Campus Theater Aids March of Dimes Campaign

Theater Patrons Urged To Put Dimes in One Of Lobby Containers

Plans have been made by the Campus theater to support the March of Dimes which is a national institution beginning on January 24th and lasting through January 30th, the date of the president's birthday, it was announced today by the manager. Every Aggie, serviceman, and patron of the theater is urged to contribute to this worthy cause, aiding those who are stricken with Infantile Paralysis and cannot help themselves.

In the lobby of the Campus, patrons will find containers representing the 48 states in the union. It is to be a battle of the states with each trying to see if their state can't contribute the most. This should particularly interest servicemen who are here from out-of-state and have listened to Texans talk of the "best state in the union". This will give the people from Texas a chance to see that they have the best representation. As for the containers, a dime is all that is asked for. No one will miss such a small amount of money so it is urged that every person who enters drop a dime in.

A score of the contributions by states will be kept by day; it will be kept there all week. It is urged again that everyone who can help in this worthy cause; those who are helped by the money that is given will need it.

Officer of Camp Swift, Aggie-Ex, Sent to Camp Hood

Col. Kurtz Replaces Thirkeld, Who Goes To Cavalry Outfit

Col. Lawrence A. Kurtz, formerly commanding officer of Camp Swift, has been named commanding officer of Camp Hood to succeed Col. C. M. Thirkeld, who has been transferred to Fort Clark after 18 months as head of one of the Army's largest and most completely equipped military installations.

A native Texan and a graduate of A. & M. College, Col. Kurtz is expected to assume his new duties Thursday. Col. Thirkeld will become commanding officer of Fort Clark, a cavalry camp at Brackettville, Texas.

Col. Kurtz has served more than 26 years in the Army, having been commissioned a second lieutenant of Field Artillery in 1917 upon graduation from A. & M. with an electrical engineering degree. During World War I he served in California and elsewhere in this country and later was on duty with the Army of Occupation in Germany and France. Duty also carried him to other countries and to numerous posts in the United States.

Prior to being named post commander of Camp Swift, Col. Kurtz built and commanded the Fort Sill Reception Center. He assumed command of the then incomplete Camp Swift in April, 1941, and activated the post on May 4. Under his command, Camp Swift has become one of the outstanding camps in the country.

Col. Kurtz has three children, a son, Lawrence A. Kurtz, Jr., a graduate of the U. S. Naval Academy, now on duty as a lieutenant in the South Pacific; a daughter of Washington, D. C.; and a younger daughter who resides with his mother, Mrs. Florida Kurtz, at Smithville, Texas.

Col. Thirkeld has been commanding officer at Camp Hood since July, 1942. He came to Camp Hood as executive officer under Maj. Gen. A. D. Bruce, then commanding general of the Tank Destroyer Center, long before the opening of the camp, however, and in July, 1942, took over the task of administration, operations and maintenance. In May of 1943, with the activation of North Camp Hood, he became commander of the combined facilities of the two installations.

Entering the Army during World War I, Col. Thirkeld served with the Seventh Division. He received training with the 80th field artillery at Camp MacArthur, Waco, and also served with the 12th field artillery at Fort Sam Houston. He has had two tours of duty in Hawaii.

On assignment from the regular army, he was an instructor in artillery at Louisiana State University, Baton Rouge, before coming to Camp Hood.
