At one time or another every one gets the urge to write. Are you interested in writing? Do you think that you can? Even if you aren't very interested in writing but would be interested in spending an hour a week—come up to room 213 in the First Dorm this evening after chow. Things are happening in every Company and why shouldn't you be the one to report it. Anything you write will appear in the paper PROVIDED it passes the censor, and I will do my best to see that it does. This evening I would like to see my room so full of you fellows that a can of sardines will look like the wide open spaces. There is no reason why our section can't be as good if not better than all the others. Everyone gets a chance so—COME ONE, COME ALL.

Tokens of Remembrance

Owen D. Baker

I watched a bird
As it spanned the sky
With wings of rainbow hue;
It sang a song
As it glided by
Through the realms of azure blue.

A feather fell
In slow descent
From up above to me;
I picked it up
And pressed it close
In later hours to see.

The song I keep
Within my heart
'Til all alone and blue;
I view the quill
And sing the song
Peace and hope to renew.

Navy Program Will Be Maintained

Washington—Read Adm. Randall Jacobs, chief of naval personnel, declares "the navy department has no plans to discontinue" its college training program. Jacobs said his bureau "has recently received a number of inquiries concerning reports that the navy college program may be stopped."

In a statement, he declared: "The U. S. Navy is still expanding. The urgent need for technically trained young officers continues, and the colleges and universities participating in the V-12 program are doing a splendid job of producing such officers. While changing wartime conditions may, from time to time, necessitate revision in the quotas for the program in order to conform with the needs of the service, the navy does not contemplate discontinuance of the program."

AVMA Meets On Wednesday Night

Wednesday night, February 23, at 7:15 o'clock, the Junior Chapter of the A.V.M.A. will meet in the amphitheatre of the Veterinary Hospital to install its new president for the second semester and to make plans for the spring dance.

Arthur L. Hogge, president-elect, will succeed Dwight Lichty, outgoing president, whose term has expired. Other officers will continue their tenure until the end of the current semester. Other business to be considered includes the appointment of committees for the spring dance and discussion of finances. All members are urged to attend. Cigars will be served.

O' This 'N That

Man is a hopeful creature and forthwith makes his plans for the future only to find himself opposed by Nature's whim . . . yes!

Quite a number of plans laid by ASTP'ers for this past week-end went a-gley because the rain, as usual, had its say—first. However, may we hasten to assure those brave but lonely hearts that many natives of this fair expanse predict fair weather, on week-ends, beginning about the end of March. Announcements via radio and newspapers this week-end threw the rumor machines into high gear as to the where's, why's, when's, and how's of ASTP'ites in the not too distant future. Solution: Sit tight and let the "gum-beaters" blather—official orders will clarify the situation.

Barring mishap, those promised pictures of the Junior and Senior ASTP veterinary students which were not available when the Slipstick went to print will be distributed as inserts either this week-end or the early part of next.

Again the clarion call clamors cheerfully calling for conscientious co-ordinators of company end-chewings. Do you yearn to be creative . . . to see your thoughts in print? Experience is not necessary . . . just ramble 'round to room 217 and see Joe B.

Cpl. Marvin Miller of the QMC wrote for the men who left our company for OCS saying that they were all in Camp Lee, Virginia, and that their courses began Monday of this week. From the men of the 2nd Company—best of luck to all of you.

In parting, get your invitations now in room 217 and make your arrangements now for the 2nd Co. dance of March 4, 1944.

FOR VICTORY

ASTP Noses Out Air Corps In Hot Basketball Game

Flying Five Defeated By Score of 52 to 47 In Extra Five Minutes

In a rough and tumble game, which more resembled football than basketball at times, the ASTU quintet, led by Frey and Hoffman, defeated the Air Corps five 52-47. The hotly contested game, one of the fastest and best seen on the campus, took a 5 minute overtime to decide the outcome.

The ASTU five could not find the range throughout most of the game, and the Air Corps boys led nearly all the way.

Both teams started the game fast with the Air Corps grabbing the lead with a fast break that kept Barrick and Manker on their heels. The Air Corps kept hitting the bucket to hold a two point lead at the half—24 to 22.

At the start of the second half the ASTU pulled up even with the Air Corps, but this was short-lived due mostly to the accurate, long range shooting of Karay, who from his guard position led the scoring for the evening and kept the Beavers in the game with his 20 points. Enlivening the second half of the already heated contest, was the argument as to whether Young, Air Corps center, had fouled out. The referee declared that from the official score book Young had four personal fouls. However the argument around the scores bench continued until Joe Buck, ASTU coach, told the referee to let Young go back into the game. Young fouled again and was put out of the game with but a few minutes left to play.

A five minute overtime agreed upon, the teams took to the floor counts, stories in local newspapers, and other primary sources, Race Riot presents a detailed description of the Detroit disorders, together with an analysis of their causes and a consideration of steps which might be taken to prevent a repetition of the tragedy.
