Aggies Must Stop "Red" Maley, Punch Holes in NTAC Line to Win Today's Game

Well, it looks as if today we'll either get ourselves a powerful licking or a very rosy writeup in tomorrow's papers. It's bound to be one of the two, and if the game is a tie it will probably be the latter, just by way of showing what the sports experts think of those N. T. A. C. boys. Latest dope says the North Texas line will average 204.6 pounds and the backfield close behind with 195. Now those are some fairly big boys to go fooling around with, especially when you are trying to outrun them and still maintain your hold on that old pigskin too.

While we will have plenty of trouble trying to cope with that line there's one thing certain that we must do, and that thing is to stop Red Maley and his passing. If the Aggie line can't get in fast enough to knock Maley down half the time, we will be a bunch of sad sights when Saturday night rolls around.

Of course we've got some fine boys. Bryant, Turley and Monnerief are in good condition and really have plenty of spirit, but you can't pit a boy of 17 against an experienced college man and expect him to make up the difference in guts. It just doesn't happen that way.

So, the first order of the day is: "Stop Maley."

Now for the N-Tac line, and what a line! All college stars, none weighing less than 195, they will be a Maginot line for the North Texas gridsters. The ends will be playing wide to frustrate any Cadet running plays and brother, those boys are stable! Of course, if we had trouble of pile drivers rigged up on wheels . . . but back to business. The second order of the day, especially for the Aggie line: "Hit that line!"

That does for the defense. As far as the offense is concerned it will be largely a matter of just how many times we can click with what we've got. The third order for the day is "Hit them hard and fast and then do it again harder and faster!"

Should we accomplish all of these orders we should win, and your scribe is really pulling for the

Rules and Results Of Intramural Games Announced

Touch Football And Basketball Games Up Now

The first week of Intra-mural competition got into full swing this week with games in both football and basketball being played. Nearly all games were played and those forfeited were forfeited because one or both of the teams showed up late. Athletic officers should call their players attention to the starting time for intramural games, which is 5:10.

In the case of football games, each team must have at least seven players on hand and ready to play at 5:10.

Intramural competition in football will be over, except for the play off, by Thanksgiving. Basketball play will be over about a week after Thanksgiving with the exception of the playoff. As soon as these are gotten out of the way, competition in new sports will be begun. In the meantime there will be an intramural cross country track meet November 21-22, the week-end before Thanksgiving.

Results in the games played this week were as follows: Football—O Co. 12, Band 6; N Co. 7; B Co. 6; C Co. 6; A Co. 0; and 4th Co. 27; G Co. 0. Basketball—K Co. 17; H Co. 12; 5th Co. 25; Band 12; E Co. 10; O Co. 6; 2nd Hq. Co. 18; C Co. 16; and 4th Hq. Co. 12; 3 Hq. Co. 11.

old Alma Mater because he, and that means me, took the Aggies by two T. D.'s last Thursday. Since then Pete Stout has returned to the N-Tac line-up and my prediction should be revised accordingly, but there's a feeling of high tension in the air so I'm afraid that my guess will either have to stand as it is or be buried. The Aggies by two T. D.'s. (At least we can dream) See you at the game!

CADETS BLAST TCU RUNNING PLAY—This shot from last week's game reveals why the Frogs couldn't get anywhere. TCU back has just attempted to run the left side of the Aggie line and is being pulled down by Bob Gary, defensive line backer. Bob Butchofsky and Marion Setegast may be seen coming to assist the tackle. At right the AGGIES AND FROGS SCRAMBLE for a fumbled pigskin. One of many fumbles in last week's game; the TCU back was hit hard at the center of the line and fumbled. The Aggies recovered.

Coach Norton came to A. & M. from Centenary College where he coached the famed Gentlemen. He has made an enviable record with the Cadets and is looking forward to Thanksgiving Day at Kyle Field when he hopes to avenge the defeat of the Aggies last year in Austin.

Football Figurin' ---

By R. L. Weatherly

Last week we met the Aggie team. This week we have facts about the team as a whole.

In the past few years the Aggies have had a much heavier, older and experienced team than that of this year's team. But lacking bulk, age and experience the Aggie team of '43, has made quite a record for itself. In four games they have won four games. They massacred the Bryan Field team by a score of 48-6. The Aggies held Texas Tech scoreless for four quarters to win 13-0. They tangled with the L. S. U. Tigers and came out on top with 28 points to their opponents 13. Last week they proved their strength by whipping TCU 13-0.

The average age of the football teams is seventeen. The oldest men at nineteen are: Bob Butchofsky, Adolph Eberle, Marion Flanagan, Otto Granzin, Thomas League and Bing Turner. The youngsters of the squad are 16 and include Bobby McCarry, James Ezell, Charles Shira and Joseph Sacra.

Five feet, eleven inches is about the average height of the team. The giants of the team at six feet and three inches are Billy Bunting, Charles Bruno, Jess Moore, Charles Shira and Charles Wright. The "shorty" of the squad is Thomas Murnana at the height of five feet and six inches.

The average weight of the Aggie squad is about 179 pounds. The average weight of the first string is 172 pounds. This is light comparable to other teams of the Southwest Conference.

The experience of the Aggie team averages about two years of high school experience. This is odd because of the ruling before the war for playing, as a man had to be a sophomore or better to play for the varsity team.

Now of this Week's Predictions We find ourselves in much difficulty in trying to pick the outcome of the Aggie-NTAC game. The Aggies have won every game they have played up to date. Yet the NTAC team is a strong team composed of many Southwest Conference stars of last year. It is true that NTAC lost two games to Southwestern, but Southwestern is one of the strongest teams in the south, so this game seems to be a toss-up and a flip of the coin would be gambling. Therefore, we pick the Aggies by a touchdown—7-0 is the score of the NTAC game with the Aggies on top.

The S. M. U. Mustangs tangle with the Tulane Green Waves this week. The Mustangs proved nothing by beating the Rice Owls last week by a score of 12-0. This year Rice is weaker than tea in Japan. To prove their strength the Green Waves rolled up a score of 32-0 against Rice. Since Tulane entertains SMU in New Orleans, we pick Tulane by a score of 20-7.

Rice invades Austin to get whipped this week. The Texas team has more than proved their strength in holding the Southwestern team to 13 points while they were able to chalk up 7. Rice has lost every game this season and this is no time to start winning. We pick Texas 26 and Rice 0.

Arkansas goes to Mississippi to play NATC this week. The trip will be too much for the Razorbacks so expect Arkansas to fall to NATC at the score of 7-0.

TCU will play Oklahoma A.&M. this week. This game is another hard one to pick. The TCU Horned Frogs have lost and won a game. The Aggies from Oklahoma are strong this year so we pick them 13-0.

Now for the Stars of the TCU-Aggie game

Hallmark stood out on ground and in the air for the Aggies. His passing to Butchofsky and Flanagan respectively made the two touchdowns.

Flanagan lived up to his scabbard ability by catching a pass from Hallmark and racing through the TCU team for a touchdown.

Butchofsky came up with a nice catch to score the first touchdown for the Aggies. He did yeoman work as a blocker, too.

Turner turned in his usually good play at fullback by punting superbly. His kickoff thrills the crowd also.

Herb Turley and Goble Bryant stood out in the Aggie line both on defense and offense.

TCU's mainstays were Charley Flowers and Jim Lucas. Flowers twinkled in the line while Lucas carried the blunt of the offense for TCU.

All in all both teams played good ball and the best team came out on top.

Courses in war economics, economic geography, transportation, income tax procedure, general accounting and international economic policies are but a few of the studies to be presented this fall by the University of Kentucky college of Commerce, which have a direct bearing on the war effort.

At the beginning of the season the entire college decided to "adopt" a football team and after a careful scrutiny of the country's grid teams, they decided to focus their attention on Michigan.
