Aggie Kicking, Running and Blocking Shows Improvement Sat; Foldberg Shines at Tackle

Feels pretty good to win, doesn't it? I don't believe the team, corps or coaches have ever felt any better in winning a game even from the conference cellarites. It seemed to perk up the team's spirit and give them an onward push to further victories. It was a change from the doleful to the bright side, an about-face in other words.

It was just a week ago that the Aggies came back from Waco broken hearted and a spirit which seemed at that time to be completely destroyed. But Saturday afternoon all that proved to be false as the Cadets went back to their winning ways in a big way.

Of course, the fact that Arkansas was very weak helped quite a bit in the Aggie victory but you still can't get away from the fact that the latter was clicking like a well-oiled machine. That 65-yard march at the outset of the tilt was a beauty in itself—the precision, the timing and the skill of the team in engineering the drive.

The Aggie kicking continued to be brilliant with both Lightnin' Leo Daniels and speedy Barney Welch angling their boots for the sidelines with remarkable accuracy. It may be noted that the Cadet kicking hasn't been of the distance variety all year and the primary reason for that has been because the kickers' knack for aiming that pigskin for the little red flag. This has paid off dividends and with plenty to spare.

But aside from the kicking, the blocking and tackling also comes in for quite a lot of praise. Hank Foldberg, Willie Zapalac, Wayne Cure, Felix Bueck, Boots Simmons and A. J. Mercer excelled in that department and gave the Maroon and White shirted Cadets their best blocking of the year.

However, the most notable thing of the whole game Saturday was the excellent performance of the tackle slot. Injected with new blood, namely Sophomore Hank Foldberg, converted end, that position seemed to be the strongest post on the field. Wayne Cure, the other tackle, did a fine job. His block on Cullen Rogers' long touchdown run was one of the highlights of the game, but to the quiet Hank Foldberg, playing his first game at tackle, you've just gotta take off your hat. He was in on almost 50 percent of the tackles made and his blocking was short of sensational. He is still a bit unpolished, but the way Hank played Saturday, it won't be long before Line-Coach Bill James can call the tackle slot a finished job and concentrate on some other weakness.

All in all, it looks like the Nor-tonmen have finally hit their stride, and, although championship aspirations are a thing of the past now, you can bet your life that the rest of Aggie opponents are going to find a rough and ready team the rest of the way!

Ags Plan to Stress Pass Defense for SMU

Cadets Bounce Back With 41-0 Win Over Arkansas

Flushed with their 41-0 triumph over the Arkansas Razorbacks the Texas Aggies went back to work yesterday in preparation for their forthcoming battle with the Ponies of S. M. U. Plenty of fire and spirit was noted in the workout as the team went through a long drill on pass defense. Coach Norton was very dissatisfied with the way the pass defense looked against Arkansas, and since the Ponies are expected to throw the ball all over the stadium, this department will come in for plenty of attention.

The Aggies came out of the Arkansas clash in good physical shape, no serious injuries having been sustained by anyone. Guard Wayne Cure was shaken up slightly, but will be ready to go by Saturday. Unless some unforeseen injuries crop up in practice the Aggies will go into the Mustang battle in top physical shape.

Meanwhile news from the Pony camps is rather on the gloomy side. Although "Moanin' Matty" Bell is gone, his successor Jimmy Stewart is carrying on the Bell tradition, and if reports from the Mustang camp can be believed it will be a miracle if S. M. U. can put a team on the field. It is a fact that co-captain Orville "Bull" Johnson is on the injured list, but star tailback Red Maley who was nursing injuries in the Texas game should certainly be in top shape to go against the Aggies.

The Mustangs are always double tough for the Aggie to beat, and this year should certainly prove no exception to that rule. The Aggies have beaten the Ponies every year since 1938 and the Mustangs are out to break the string of Aggie victories. In addition, it will be homecoming for the Mustangs, and this will certainly have some effect on their play.

However, the Aggies will be gunning for their second conference win of the current season, and the game promises to be one of the thrillers of the year. The victory over Arkansas went far to restore the confidence of the Aggies, and now that Coach Norton has found a clicking combination in the line the Aggies should be able to live up to some of their pre-season press notices.

First group of 1,600 enlisted members of the WAVES will be trained at the University of Wisconsin, Indiana university and Oklahoma Agricultural and Mechanical college.

Rifle Team Plans Journey to Denton Friday for Shoulder Match With TSCW

Girls Haven't Responded Yet But Should in Day or So

The "Annie Oakleys of T. S. C. W." will meet the Texas Aggie Rifle Team in their fourth annual match in Denton at the T. S. C. W. Indoor Range Friday afternoon. Word has yet to come from the campus of the sister school to confirm the meeting. All arrangements have been made as far as the Aggies are concerned and all that is needed is the final acceptance of the girls team.

The Aggies will take 11 men on the trip but they have not been selected as yet. Eliminations are now being conducted and the 11 men who have the best consistent scores during the week will make the trip. It is expected that a few new members of the team will earn a berth for this match. The Cadets plan to leave Aggieland at 9 a.m. Friday and will take their own equipment with them.

At this time the girls are one match ahead of the Aggies who won last year while the T. S. C. W. team won in 1939 and 1940. However, all of the matches have been nip-and-tuck all the way. There has been but two or three points difference in the scores of the two teams each year.

This annual match has created much interest on the Denton campus and each year a number of the members of the T. S. C. W. team who have graduated return to observe the meeting of the two teams.

Miss Boone, coach of the T. S. C. W. Rifle Team, has turned out excellent teams in the past and it is expected that this year's squad will be no exception. That team has also had the good fortune to receive the tutelage of Thurman Randle, one of the foremost marksmen of the country. The Aggie squad is coached by Capt. C. A. Williams, C. of A.

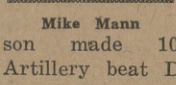

Each entrant will fire 20 shots from a prone position in the competition and a team aggregate will be taken. A close match is expected and neither team is expected to win by too great of a margin.

game are now on sale at the Y.M.C.A., and will remain on sale all of this week through Friday, November 6, at 5:00 p.m. All Aggies who plan to make the corps trip to Dallas this week-end should purchase their tickets here because tickets for students will not be on sale in Dallas. Also on sale at the Y.M.C.A. will be date tickets which will sell for $2.50.

If a student desires to use his free coupon for this game he may exchange both coupons No 32 and 33 for the ticket. If he wishes to save the free coupon until later, he may exchange coupon No 33 together with $1.25.

E. W. Hooker, ticket manager, stated that there absolutely would not be any student tickets on sale in Dallas, so it is essential that every Aggie who makes the trip purchase his ticket before he leaves. Plenty of duets will be available at the "Y" and it is urged that the corps make it a sell-out and pack up and get out on the highway, so as to make this last trip to Dallas for the duration the biggest and best in history.

Sports Squibs From Here and There; Roy McKay of Texas Leading Back in Conference

... A few conference notes ... Roy Dale McKay, Texas fullback, is truly the triple-threat of the Southwest Conference ... he is leading the league in kicking and running and is just a notch behind A&M's Leo Daniels in the passing department ... Cullen Rogers, the Aggies' phenomenal pass-receiver, is still leading the nation as well as the conference in that department ... Incidentally, this corner would like to pay tribute to Rogers, whom I consider one of the most consistent players of the conference ... he always plays hard and is a very good man to have on any team ... he is not flashy in any respect, but he always does his job well whether the team is losing or winning ... Coach Norton considers him to be one of the mainstays of the team, there's no doubt of that ... you can say the same thing in so many words on Boots Simmons, Aggie end ... big game of the week will be between Baylor and Texas ... the Bears have a good chance to win the title if their luck holds out, but it seems to have run out by now against A&M and TCU ... both teams were defeated in a similar fashion by the Bears ... When asked by a certain sports syndicate as to what team would beat any opponent on any given day, Coach Norton gave out with Geor-

A&M's Bill Sibley and SMU's Orville Johnson Bet Gridiron Shirts on Coming Battle Saturday

Three played and three to go in the Texas Aggie Southwest Conference season the Cadets take on the Southern Methodist Mustangs at Ownby Stadium, Dallas, Saturday, Nov. 7, in what promises to be a great game. So intense is the rivalry that Aggie Center Bill Sibley and Mustang Guard Orville Johnson actually have bet their shirts on the outcome, with winner to strip the loser's shirt off his back at the final gun and right on the field at the 50-yard line.

It all came about this summer when Sibley was in school and Johnson, who hails from nearby Bryan, had a double-date. Joking led to bets with the result that they ran through the cokes and such with all kinds of if's and and's until they finally settled on their shirts as the price of the wager.

Lil Dimmitt frowned on that pick and instead took Alabama ... How much did you lose on the side, Lil? ... A. J. Mercer, Aggie center, looked very good Saturday, and you can be sure that he'll see much action from now on ... Dick Hill, Aggie reserve guard, has lost his pocket-book which contains his draft registration card ... if found, return to 201 No. 16 ... Leo Daniels looked like all-conference material Saturday ... his running, kicking, and passing were brilliant ... Ditto for Barney Welch ...

STAR OF THE WEEK DEPARTMENT ... Bert Edminson, reserve Baylor end, gets the honor this week, for his game-winning field goal boot, which gave the Baylor Bears an astounding 10-7 upset over the hitherto unbeaten TCU Horned Frogs.

It is not who plays the best game, or the most time, or who is the ugliest at the end as nothing but the score on the board will decide who takes the shirt right off the back of loser. In case of a tie

Williamson Rates Baylor Bears As Best Team of Southwest Conference

By Paul B. Williamson system this week, the Baylor Bears are out in front in the Southwest Conference title chase. Mainly responsible for the high rating of the Bears was their remarkable feat of knocking off the conference champion Aggies and the previously undefeated and untied Texas Christian Horned Frogs in two successive week ends.

Frankie Sinkwich and Company have been demanding recognition all season for Georgia as the No. 1 football team of the nation. This week the Bulldogs rule the roost in that coveted position after their all-america last quarter performance to turn in a 21 to 10 victory over Alabama, the Williamson system top team for the last three weeks. With that great performance Georgia remains unbeaten and untied for the 1942 season.

What's more Georgia Tech is No. 2 of the nation. That's what the cold figures say. Never before in the history of football ratings have two teams from the same state held the top positions for any one week. Georgia Tech knocked off Duke 26 to 7 retaining its unbeaten and untied record. What a game it'll be November 28 when the Georgia Bulldogs and the Rambling Wrecks of Georgia Tech clash for their season finale at Atlanta.

Position No. 3 goes to Boston College by virtue of one of the most remarkable displays of power in years when the Eagles smothered their rival Georgetown squad 47 to 0. Incidentally Boston College is the only team that has defeated the top-notch North Carolina Pre-Fighters.

At Spot No. 4 is Wisconsin. The cry already has gone out the Wisconsin's 17 to 7 victory over Ohio State was the biggest upset of the past week. It was no upset for the Williamson system who definitely picked the Wisconsin Badgers over the Buckeyes of Ohio State.

The other six of the 10 national leaders this week are, in the order named: Alabama: undefeated and unscored on, Tulsa for it's 40-0 blanking of Drake, Notre Dame for a 9 to 0 victory over Navy; Tennessee for beating L. S. U. 26 to 0; Louisiana State; and Michigan for trouncing Illinois 28 to 14.

The Williamson system's win-or-lose record last week was better than the previous week, but still under its season average. In 189 games reported, including late returns from the previous week, there were 34 upsets and two up-setting ties. That gave a win-or-lose-percentage of 81.5 correct.
