al outstanding feature artists for the benefit of all Aggies, the Air Corps, and the faculty. Included among the special entertainers scheduled to perform Tuesday evening are Armand Delmar, sensational juggling artist, who substitutes his toes for his hands in his performance; Marshelle, petite young contortionist, who comes to Aggieland labeled as "America's most amazing girl." This acrobatic little Miss has been a featured entertainer in many of the popular night clubs in the East and has only recently finished engagements at the Edgewater Beach Hotel, in Chicago, and the Beverly-Wilshire Hotel in California. Also, the Mary Taft Dancers, Chicago entertainers who execute their intricate dance routines on roller skates while clad in only the scantiest of wartime wardrobes. This promises to be one of the most popular acts of the evening. Another act which should capture the enthusiasm of the audience is the show's hot blues singer, Doris McBride, who although only reaching five feet two above the floor, possesses a deep husky voice she used to great advantage as she gives out with the sweet and low. Beth McMurray, comedienne dancer, and Master of Ceremonies Lon Fishback, Jr., round out the attraction for Tuesday evening.

Mr. Fishback, one of Hollywood's most promising young hopefuls, has been under contract to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer for the last four years, appearing last in "Best Foot Forward" with Lucille Ball and Harry James, in which he had a prominent speaking role. While serving as master of ceremonies, he offers another lively little novelty, of doing a comedy impersonation of various popular songs, taking them apart and explaining them as he goes. In previous performances this has been one of the best-liked acts of the show.

And, as all good shows must have music, Billy Taggart and his orchestra will be on hand to provide the audience with his interpretations of the hit songs of today and yesterday. Numbering eleven members in his musical unit, Taggart plays a wide variety of selections designed to please the whole audience.

A little more should be said of the talents of Mr. Delmar, the intrepid juggling artist. He combines feats of juggling, and balancing while making use of his toes only, being known as an upside down juggler. He has been featured in the leading theatres and clubs throughout the East and Middle West, while also playing engagement at numerous Army camps and benefit shows. Of French descent, Mr. Delmar was a popular in a number of music halls in England and France before the war broke out and caused his trip to America.

The first performance, to be given for all of the new freshman only, will start promptly at seven o'clock with the final show for the Air corps, faculty and upperclassmen scheduled to begin at nine o'clock.

Admission will be free as this is a Student Activities sponsored show and all Aggies and invited personnel are urged to attend.

Ex-Aggie Rasmussen Made Ensign in The U. S. Coast Guard

Ensign David Harold Rasmussen, USCG, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar A. Rasmussen, Box 402, Seadrift, Texas, was graduated from the United States Coast Guard Academy, New London, Conn., on Wednesday, June 7, with a BS degree and a regular commission in the United States Coast Guard. The new ensign's father is a railroad agent in Seadrift.

Sailing and rifle were Ensign Rasmussen's sport specialties at the Academy. He won a letter in sailing during his second class year and was one of the best racing skippers in the Coast Guard Academy during his undergraduate years. Weekend cruises in the Academy's ocean-racing schooners are listed by Ensign Rasmussen as the most interesting moments of
