Trimming Tabs Squadron I

Well, gents now that we are veteran pilots the news may be told. Misters Iffrig, Summers, Benson, and Estelle would like to have a large thick, juicy steak before they take off every day. Did you get very sick, Beavers?

Department of Hangar-Flying heard amongst the sofa flies: so I says, "Well, instructor there are two kinds of cake, chocolate cake and stomach-ache, and I ain't got not chocolate cake. Please, take me down."

Definition of crabbing into the wind—You have to make it look like you is when you ain't. In other words your flying one way and going another.

I wonder what Bob Herndon thinks about when he is flying. No sooner is he told to do a 45 degree turn he does a spin. Are the instructors too fast for you, Bob?

Oh! my, all you red-headed boys please bring back your natural hair. Hear the other night: You have that hair restored in 24 hours or I'll give you a tour. By the way Misters Stantart and Powers, what color hair have you really? "Lady" Love is fixing to wash it out at the swimming pool.

Richiliano wants a refund for the sandwich he had at the North Gate before he went flying Thursday. He was sorry that he didn't bring it back in front of the restaurant, instead of at the field.

This flight 18 is really getting into print. Are you trying to make up for the time when you didn't exist? If anybody on the campus hears a bunch of "Ughs", don't mistake it for a lot of Indians sounding off. It is only 18 counting Indian cadence. You have finally succeeded in obtaining attention for yourselves.

When that gentleman drives you to and from the airport, don't tell him contact, kick that right rudder, and use that stick. He is only driving a bus and not one of these big, heavy Interstate Kadets that you handle.

Well Gentlemen, tonight is the night of the "Wing Ball", and it is also tonight that we will formally present the Sweetheart of the 208th CTD. Remember that you are a member of Squadron I, when you try to get a dance with her. Don't let her refuse you, but most of all, don't let any of the other gentlemen (wolves) of the other squadrons beat you to her. Come early to the Ball, because a gala ceremony has been planned for the presentation.

If we are to have more news, the reporters will have to find a car some place (with gas), and follow you free-time gentlemen around. Not being able to type out any more stuff, we will close.

Wing News

As Editor-In-Chief of the ACTD News and in behalf of the entire Detachment I welcome you to the campus of Texas A. & M. Since the day the results were out the students have all been anxious to see the girl who was picked as Sweetheart of the 308th College Training Detachment out of 135 entries. Now that you are here the excitement still runs rampant. We understand that you prefer to be called "Pat". So it will be Pat with us from here on out. Pat we are very glad to have you with us and honored that you accepted our invitation. We sincerely hope that you thoroughly enjoy your stay. At all times free to call upon any member or any detachment organization, honor board, contest committee, wing ball committee, or any of the officers for anything which you may need.

For the benefit of any of our readers who may not have heard of our contest before, the aviation students of this detachment organized and conducted a contest to determine by photographs who would be elected the Sweetheart of the Detachment. There were 135 pictures submitted for judgment covering nearly every state in the union. Out of this group the Contest Committee picked the top ten and turned them over to our Wing Honor Board. This student group then selected the winning five. Miss Travis was selected as first place winner and the contest committee awarded her a trip down here to reign over our Wing Ball tonight. At the Wing Ball tonight she will be presented as our detachment sweetheart and awarded a $100.00 War Bond.

Pat has traveled all the way from South Bend, Indiana, where she is attending St. Mary's College, to be with us tonight. Her home town is Oklahoma City, Oklahoma. A brief description of her might be: 5'6" tall, weighs 120 pounds, black hair, brown eyes, catching smile, and amiable personality. At St. Mary's College she has a straight "A" scholastic record. Twice (in 1942 and 1941) she has been selected Queen at the Senior Dances at Notre Dame University. Pat's brother, Thomas Travis, who is taking pre-aviation cadet training here submitted the picture for the contest. Pat's parents, whom she hasn't seen since September, are making the trip to College Station to be with Pat and Tom over the week end.

In a later issue of the Battalion and local papers watch for a picture of Pat. This morning at 11:30 Pat will be interviewed over radio station WTAW on the program "Listen Ladies"

Pat, her brother, chaperone, and Mr. Scolari of the committee will enter the dance hall twenty minutes after the dance begins, immediately following the honor guard. The presentation will take place right after this.

numbers, but in this film she looks and acts like a glamorous screen star as well. Robert Paige in the juvenile role and Leon Errol and Walter Catlett in the comic parts give usual good performances. Altogether, it's a pleasing effort with several tinkling tunes, eye-filling sets, and a plot that does not require too much concentration. Catlett, a Broadway producer, sells the idea to a group of hotelmen to back the show. Paige, a song writer, buys out the entire house. Frances finds out about the deception and leaves the show flat on the opening night. With the aid of Paige she is found and returns to the theater in time. The Lone Star state plays a prominent part in the film.
The Lowdown: La Langford is as good as always.

FOR WINGS WE EARN

By R. T. Minohr

Within our midst we have some men
On whom our future plans depend
They try to help each single one
But get no thanks for all they've done.

First let's disband with silly pranks
And do good work to show our thanks
So on your toes and let's be eager
And earn that name of "Eager Beaver."

This is no place where you can loaf
Unless you want to be an Oaf.
And if that's all that you desire
Then from this school you should retire.

So let's not be misled by some Who all their life will just be bums
But let's dig in and try to learn
The things it takes, our wings to earn . . .

Hangar Flying Squadron III

This is old 66 with the usual trash about the unusual trash. (We apologize, but we couldn't get anything to rhyme with trash)
. . . The book of the month for November is "Who Done It" or "Lay That Whistle Down". It concerns a quaint character who lives in solitude in a haunted house called "Giggem Manor". This character is robbed of his most priceless possession, a G. I. Whistle. He in turn steals one from his landlord, and there you have the plot. Don't miss this one; it's really a puzzler. All kidding aside Sgt. Reagle, what did happen to your whistle . . .

What was that package that was sent through the mail to Mister Mrunner. They say it really gave him an "up-lift". From what we have seen of Mister Brunner's choice in the female line the size of that thing gives us the idea that someone is using the mails to defraud . . . Who is the party that hollers "George Washington" every time the Squadron Commander passes in that new bonnet. He may look a little odd in that thing but don't rub it in fellows he may lose it—we hope. . . What are these mad carrying on that occur nightly in Ramp 2. We presume that since Mister Shambolin has been released from exile in Oklahoma and has begun to associate with civilized folk he just can't contain himself. Incidentally Lenzie is quite an authority on New York City. He doesn't think much of the big town because he spent three hours there and so he thinks he knows it inside and out . . .

It seems our friend Mister Kueck has gotten himself a blind date for the ball. A word of advice Mister Kueck. We had a blind date once, and she was six feet tall and had green hair, so watch yourself. Then again after looking at you we figure she is getting the better end of the deal. We wish she could see you in those orange gym shorts . . . The basket ball team came through again, led by Norris and Koupal, and really laid in on Squadron II to the score of 53 to 21. Congratulations boys let's keep it up . . .

In about eight hours from now you gentlemen are going to get the eye full of your life. The Detachment Queen will be presented at the Ball, and the presentation will be made by Mister Scolari. Let's get there early, because its going to be worth seeing . . . I guess that about winds it up for this time except we are all looking forward to Mister Kueck's date. What do you say we all out in on her. She'll probably be grateful . . . See you 66.

"EXHAUST" Squadron V

Pardon me buddy have you got a match? Thanks. Got a moment to spare—fine I'll tell you a little story about a cute knife in a man's back. It was my back and the knife was put there by Mr. Turner who wrote this column last week. Who am I? Sorry—forgot to tell you—my name is Andy, short for Jimmy Anderson. You see it all began by A/S Turner making a wise crack about my buying Old Spice to meet Miss Travis coming in on the train tomorrow. The answer to that $64.00 question is that Mr. McGinnis of Squadron III is meeting her. Of course, I'll be in the vicinity. (And OLD SPICE isn't my brand either). Now if I just told all I know about Mr. Turner's grandmother's in Dallas and his aunt's in Houston there would be a riot of shot-gun totin' farmers down to C. S. looking for one each well worn aviation student.

Cooperation is an appreciated virtue. Certainly no one could say Squadron V hasn't given plenty of cooperation in helping to put the Wing Ball across. Carpenters, electricians, artists, and others are taking their own time to do work in getting the decorations across. Others are taking care of the business end of it. All the squadrons have put extra zeal into this Wing Ball to make it go across bigger and better than ever before.
Mr. Collins, we have all heard of mental telepathy, but what is this physical telepathy we are hearing rumors about?

There is another feud going on in these parts now—a-days. Borsani versus Stanton, Battle of the Combs, no holds barred. Commando tactics approved.
It seems that A/S Rau, Mazman, Javedas, and two unidentified Sq. V students executed an oblique movement across the street to salute a very pretty WAC lieutenant the other day. How about that. She said she was framed. (The wolves howl)

Squadron V extends a cordial welcome to Miss Travis, the winner of our Detachment Sweetheart Contest. Perhaps the honor guard had best sharpen up their sabers to keep all the wolves at bay. Certainly this is the only detachment ever to have a hybrid between an Eager Beaver and Wolves. So with a parting thought, "Just think — Good day."

Spotlight on Sports

Squadron V quintet defeated Squadron IV, Thursday night after being defeated by Squadron III on Tuesday night. It was a close game, Squadron IV leading up to the last quarter. Squadron V came back in the last quarter to win by 51 to 40. Scott of Squadron V made 25 points to take high scoring honors. Squadron IV set a fast pace, but tired toward the end of the game. A few more times on that 1:6/10 mile will get them in top condition.

Saturday will be a nice day for a little football—To all Squadrons: don't forget to schedule a game. A game of football ought to set you right for the Wing Ball that night.

Thursday night the sharpshooters from Squadron III ran over the Squadron II quintet by a score of 58 to 21. Squadron II had the game under control all the way. Koupal and Norris hit the loop for 14 points for high point honors; following closely behind was Kueck who scored 10.

From Thursday paper we gather the Texas University and A. & M. rivalry has come to a keen edge. A great deal of admiration is due to the young Aggie players, who have won their games through hard fighting and plenty of spirit. We're sure the Aggies will hold their own.

THOUGHT for the day: "It is not the individual or the Army as a whole, but the everlasting teamwork of every Blooming soul."
—Kipling.

LOST One gold ear ring around campus in vicinity of YMCA. If found contact Mrs. T. Evans, Hotel Charles in Bryan.

Baylor University will operate a campus radio station this year. The station will be powered to reach only the dormitories, rooming houses and other buildings on the campus itself.

Now that the field is clear perhaps a reporter who has before remained in the background just offering suggestions can add something to this article. What prominent Squadron V man has been seen in town with a lovely lady whose rickname is Marjorie Harrison. Thanks for the tip H. P.
