Successful School For Airmen Closes

An airport management and facilities short course, the first to be held in the United States, was conducted at the Texas A. & M. College June 14-16 by the School of Engineering in cooperation with the Civil Aeronautics Administration. While it had hoped to attract interested parties from the states of Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Louisiana and New Mexico, the states comprising CAA's 4th region, registration showed thirteen states and the District of Columbia represented.

There were two general groups in attendance, those from cities which now have airports and those from communities which now do not have airports but which expect to build them after the war. These groups met together June 14 and 16, but had separate sessions June 15.

Programs for the three-day meeting featured airport management, operation and maintenance respectively.

This short course, which will be used as a tie-in with student instruction in aeronautical engineering, will be made an annual affair.

Committee to Meet For S. P. E. E. Plan

The National Drawing Committee to formulate efficiency tests in Engineering Drawing will meet June 21 preceding the S.P.E.E. meeting in Cincinnati for the purpose of classifying incoming students, determining level of entrance for transfers and army veterans, and to prepare a battery of achievement tests for students who have completed a college course in general drawing.

W. E. Street, head of the Engineering Drawing Department of Texas A. & M. College, and a member of the six-man committee expects to be in attendance. Much work has been done during the past year and the National Drawing Committee working under the Drawing Division of S.P.E.E. is endeavoring to submit a test for approval at the annual S.P.E.E. meeting, June 22 to 25 in Cincinnati.

While there Street will attend the annual meeting of the Society for the Promotion of Engineering Education. He is a member of the executive committee of the Drawing Division and serving the third year as editor of the T-Square page, devoted to the interests of the Drawing Division of S.P.E.E.
