, and good fun.
