Wistful Vista Makes Its Debut

Hissing Hershey Gets Results; Hissing Teasippers Squelched

"Impulsive, fun-loving, rugged individuals of the Forty Acres will have to confine their theater hissing and booing to non-military subjects from now on," Jimmy Pitt of the Daily Texan states.

Texas university students who hissed moving pictures of Brig. Gen. L. B. Hershey when he appeared in a movie short on the selective service program received a thorough shock when an International News Service story released Wednesday afternoon stated that military authorities were investigating the hissing and booing. "Reports were that on the night of February 1, General Hershey appeared in a movie short on the selective service program which was shown in a campus theater. Hershey was roundly hissed during his screen talk on Selective Service Registration," the INS story revealed.

Later stories proved that these reports were rumors and that no investigation was being carried on by military authorities. Stories may be summed up by the statement of Jesse Helinger, manager of the theater, that "Students always have a good time booing first one thing and then another."

Elliot Speaks Before Juniors, Seniors Friday

"Food is the capital question in Europe. A ten-cent American hamburger has as much bread as the French get in a day, more meat than they get in a week, and more butter than they get in a year," said Roland Elliott, executive secretary of the national student committee of the YMCA, as he spoke to the juniors and seniors Friday morning in Guion hall. "Food, resistance, and reconstruction are the key words for Europe oppressed peoples" he said. Elliott has returned from Europe less than two weeks ago and has information from the War fronts and prison camps.

Elliott stated that food is of capital importance to the sufferers. For instance, in France it was impossible for him to buy more than a certain ration of food regardless of how much money he had to pay for it. It seemed that the people could not get enough to eat to satisfy hunger. The vitamin content is very low in all their food.

The speaker described conditions in the prison camps in France, Holland, Poland and in many other occupied countries. Even though all of the people in these occupied areas are under the most strict supervision, and are not permitted to think out loud, Elliott found undercover resistance to be high among all of them. As an example, Elliott told how the Dutch workmen planted their much loved orange flowers along railroad embankments. The flowers represent the House of Orange of Holland. In cablegrams sent to American while he was in Europe, Elliott emphasized the importance of the great work of student relief that is being done in refugee prison camps and its significance for the reconstruction days ahead.
