DISTRACTIONS

remember her by. She overdoes her part at times and seems a bit hysterical, but after all, she's supposed to be a lady in love and who wouldn't be hysterical in that condition?

Opposite Miss Shearer are two men to complete the triangle. Robert Taylor, in a strictly romantic role for a change, is her secretary whom she hires to keep herself from running around with play-boy George Sanders too much. Sanders had a part smaller than his capabilities justify; the picture wouldn't have been hurt if his part had been more prominent.

The Lowdown—overdone romance, but entertaining. Second feature at the Campus is "TWO LATINAS FROM MANHATTAN", a no-so-hot story of two girls who take the place of two Cuban entertainers. Joan Davis is the night club press agent who gets her two roommates, Jinx Falkenburg and Joan Woodbury, into complications as pseudo-Latin Americans. Music in the show includes two catch rhumbas and also "Daddy". The movie's triteness and lack of inspiration make it fall from the ranks of the best of entertainers. Even the musical numbers seem to last too long for comfort.

The Lowdown—a second-rater. will enter the Mess Hall at meal formation ahead of the Corps. These students will enter the Mess Hall through the east front door five minutes ahead of the Corps. Should they happen to be late, they will assemble with the other students out of formation and wait until the Corps marches in before entering the Mess Hall.

Students who for any reason at the regular meal formation cannot march with an organization will assemble in the triangle south of the band assembly area and will be allowed to leave this area in time to follow the last organization of the Corps into the Mess Hall.

CIRCULAR NO. 23:
1. CIRCULAR NO. 22, CURRENT SERIES, is amended to read as follows: Students with guests in the old Mess Hall area will be permitted to enter the Mess Hall ahead of the Corps.

Joint Procurement Committee Makes Plans for Reserve Corps Enlistments

The Joint Army-Navy-Marine Corps College Procurement Committee has returned to Washington, D. C., from a tour of the country, in which it discussed with educational authorities the plan of the armed services to work in close cooperation with each other and with the colleges to effect uniform procedures for the enlistment of college students in the reserves of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps.

The objective of the joint plan is to channel into the armed services a continuous and regulated stream of college-trained manpower.

Students who enroll in the enlisted reserves, are actually members of the Army, Navy, or Marine Corps. While they maintain an inactive military status for the time being, they are regarded by the services as cooperating patriotically in the fulfillment of an important phase of the over-all war effort, for they are being qualified to fill definite needs. Although it is not contemplated that they be called to active duty until they have been qualified by their college training, they are subject to call at any time if the exigencies of the war situation demand it. This is specifically explained to them, as well as the fact that any student in the enlisted reserves is subject to call to active duty as an enlisted man if he fails to graduate with his class or to meet the standards set by the respective services for officer material.

It was emphasized that the Joint Procurement Committee was set up to obtain a definite number of men each year possessing the necessary qualifications for specific military and naval duties, and therefore the plan goes only as far as the actual needs of the services demand. Furthermore, the needs of war industries for men with certain types of training must be taken into consideration.

Implementing further the cooperation of the Army and the Navy in the recruiting of reserve manpower at colleges, arrangements have been made for the establishment of nine joint Army-Navy-Marine Corps Boards, which will visit all accredited colleges. The districts covered by these Boards correspond to the area of the nine Army Service Commands. While the Naval Districts do not correspond with these, the Navy and Marine Corps have designated officers to work with the Service Commands. Each board will consist of five officers, one representing the Army in general, one the Army Air forces, one the Navy in general, one the Naval Air Arm, and one the Marine Corps. In each case, the five officers will visit the same college on the same day, to give the students an opportunity to learn the details of each enlisted reserve plan. These meetings with student bodies will begin as the colleges open for autumn semesters.

Flanagan, the two high school stars of the North-South classic, along with nine other gridsters in that particular game have designated their intentions to enroll at A. & M. next fall. . . In fact all of the boys have already reserved their rooms here and are ready for a session's football grind. . . Incidentally, Coach Lt. Bill North of the Aggie polo team inherits quite a malletman in the person of White who did quite a bit of playing while at Lamesa. . . So, the athletic office killed two birds with one stone when they signed up Mr. White. . . Flanagan was around here last spring in the company of Lil Dimmitt and the genial and popular Aggie baseball coach had the Sweetwater youth just "crazy" about the college. . . And from Lil's stuttering words one could make out that it won't be long before A. & M. College will be "ditto" about Marion. . . Anyway here's hoping. . .

The tennis singles and table tennis singles championships will be decided by the end of this week. This tournament has been highly successful, since it was played on schedule, and aroused interest and competition.

The table tennis singles tournament is still in the quarter-finals, but the doubles championship was decided when DuBose and Meyer of C Coast won over the team of Armstrong and Howard of B Inf.

The singles title in Golf was won by Jackson of F Coast and the doubles title was won by the team a dangerous disease. From India Great Britain is drawing quite a large amount of war material in the form of manufactured goods; she is reliant on India as a Far Eastern base for supplies and as a supply route onto the continent; she is dependent on Indian ports as vital naval bases for her Far Eastern fleet. Readily we see that the loss of Indian cooperation by only the slightest degree is the last thought in England's mind. If India were cut loose tomorrow there would immediately be a great amount of readjustment, juggling, and adopting of ideas in relation to everything under the sun. It would be infinitely worse than the disruption we've witnessed by the change of parties in national politics in our own early history. In short, Great Britain with all she's got at stake can not possibly allow such a move as Gandhi proposes. She stands to lose too much.

When Gandhi began to flirt with Japan, he piled the last straw on the camel's back. Today he's in jail due to the riots and tumultuous acting of his millions of followers.

It's only right and the only safe thing that Great Britain should fail to let this unjudicious plot gain momentum.
