

Roy Snyder Judge At Panhandle Stock Show

Roy Snyder of the Animal Husbandry Department judged the Panhandle stock show held in Amarillo, Texas, March 5th, 6th, and 7th.

The show was comprised of animals raised and fed by F.F.A. and 4-H club boys of the counties of the Panhandle. The affair involves the showing of cattle, sheep, and hogs, and last year for the first time horses were in the show.

SCHOLARSHIPS

Along with the freshman scholarship a junior fellowship is sponsored jointly by the Danforth Foundation and the Ralston Purina Mills of St. Louis.

Dean Shepardson has appointed the following members of the committee to select Texas A. & M.'s representatives: J. Wheeler Barger, head of the Agricultural Economics Department; F. I. Dahlberg, acting head of the Animal Husbandry Department; A. L. Darnell, acting head of the Dairy Husbandry Department; D. H. Reid, head of the Poultry Husbandry Department; and Daniel Russell, head of the Rural Sociology Department.

Freshmen and juniors in the School of Agriculture who are interested in the fellowships should contact Mr. Barger at his office in the Agricultural Building or Maurice Brown, who was one of A. & M.'s representatives last year, in Dorm No. 9.

NAVAL UNIT

(Continued From Page 1) community. Soon men were being graduated from the naval schools, the radiomen to be sent to immediate duty with the fleet, the radio technicians on to advanced schools of training.

And so, through 1942, 1943, and 1944, the Naval Training Schools at Texas A. & M. regularly provided large numbers of men to man the radios and the radar gear of our growing Navy.

Many of the men in blue stationed at A. & M. have already paid with their lives for the success of these battles and for our steady advance through the waters of the Pacific.

The years following Pearl Harbor not only saw success on the seas, but also provided the time required for the Navy to acquire the teachers and material to man its own training program.

From the perspective, the closing of the Naval Training Schools at A. & M. marks the end of the first phase of the war. The Navy has mastered the immediate situation; it has qualified itself to assume the burden of training largely within its own facilities;

John Heeman, who was expected to be absent from tonight's meet because of an injured leg, has recovered in fine shape, and has an opportunity to use a new improved stroke, especially suited to his style of swimming, in the 440 event.

Those poor souls who have received all the bad breaks possible this season, aerobats Alvaro Facio and "Deedy" Matthews have been working under numerous handicaps, but will still probably show enough strength to take the sadly weakened Texas divers.

Relay drills, starts and turns have been the keynotes of this week, The Aggies have responded to the coaching and encouragement of Art Adamson well, and the whole team is confident of a victory over Texas tonight.

BOOKS

(Continued From Page 2) States has participated. In general, the rewards to veterans were, land after the Revolution, money after the Civil War, and education after World War I.

Mr. Wecter's book clearly indicates that the homecoming G. I. from the present war will receive an even greater proportion of their reward than did the Doughboys of 1919—not in free land, for that is all gone, nor in money, for we know now that rising prices would largely nullify money gifts, but in the opportunity to train themselves for full participation in the magnificent expansion of production which we can have after the war.

When Johnny Comes Marching Home to a large extent is composed of short quotations, combined to establish the postwar scenes after the three major wars. Mr. Wecter takes his information from archives, books and periodicals, old letters, and personal sources, and the use of many concrete examples make the book entertaining as well as enlightening.

Typical chapter headings are: "Buddies and Bolsheviks," "Crutches in the School," and "Soldiers and Women."

Mr. Wecter's book, too, is optimistic in tone. The author believes that on coming home, Johnny will be even more certain that his country was worth fighting for. A spirit of watchfulness, inspired by Johnny's fear of another war, will give Peace a better chance.

Mr. Wecter says we can be sure that Johnny will come back "as he went forth, generous, easy-going, brave, the citizen-soldier of America."

The Veteran Comes Back, by Willard Waller is attractively printed with an excellent table of contents and a full index. These items are important because the book may be read effectively in part as well as in its entirety.

The book is divided into four major sections, (1) The Civilian is

Fourteen Answer First Golf Call

Fourteen men answered the first call for golfers Tuesday night in front of Duncan Mess Hall. C. H. Hennings, member of the Aggie 1943 and 1944 teams informed the men reporting as to the place of practice and times for practice. He also answered questions concerning rules and regulations governing conference play.

The men out for golf this season will start training without a coach. The practices will be semi-organized and Hennings will, probably, act as student coach. Practices will be held on the Bryan Country Club Golf Course.

A second call for men interested in trying out for varsity golf will be made tonight. Hennings will meet with all men reporting Tuesday and any new men who think that they can make the team tonight in front of the mess hall by the flag pole immediately after mess.
