- STRICKHAUSEN -

letics. A member of the Aggie baseball team during the spring of this year, Strickhausen was playing first base for the Aggies in a game with a Brooks Field nine in San Antonio when a mis-map occurred which nearly ended his life. Midway in the sixth inning of this game, an enemy batsman knocked a grounder to the third baseman who, in making the throw to first base, threw the ball high over Strick's head. As Strickhausen leaped into the air to catch the ball, the batter, racing for first, caught him in the kidney with his shoulder, a terrific shoulder block. Although shaken up quite a bit, Strickhausen stayed in the game but later on when he was taken to the Post hospital for examination, it was discovered almost too late that he had a ruptured kidney. After the operation, he was in the hospital for two weeks, losing twenty-one pounds. Incidentally, Strickhausen won his letter in baseball and was elected team captain. Today, he still remembers and is very grateful to Coach Norton and the members of the baseball team who stuck with him and sent him flowers during his time in the hospital.

As all people do, he has a favorite food, shrimp and steak, but he adds there is very little he likes better than a piece of raw meat. As to his hobby, he has collected over forty guns of varying specimens and he would rather fish and hunt than do almost anything else in utilizing his spare time. He is also a great football and baseball enthusiast.

His greatest thrill while at A. & M. thus far was at the final review ending his fish year when the Sophomores, Juniors and Seniors came around to the freshmen, shaking their hands and calling them by their first names. He says he still remembers clearly everyone sobbing and wishing that the seniors didn't have to leave.

Incidentally, he looks back on his fish year as his happiest days spent at Aggieland thus far.

As to his plans for the future, Corps Commander Strickhausen intends to practice Veterinary Medicine upon his graduation from A. & M.
