Instructions to Be Followed In Case Of Air Raid Issued by Defense Director

From the office of Dr. C. C. Hedges, director of civilian defense in the College Station area a list of instructions has been released for the use of air raid wardens in training those in their areas in the necessary precautions to be taken in all possible cases of danger. These included air raids without warning, air raids with warning and general instructions for use during blackouts and special bomb controls.

IN CASE OF AIR RAID WITHOUT WARNING

Keep calm. If at home, turn off all lights immediately and stay inside.

If in a car, stop immediately at curb being sure not to block any driveway or fire plug; if at night turn off motor and car lights; seek nearest shelter one floor above ground or lie down flat in the open.

If on the street, seek nearest shelter one floor above ground, or lie down flat in the open.

In case of daylight attack, stay inside, do not rush to help with children at school or elsewhere. Provision has been made to take care of the children at school. Do not use the phone.

IN CASE OF AIR RAID WITH WARNING

Head for home if you can get there within five minutes easily, safely and without undue rush. Otherwise stop car at curb, turn off lights and seek shelter. All traffic, whether on highways or within the city will be stopped after five minutes.

Don't use the phone, lines must be kept clear for emergencies.

Detail the various members of the family to their different duties.

Prepare blackout room that has been chosen for that purpose.

Do not turn off main light switch, gas cutoff or pilot lights.

In case of fire or incendiaries out of control, always follow your warden's instructions. Help will be on the way.

GENERAL INSTRUCTIONS

Appoint one member of the family to be chief of operations. Mother is usually the most reliable. Detail the various members of the family to perform specific duties when the emergency comes. This will save time and confusion.

Reasons for a blackout room, rather than turning off lights.

—LYNN—

(Continued from Page 1) stopped to determine the cause of and excitement and Lynn's companion jumped out of the car leaving the door open and Neiwah took advantage of the opportunity to escape.

He was caught after a long chase by throwing a coat over him.

Because these lizards are rare, he is valuable. Lynn has been offered a boa constrictor in exchange for him but has not traded as yet. When asked what he wanted with a boa, Lynn replied that they made very good pets and are nice to have around.

—FOOTBALL—

Outstanding in the line for the regulars were Truman Cox, an end who is due to see plenty of service next fall, and Slats Holder who played the entire game at center, Bill Sibley having been forced out due to a cold.

Coach Norton's main problem in spring training has been to find capable replacements in the line, and to develop a strong ground attack to couple with the potent Aggie aerials. However, from the looks of things the past three Saturdays, next fall the oft repeated cry of the past three seasons will once again ring out across the gridirons of the Southwest, "Stop those Aggies."

A Revolutionary New Principle in Modern Tractor Farming

Your eyes will pop wide open when you see the FORD TRACTOR with FERGUSON SYSTEM in action. You won't believe that any one tractor can do all the things this tractor actually does until you see it perform. It puts to shame and out-maneuvers old-style tractors half again as big—brings a new era of profitable farming, at surprisingly low cost.
