freshman team. So there you have it. Unless the war gets too severe and many are called into service immediately, prospects for another Aggie dominating Southwest Conference season is very very on the up and up, especially in football and track.

Buck brothers. "Why," said Uncle Bill, "they work as if they were preparing for a Rose Bowl game every day." Felix is Threat. The Buck brother act may have been broken by the graduation of Roy, but Felix will still be there and according to Coach Homer Norton is a definite threat for one of the guard posts. If there is any kind of honor to be taken down by any Aggie athlete you are almost sure to see the name Buck close by.

Dorothy Lamour turns on the heat in a scene from "The Fleet's In" which shows at the Campus Prevue Saturday night, Sunday and Monday.

Treasury Dept. Quota Reached

Sales of War Bonds in Brazos County from May 1941 down to and including April 1942 total $810,402.50 a statement from Judge A. S. Ware, Brazos County chairman of United States War Bonds Sales, says. He further states that in order to avoid a compulsory purchase program, it is going to be necessary that sales over the country equal the quotas assigned by the Treasury Department. Brazos County has so far met its quotas with some overrun, but in order to continue meeting the quotas assigned, it will be necessary that activities be increased so as to maintain sales at a high point during the summer months.

He received his Bachelor's degree from N. T. S. T. C. where he later completed a Masters. He attended Texas University Law School until he was admitted to the State Bar Association.

During his college career he served as editor of the college paper, as editor of the college yearbook and as manager of college publications. Students holding similar jobs here were under his supervision.

Following several months service in the unexpired term of a member of the legislature, Skiles was later elected to the seat permanently. He served for three regular sessions, holding a place on the appropriations committee and the committee on higher education.

Aggieland's Naval Contingent

New sights at Aggieland are the above scenes as the Navy established training schools on the campus. The "Blue boys" eat with the Aggies in the Mess Hall, and in the inset, they have adopted the Battalion.

Navy Blue Blends With Army and Marine Corps Khaki on Campus as College Trains Seamen

Not only is A. & M. training men for the army, but during the war a large number of enlisted personnel from the navy and the marine corps are stationed at the college for technical training in certain branches of electrical work.

When the first contingent of sailors arrived, they were greeted by special articles and editorials in The Battalion, by a great number of Aggies at the train, and by a special review of the corps the afternoon of their arrival. Since that time other contingents have arrived and many marines just out of Boot School have been sent here for additional training.

Under different circumstances where they may be able to help each other—even to saving a life. At the Cotton Ball last semester many white sailor uniforms could be seen on the dance floor.

United in the common cause of defeating the Axis powers, the Aggies have welcomed men of the fighting services other than the army, and the sailors and marines have reciprocated by trying to become good Aggies and understand and like A. & M.

Social Secretary Bobby Stephens has announced that the floor will probably be finished soon after school starts. Stephens also announced that "name" orchestras will be brought in for as many dances this summer as possible, and it is hoped that summer organization dances will be held much on the order of the formal organization balls held during the regular long session.

In addition to dances and other activities which will be held on the newly constructed slab, Richard Jenkins, director of the Singing Cadets, has announced that Saturday night Kadet Kapers will continue through the summer months. The place has not been announced as yet, but Jenkins states that weather permitting, in all probability Kadet Kapers will be held out-of-doors.

The Intramural department has turned over several of the baseball diamonds to the navy, and in the afternoons the sailors can be seen drilling or playing baseball. The marines have a similar recreational program to keep them in shape. Aggies, sailors and marines have become good friends realizing that
