

The Lowdown On Campus Distractions

By Alfred Jefferson

Ever try to write a four page theme in thirty-five minutes? Well, that's about what I'm doing today, so don't gripe if the reviews are short and to the point.

Showing Monday and Tuesday at the Guion Hall Theater is "Lost Angel" with Margaret O'Brien, Marsha Hunt, and James Craig. This is a good story and to this picture and the critics all say it is a picture worth seeing. Craig is little Miss O'Brien's guardian, more or less, and his leaving her causes her to become ill. When he returns, everything is all-reet, so everybody is happy.

The Lowdown: This is a show that you will probably like, although it is filled with thought and not much action is included.

Saturday's double feature at the Campus has an old picture and a "B" picture. Together they are o.k. "Remember the Night" with Barbara Stanwyck and Fred MacMurray is one that will keep on being a good show for a long time, even though it is old. The other is "Submarine Alert" with Richard Arlen and Wendy Barrie. Just another one with plenty of love, some suspense and a fair action story.

The Lowdown: This is a pretty fair double bill, so if you're around Saturday, drop by.

Sunday and Monday they are going to show us a fairly new show! It is "Once Upon a Time," with Cary Grant and Janet Blair. This has had quite a bit of publicity, and from that you will probably think that it is a red-hot production. It is, if you like silly pictures. The story is absurd, but it will do you good if you're fed up with worldly things. Whoever heard of a dancing caterpillar?

The Lowdown: Not up to Grant's

SLIDE RULE

The Civil Engineering Department winners, B. B. Thigpen, E. R. Baugh, and M. Amis, first, second, and third places respectively, were given mechanical pencils.

Winners in the Management Engineering Department were: first, W. H. Mullins, book; second, J. W. Vanham, desk directory; third, R. H. McKinley, book.

Chemical Engineering Department winner was R. F. Huston, who was given a book.

L. M. Pomeroy won the book given by the Petroleum Engineering Department.

The Mechanical Engineering Department winners were: first, Q. M. Baker, a book and one year's membership in ASME; second, R. W. Martin, also a book and one year's membership in ASME; third, and fourth place winners, J. L. Slack and J. R. Copeland, each a year's membership in ASME.

R. Q. Olschner, representative of the student E. E. Society made the awards to the winners in the Electrical Engineering division.

After the awards were made, ice cream was served to all the students and faculty members present.

usual standard, but you will probably get a good laugh out of it.

"Spitfire," with Leslie Howard, will be shown Tuesday and Wednesday. It tells the complete history of the Supermarine Spitfire, which has been used with great success by the British in the present war.

The Lowdown: A picture you will really like.

a panel type discussion of general agricultural problems, assisted by R. A. Manire, J. B. Rutland, M. F. Thurmond, R. L. Barron and George Hurt of the State Board of Vocational Education.

Another panel on soil and water conservation will be led by E. R. Alexander, head of A. & M.'s Department of Agricultural Education, assisted by V. C. Marshall, administrator of Texas Soil Conservation Service.

Development of pastures in Southeast Texas will be discussed by R. H. Stansel, superintendent of the Angleton Experiment Station, and E. K. Crouch, superintendent of the Lufkin Experiment Station. R. L. Hensel and R. C. Potts, of the Experiment Station division of agronomy, will point out and discuss the adaptability of various grasses while showing the visitors through the grass nursery of the Texas A. & M. College.

Other features of the two-day program will cover agricultural activities of the A. & M. School of Agriculture, Experiment Station and Extension Service.

Safety practices on farm and ranch will be demonstrated through the showing of a motion picture, "A Stitch in Time," by C. T. Johnson of the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation, Halbrooks said.

member since it was organized in 1940.

Gilchrist announced that the college plan submitted previously for a system of landing strips around College Station was now receiving serious consideration and that a government representative would visit this area in the near future to make a survey. The plan calls for a series of 16 air landing strips to be built within a radius of 30 miles of the college as testing grounds to study the various kinds of grasses that may be used for landing strips and to determine which of the varieties of grass is most suitable.

While in Washington Gilchrist attended the monthly meeting of the Washington A. & M. Club at which he estimates there were 70 members present. At the meeting was Major General Andrew Moses, retired, who was commandant of the college from 1907 until 1911.
