trying out, and let them know that you still want a No. 1 team this year.

The 1943 baseball season began yesterday afternoon on Kyle Field with the first official practice of the year. Even though it may seem that the team is hampered by the loss of many members of the last year's championship team, this year's team has a very excellent opportunity to repeat what Lil Dimmitt and his team did last year. Experienced boys are in practically every position except right field and first base. Coach Norton announced that he would welcome any newcomers to the team that believe they can play either of these positions.

With Daniels and Rogers in the outfield, Glass and Peden in the infield, not forgetting Carden and Turner as pitchers, plenty of action can be assured this year.

Just as baseball is getting under way football spring training is ending. This spring session ends Thursday afternoon and as Coach Norton always says: There is nothing like a good ending and even though there are only three days more left they will be well accounted for, as was last Saturday afternoon when the Whites downed the Maroons. Thus, Thursday night 48 more Aggies will be writing "the end" to another page in A. & M. football history. Whether or not another page will be started only time can tell. Here's hopin'!

Closs of the Owls leads with 197 and has a pretty good chance to remain in the lead after the final game for it will take more than 37 points for Hargis in the final game to get into the lead. Clayton Wynne of Arkansas is tied for third with Harvis, with 160 each. Lee Huffman is now running fifth place but in Wednesday night's game if Huffman can tally some 13 points he will be sure of third place in the scoring race.

INVEST IN VICTORY!

Our boys can take the War to the enemy, if we back them up with ships and tanks and guns! But that takes money!
Help your Government to put the tools of war into the hands of our soldiers by purchasing War Savings Bonds and Stamps. And remember... just one Bond can't lick the Axis any more than just one gun! It takes millions of Americans buying War Savings Bonds and Stamps every pay day!
Bonds cost $18.75 and up... and they pay you back one-third more in only 10 years! Stamps cost 10¢, 25¢, and up... soon total the price of a Bond if bought regularly.

Q. In what names may a War Savings Bond be issued?
A. War Bonds can be registered only in the names of individuals in their own right, in one of the following forms:
1. The name of one individual, or
2. The names of two individuals, as co-owners, or
3. The name of one individual as owner and the other individual as beneficiary.

Q. May a Bond be registered in the name of a minor?
A. Yes.

By Gib Crockett.

Q. How can I buy a Bond by mail from agencies other than a post office?
A. Write to the Treasurer of the United States for an order form or send a letter with a check to the Treasury Department or to a Federal Reserve bank stating number and denominations of Bonds wanted and giving complete instructions as to the desired registration.

Q. Can Bonds be attached for debt in case of a judgment?
A. Yes. The right to receive payment of a Bond may be transferred through valid judicial proceedings, but only if the Bond itself is surrendered to the Treasury Department. See Treasury Department Circular No. 530, Fifth Revision.

Remember—the longer you keep War Bonds, up to 10 years, the more valuable they become.

Army Air Corps Eaglets Poised for Flight

Ready to soar aloft, these future pilots of the expanding Army Air Corps at Randolph Field, Texas, mount their aerial steeds for a training flight. Military fliers are being trained in ever-increasing numbers at Uncle Sam's giant "West Point of the Air." Their low wing monoplanes have a top speed of 175 miles an hour but this is a snail's pace when compared to the 400-mile-an-hour craft the defenders of our skies will fly after they get their wings not many weeks from now.

New North East Gate Planned As Future Entrance to Campus

By Jim Gabbard
North Gate, East Gate, West Gate—confusing perhaps, but these are just some of the ways of "coming to college" here at A. & M. Soon there'll be another, the North-east Gate. It's just part of the road-building program going on north of the campus.
In fact the new "gate" will be only an incidental part of a mile-long boulevard which is being built along the northern boundary of the campus and a new direct-route highway to Bryan.
The boulevard, when completed, will replace the old Sulphur Springs Road, giving a modern, convenient approach to the College and the business district.

Branching from the boulevard near the old College water wells, the highway goes directly north-west, joining the "old No. 6" near Union Hill. Sections of it lie along the old Bryan-College trolley right-of-way. This road will probably become a favorite route for Bryan-College traffic, as it will be considerably shorter than existing roads and will provide a prettier drive, as much of it cuts through the wooded sections of Hensel Park and North Oakwood.

The next time your "old lady" tells of thumbing to Bryan from the North-east Gate don't write his parents about things until you've gone to check; maybe he's right—it's coming.

farm population toward the present world conflict and the post-war settlement. Author of two books on Indian farm life, member of the Indian National Committee for Basic Education, member of the Bombay Presidency Educational Board, and for many years identified with the cooperative credit movement and agricultural extension service of the country, he was given official recognition by Great Britain in May, 1941, when he was awarded the Empire Medal for Public Service. One of his books, "The Indian Farmer Speaks," is now in the press. The other, "Education and Rural Improvement," has been translated into the vernacular languages and is widely used by education departments throughout India.

Recently, while waiting to return to India he has been engaged in a study of land tenure in the Texas Black Prairie being conducted by the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station in the Temple area. His analysis of Indian affairs is the more pertinent for this five months' experience in working on Texas farm problems.

Schoolboy Cage Race Finishes With Tourney This Week

Austin, Texas will be the scene of the Texas High School basketball tournament this week end when the schoolboys meet to determine the state championship. Twenty-four teams will participate in the week end tournament that finds teams from all points in Texas gathering.

Eight representatives, each from class AA, A and B will be represented in the meet, the contestants being decided in last week's eliminations. Established as top favorite in the class AA contest will be Jeff Davis of Houston, out to defend the title they took home with them last year. Another titlist that is back trying for a repeat is little Slidell, who copped the Class B title last year, and is rated tops to do it again, as three men from last year's team are back sinking them. Sidney Lanier of San Antonio is ranked tops in the Class A bracket, with Van last year's champ, failing to make the grade this year.

Teams battling for the state championship are:
Class AA—Amarillo, Bowie (El Paso), Highland Park (Dallas), Crozier Tech (Dallas), Waco, Lufkin, Jeff Davis (Houston) and Austin.

Class A—Lakeview, Anson, Holiday, Mount Vernon, Sabine, French (Beaumont), Sidney Lanier (San Antonio) and Aransas Pass.
Class B—Idalou, Sidney, Slidell, Midway, Leona, Fayetteville, Ingleside, and Big Lake.

The tournament starts at 9:00 o'clock Thursday morning and is to be concluded Saturday night.

CAPITOL to CAMPUS

A. C. P.'s Correspondent Reports from Washington

Education in Arms
As college administrators wait with crossed fingers, guesses on the date for selection of schools for the Army-Navy college training program have been moved a notch to March 1.

A nine-man board representing Army, Navy, and War Manpower is plowing through questionnaires describing facilities of nearly every college in the country. Secretary of War Stimson warned schools it will do no good to try lobbying for their institutions. Colleges are taking the hint.

Meanwhile, Bri. Gen. Joe N. Dalton, the Army's assistant chief of staff for personnel, has made a point of clarifying the status of men who will eventually enter the specialized training courses.
"The trainee is not a college boy in uniform," says General Dalton. "He's a dough-boy in a military unit located at a college. This program is not designed to offer a nice, soft spot for young men who have been inducted into the service."

Government Girls
The lot of a white collar girl in Washington is not exactly a happy one. Her folks at home fondly think she's getting a heavy tan from sharing the spotlight with big shots, growing giddy in the whirl along embassy row, and making big money. Those who don't know her think she's primping on taxpayer's money. Congressional growlers picture her as a cross between a reliever and a shiftless squatter.

Actually, she's a hard worker who has a tough time looking trim on $1,440. She gets homesick more often than she'll admit. Her morale may not be much—but it's all she has to keep her going.

And now her morale has had three quick lifts. Congress raised her pay by giving her time and a quarter for overtime she's worked unpaid for months. A hospitality committee has finally started working to help her meet service men—an important matter in a town without enough young men to go around.

And no less a personage than Mr. FDR has told Congress to its face that government workers are doing jobs that must be done to win the war.

High time, too, say the government girls.

War and the Faculty
The U. S. Office of Education has the war war toll figures on college faculties now. It says 8,000 left campuses in the last year for the armed services, government, war industry, or other fields.

Faculties shrank by about 5 per cent, with numbers of men teachers dropping 7.5 per cent. Replacements increased the numbers of women teachers by 1.3 per cent.

Stirred by the exodus, some schools boosted salaries and retained staff members beyond retirement age. Close to 100 schools have abolished such non-teaching functions as research and supervision of student activities.

History in Class 1-A
Alexander Meiklejohn, author of "Education Between Two Worlds" and educator with ideas of his own, sides with those who approve the Army-Navy college training programs in these words:

"I am not saying that a young man will get a good education by going into the hell of war. I am only saying that, if he is fit to fight, he will get a bad education by staying out of it."

Work To Be Done
An "urgent" call has come from the Civil Service Commission for college women to take federal jobs as junior engineers at $2,600. Tuition-free, government sponsored 10-week training courses, now under way at many colleges, will qualify those without engineering training.

The new man on the OPA hot seat, ex-Senator Prentiss Brown of Michigan, should chalk up a good batting record. At little Albion college in his home state, he played baseball for four years, topping the team in hitting. He went on to play semi-pro baseball in the Upper Peninsula leagues.
