American Students Help War Prisoners

Relief to students who are prisoners of war—just what is it? What do they need, and what is done for them with the money given by American students through the World Student Service Fund?

The regulations concerning prisoners-of-war were established by international convention in Geneva in 1929. According to this convention, the belligerent powers which hold prisoners must feed them the same food, in amount and quality, which they give their own soldiers of the same rank. Clothing and shelter of specified adequacy must be provided. Officers may not be required to work, though enlisted men may be given work of non-military nature. All the belligerents are observing these regulations. It is interesting to know what the only international law observed today are these regulations regarding prisoners of war.

The problem of a prison camp, then, becomes a problem not of food and clothing but of morale. Nowhere in the world is there as much leisure time as today in the prison camps of the world. Nowhere is there greater boredom, more complete discouragement, lower morale. Time hangs heavy indeed.

The World Student Service Fund, through its administering committee in Geneva, is meeting some of these intellectual and spiritual problems among prisoners-of-war who were students or professors when they entered the army. Travelling secretaries visit the camps, gain the confidence of the commandant, and then are able to work directly with the men. Classes are organized ranging from dentistry and architecture to theology. Requests are made for books which are sent in. Recreational equipment is provided; and soon soft-ball, soccer, basketball teams may be organized. Phonographs and records are sometimes provided. When it has been possible to get musical instruments, enthusiastic orchestras or string quartettes have been the result. Worship groups and study clubs have been spontaneously formed.

The boost to morale is remarkable. Life takes on new meaning as hope returns. Here is the salvaging of human material, of the leadership necessity to the reconstruction of the world after the war is over.

"There have been numerous cases where registrants have been suspected of delinquency, or reported as delinquents, only because they failed to report to their local board that they had enlisted in some branch of the armed forces.

"The delinquency program is designated to locate for compliance delinquents innocent of wrongful intent to the end that local board delinquency records will not be burdened with cases where the registrant is no longer delinquent and that the records of the F.B.I. may be cleared for vigorous action by February 1, 1943, against deliberate violators."

Cases of known violators, General Page pointed out, are reported to a United State District Attorney for prosecution under Section 11 of the Selective Training and Service Act of 1940, as amended.

General Page said that the Selective Service Regulations have recently been amended to require that every registrant, who has been liable for training and service for six months or more, shall have a Notice of Classification in his personal possession at all times, and that failure to do so shall be considered a violation of the Act and punishable as a Federal offense.

Plastics to Play Vital Part in War

Not only are plastic parts used in the manufacture of vital war products but they are also better than metal for some heavy-duty applications in steel mills, Dr. G. Frank D'Alieio, head of the General Electric plastics laboratory at Pittsfield, Mass., declared in a General Electric Science Forum address.

For military use there are plastic helmet liners, plastic parts in every gas mask, and plastic bayonet handles, according to Dr. D'Alieio, whose company is the largest molder of plastics in the industry. He said that the average battleship has more than a thousand different plastic parts on it, and each tank and airplane contains hundreds of plastic parts. Mortar shells have plastic fuse caps, and bombers have plastic noses. Training planes, landing barges, torpedo boats and invasion gliders are made of plastic-bonded plywood.

Plastics are found in super-charger manufacture, in gun control mechanisms, in radio antenna housings. Firing pins of anti-aircraft shells are made of plastics. There are plastic detonators on torpedoes.

Dr. D'Alieio also mentioned that many of our new vessels will have plastic bearings on their drive shafts, because plastic bearings wear longer and can take tougher punishment than any other bearing. "The development of the plastics industry in the last few years, frankly, has been astonishing," Dr. D'Alieio pointed out.

The wonderful wartime developments in the plastics industry indicate that after the war we will find plastics for much greater importance in our everyday life, said Dr. Alelio. He predicts that houses will have a great deal of construction embodying plastics, and that our everyday clothing will be made of plastic materials.

Intramurals By Mike Mann

By defeating M Infantry in the Class B football semi-finals, the K Infantry team moved into the finals and cinched a tie for the Freshman Intramural Championship for the second semester. Tied with the Infantry team is F Field Artillery. Both of the clubs have 305 points.

However, W. L. Penberthy of the Intramural Dept. stated that the coveted Intramural flag will be awarded to one of the two. The winner will be determined later, he said.

Also noticeable was the climb of A Coast Artillery to sixth place. Winning their second championship in two weeks yesterday, (they won volley ball last week) they advanced to sixth with a total of 266.6 points.

A list of the first ten teams and their scores follows:

Table with 2 columns: Team Name, Score. Includes K Infantry, F. Field Artillery, I Coast Artillery, B Infantry, Hq. Signal Corps, A Coast Artillery, H Coast Artillery, E Field Artillery, E Infantry, C Engineers.

February 18—57 Engineer Seniors to Fort Belvoir.

February 7—31 Signal Corps Seniors to Fort Monmouth.

February 11—42 Ordnance Seniors to Aberdeen Proving Grounds.

February 24—29 Chemical Warfare Service to Edgewood Arsenal.

February 13—48 Quartermaster Seniors to Camp Lee.

March 2—16 Air Force Seniors to Miami Beach.

February 7—20 Seniors for Armored Force (Cavalry and Infantry) to Camp Hood.

February 13—16 Seniors for the Tank Destroyer Unit (Cavalry, Infantry and Field Artillery) to Camp Hood.

The purpose of this voluntary induction is to transfer the seniors after getting in the army as a draftee to an inactive reserve status, in other words, they must be in the ERC before they can be called to duty, stated Lieutenant Colonel L. W. Marshall.

After enlisting, the local board will send the seniors to an induction center where they will be made corporals and will remain there for a brief period until their time to be sent to their respective base training camps for officer candidate training.

They have an average of 52 points in three starts while the Owls haven't scored 52 points in one game so far. If Manning Smith's quint can hit the stride shown against T.C.U., they have a fair chance to emerge victors. Dawson will probably have the task of guarding Class. He did a good job against Kinney last year when the Aggies pulled their upset.
