Wayne Law Finishing Glider Pilot Courses

Glider student Wayne Law, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Law of Alvin, Texas, has reported at the South Plains Army Flying School, Lubbock, Texas, for the final lap of training which is preparing him for the silver wings of an Air Corps glider pilot.

The new South Plains school is commanded by Col. Norman B. Olsen, and according to a recent War Department announcement is to become probably one of the largest glider training schools in the nation, if not in the world. While there Staff Sgt. Low will complete the training he began at Aberdeen, So. Dak. Upon graduation he will hold the grade of staff sergeant, and will be assigned to active duty with an Air Corps unit.

He attended A. & M. and was a member of the Aggie band for two years.

of the others.

Charles Grapewin as the old corder who never quite gets to "California", John Litel as General Phil Sheridan and the vilians, Arthur Kennedy and Walter Hampden all lend splendid support to the picture.

The Lowdown—An easy way to take your history.

Here's another music comedy with a war background. Lovers of sweet swing and hot jive are sure to appreciate it, but we doubt if those movie-goers who want something they can "bite their teeth in" will enjoy it. Title of the movie is "Private Buckaroo", and its showing today through Saturday at the Campus Theatre.

Musical Scores are furnished by Henry James, his trumpet and his Music Makers. The Andrews Sisters do the vocalizing. We like them but this time there's a little too much of 'em for comfort. Between the music, Jennifer Holt, Dick Foran and Joe E. Lewis try to squeeze a word in edgewise.

The Lowdown—say it with music.

clapped and applauded as they did for no other number when the boys finished. Believe it or not, they liked it. Incidentally, there were more Aggies there than just the orchestra. It looked like a Junior Corps Trip.

If enough Aggies want it, the Aggieland might play there the night before the A. & M.—Texas game. It's up to you.

White. 'Tis true that the school is run on such a basis but it just isn't the policy of the Battalion to follow that rule in the paper. . . Imagine reporting a freshman football game thusly: the ball goes to Fish Smith who hands it off to Frog Jones on a reverse, who aided by some fine blocking by Frog Brown makes 10 yards before he is tackled by Fish O'Gold-flop. . . Oh well, you just can't please everybody! . . . Incidentally, while on the subject of freshmen, Roland Phillips, who is one of the star linemen on the Fish team, is a tackle and not a guard as reported by this column Tuesday. . . In looking over statistics compiled by Roy Gates and Ed Elmendorf of the Publicity Department, I see where Leo Daniels and Bill Hen-

The "T-ZONE"—Taste and Throat—is the proving ground for cigarettes. Only your taste and throat can decide which cigarette tastes best to you . . . and how it affects your throat.
