CENTER

Faires, Kenny, Kaffer and Cardwell constitute the sub-committee on volunteer faculty and student assistance. The first assignment given this group was to furnish forty-two volunteer workers in the War Information Center, which will be set up immediately on receipt of materials from the U. S. Office of Education. The materials will come from Government and private agencies, from civic organizations and from publishers.

There will be approximately 140 key centers of information and training distributed according to population by States. The key center at A. & M. is expected to serve approximately one million people.

Four professors of physics at Cornell university have left the campus to take defense positions.

Four Commissions In One Family Not Enough; Want Five

One or two Army commissions would be quite enough for any ordinary family, but the fighting Ebbeler brothers of Lafayette, Ind., constitute no ordinary tribe. They boast of four officers and another one on the way who will fly for the Royal Air Force.

From the youngest, Harold—a flight instructor at the "West Point of the Air"—to the oldest, Paul, who is a lieutenant in the Quartermaster Corps, Seattle, Washington, the five men have established a military record quite unique, with 40 collective years of National Guard and R.O.T.C. service behind them.

And, too, they're scattered anywhere from 1,000 to 4,850 miles apart, minimum and maximum.

The ages run as follows: Harold, 25; Bill, 28; George, 29; Donald, 32; and Paul, 36. Harold, Bill and George hold engineering degrees at Purdue University, while all five men have been members of the In-
