It is urgent that the three Aggies who were riding with Mrs. C. C. Carter when she was injured in an automobile accident south of Hearne on October 3, 1941, contact Mr. Paul B. Wagenseller in the Union National Bank Building in Houston. The driver of the car had picked up the Aggies in Bryan and was on her way to Waco, when the accident occurred at the incline leading up to the overpass just south of Hearne.

Cox Advises Exam To Correct Any Defects for Army

"Pre-habilitation is a word with much more meaning than the familiar one 'rehabilitation,'" Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, declared today in emphasizing the advisability of frequent physical examinations.

Dr. Cox pointed out that young men who expect to enter military service within the near future should go to their family doctor for a check-up, so that any remedial physical defects can be attended to before they are called.

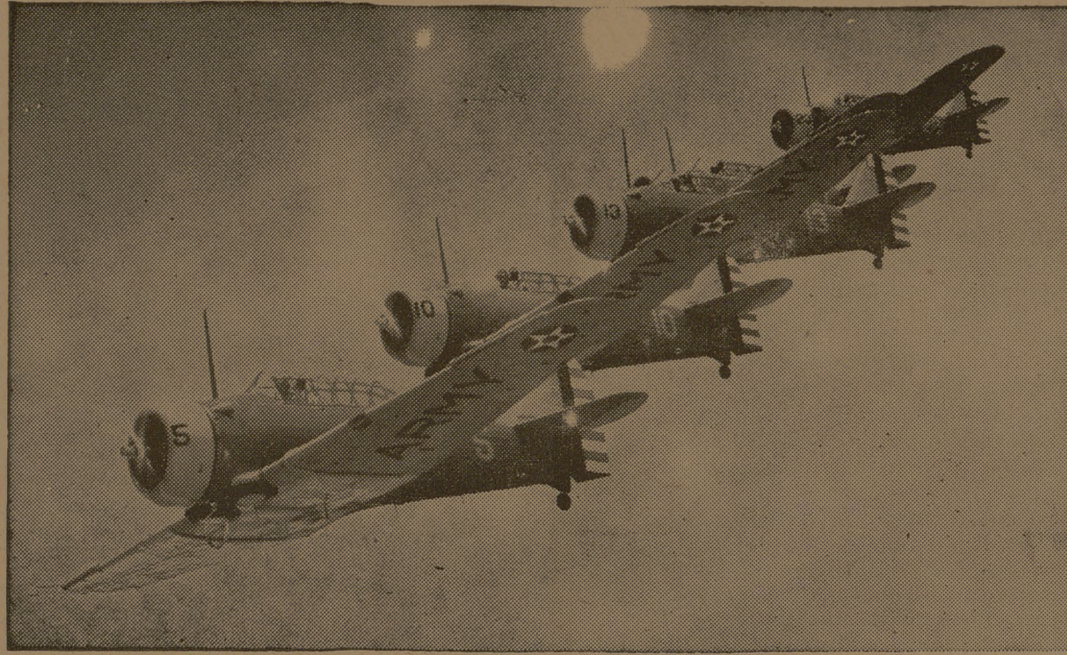

"By possible corrective treatment, many young men can be ready for military service when called, who are not now able to serve," Dr. Cox said.

According to the State Health Officer, not only young men expecting to enter military service, but war workers and their families, students cramming four years' work into much less time and all others caught in the accelerated speed of the business world today should be examined by a doctor at least twice a year.

"It costs less to maintain than to repair," Dr. Cox declared. "Get to know a good doctor before you need repairs."

THDA Convention Will Be in Fort Worth, August 18

Mrs Wickard to Be Guest At State-Wide Meeting Of Texas Farm Women

Unlike many organizations which are cancelling conventions for the duration, the Texas Home Demonstration Association will hold its annual state-wide meeting in August to forward the war work of farm and ranch women. The convention is to be held in Fort Worth, August 18-20.

Despite transportation difficulties, leaders expect home demonstration clubs in 192 counties to be represented at the meeting.

Only out-of-state guest invited to appear on the program is Mrs. Claude R. Wickard of Washington, D.C., wife of the Secretary of Agriculture. In addition to numbers of rural women who will participate, other speakers include Dr. Robert Sutherland of Austin, director of the Hogg Foundation, University of Texas, and Miss Mildred Horton of College Station, vice director and state home demonstration agent of the A. & M. College Extension Service.

In announcing plans for the meeting Mrs. W. G. Kennedy, Muleshoe, president, explained that the 40,000 members of the Texas Home Demonstration Association will plan to reach and serve all of the 418,000 farm and ranch homes in Texas.

One unusual feature of the program will be dramatization of the Association's work during the past year. Among the activities to be portrayed in a colorful pageant are increased use of whole grain cereals, promotion of the community school lunch program, first aid instruction, and the Food for Freedom movement, and support of the Victory Demonstration of the A. & M. College Extension Service.

Transportation Problems Constitute War Bottleneck

The nation's wartime crisis in transportation emphasizes the uneconomic concentration of industry in sections remote from raw materials and fuel. It is the economic waste of transportation facilities in cross-hauling that has created one of the serious bottlenecks of the production front, Lachlan Macleay, president of the Mississippi Valley association, points out.

The North Atlantic states, in which a substantial portion of the nation's industry is centered, are faced with a critical shortage of both fuel oil and coal. This industrial area must also import or bring from distant points in the South and Middle West most of the raw materials processed in its factories. The submarine warfare off the Atlantic Coast and the worldwide demand for shipping have placed a tremendous burden on our railroads at a time when every freight car is urgently needed.

The politicians and the vested interests of the North Atlantic states who were responsible for the maintenance of the manufacturing monopoly held by that section in the past have combined to increase this uneconomic concentration of manufacturing despite the war emergency. Recently two huge aluminum plants were authorized for this section. One is located in Boston and the other in Brooklyn.

The two plants will require approximately 2,500,000 tons of coal annually—and New England already faces a coal shortage. The coal for the plants must be moved from 600 to 800 miles, and the aluminum they will process comes largely from smelters in the South and the Southwest, even more distant.

This is an example of the uneconomic cross-hauling which taxes our transportation system. These plants should have been built in the Middle West where we already have an aluminum industry close to the coal fields and where the Mississippi River provides a submarine-free, all-water route for the movement of bauxite from South America through the Port of New Orleans and from the nearby mines of Arkansas.

This government is committed to the principles of the Atlantic Charter. Included in the four freedoms enunciated in that charter and reaffirmed in the recent agreement with Russia, is free access to essential raw materials by all nations of the world. If this policy is to prevail in the post-war world, it means the United States must re-orient its economic structure. It is much less expensive to ship finished products to market than to ship raw materials long distances for processing. We must eliminate expensive and wasteful cross-hauling. We must develop an industrial structure which can compete with other countries in the markets of the world.

This means we must develop our industry in the Mid-Continent Area, in which the centers of nearly all of our raw materials are located. It means that everything which is processed from agricultural products must be made in this area, where the byproducts without waste or transportation loss can be used to feed its livestock.

The Mid-Continent Area produces 69 per cent of the nation's live stock; more than 80 per cent of all grains; 72 per cent of the cotton; 94 per cent of the bituminous coal; 82 per cent of the petroleum and 84 per cent of the natural gas; 94 per cent of the iron ore; 99 per cent of the sulphur; 96 per

The profs threw a big scare in the final inning by counting two runs on an error, walk and a couple of wild pitches and passed balls. Lawler held the Faculty to three scattered hits.

Ensign Gay is from Houston and attended A. & M. for three and-a-half years as a student in mechanical engineering.

After taking off from his carrier on June 4, Ensign Gay approached three Japanese aircraft carriers. After hitting a ship, Gay and his crew members were subjected to fire from a Zero fighter which riddled the plane and wounded him. Gay pancaked the plane into the sea and managed to extricate himself from the wreckage.

As the plane sank, he saw a deflated rubber life raft appear out of the ship's wreckage along with a black cushion. With this rubber raft he managed to stay afloat and observe the attack on the carriers. He spent the night in the water and part of the next day before being picked up by a U. S. boat.
