(Continued From Page 1) him later when he is out on his own. Verne declares that he believes that A. & M. is a great builder of men, although it is not as powerful along those lines as it used to be. Scott says that his most unforgettable experience was actually before he came to school here. "I never will forget that bonfire in the year of 1942," he related. "It rained like everything, but it seemed like nothing could stop that bonfire. It just kept burning higher and higher." He also said that he would always remember the 1943 Turkey Day game, because "I never saw a bunch of boys put up a better fight." Scott is majoring in Veterinary Medicine, and expects to graduate in June of 1946. He plans then to go to Stephenville and work on an internship with his dad, who is also a veterinarian.

(Continued From Page 3) The boys from the forty acres had their eye pretty well on the ball, collecting eleven clean blows off the combined efforts of Purtle and Smith. Wilemon, the left fielder, led the attack with three blows. The two games Saturday afternoon will be the first conference games at home for the Maroon and White. him and as three minutes had rolled by in the third period, he charged Broyles—B Battery ace—and had to leave the game on too many fouls, as the third period wound up 19 to 9, B Battery over F Battery. In this battle B Battery's 23 point total was almost entirely molded around Broyles' 12 points and Brannen's 6 points, while F Battery's losing total rested largely on Bell's and Mijalis' shoulders—Bell shoveling in six points for B Battery and Mijalis pitching in three points for the losers.

HELP BRING VICTORY—BUY MORE WAR BONDS

OPPORTUNITY!

An unusual opportunity for the right man. I have just bought 200 acres of extra good land in four tracts. One tract is 12 miles north of San Antonio, 600 feet east of Austin-San Antonio Highway, on a gravel road, electricity, well of good artesian water, pumping capacity 200 gallons a minute, pump being installed. Second—a forty acre tract, all plowed, no Johnson Grass, 400 feet away. Third—fifty acre tract, six miles farther north, same Highway, all plowed and 90 acres adjoining all plowed, two wells, one house. Artesian water at 200 feet. I want a junior partner, salary and part of income. No money required. Must be smart, willing to work and country raised. I am in active medical practice in San Antonio, but was country raised with ten years experience as commercial irrigation gardener, culture and sales. Nine years of university education.

A SPLENDID OPPORTUNITY FOR THE RIGHT MAN. MUST ACT NOW. NO MONEY REQUIRED. YOU CAN BEGIN NOW AND FINISH SCHOOL LATER.

Continued from Page 1 enrolled in the University of Berlin, but again journalism won. In 1925 he went to work for International News Service and traveled throughout Russia. In 1928 he was transferred back to Berlin and here he wrote a number of articles and books about conditions in Europe. It was in 1930 that he was awarded the Pulitzer-Prize for a series of stories based on his observations in Russia.

When Hitler came into power things got pretty hot for Knickerbocker and he left Germany to become INS's roving reporter. He covered wars in Spain, France, Abyssinia and Japan. At the outbreak of this war he then covered stories inside of Europe. Wherever important news breaks, Knickerbocker is certain to turn up if he is not already there. His colleagues have come to regard him as a storm warning. Whenever Knickerbocker appears, they know a hot story is about to break.

Students and others wanting to purchase their tickets earlier can do so in the office of Student Activities Office in the basement of the Administration Building. Student and servicemen tickets will be $4.00 while general admission is $6.00.

—BOOKS—

(Continued From Page 2) At the appointed time the two set forth in a new car the professor had bought recently. A few miles out of town something went wrong and the car stopped. The professor tinkered and worried but could not make it go. Finally a passerby sent a mechanic who soon put the machine in working order. While all this was taking place young Vector was sitting in the shade of a mesquite tree reading a book. The experience had tired the professor and he asked his companion if he would like to drive the remainder of the way. The boy said that he would be glad to. On second thought the professor asked him if he had driven much. "No, I have never driven," said young Vector, "but I read the instruction book just now." In more recent years he has shown an unusual gift for writing in addition to his ability to read widely and well. His first book, The Saga of American Society, published in 1937, attracted immediate attention and assured Mr. Vector a place among the literary men of our time. This book was followed in 1939 by Edmund Burke and His Kinsmen; in 1941 his book, The Hero in American, came off the press. In 1943 he was coauthor with William Matthews of Our Soldiers Speak. His latest book is the timely, Johnny Comes Marching Home, which was reviewed in this column recently.

Since both of his latest publications are based on studies of military men, Mr. Vector would seem to be peculiarly suited to teaching in our present A.S.T. programs. He was assigned some of these classes at the University of California where he is Professor of English. He reports that the boys taught him more than they learned from the professor. The latest recognition of Mr. Vector's abilities was an invitation to become visiting Professor of English in a New Zealand University. He and Mrs. Vector have recently sailed to accept the invitation.—Dr. Leo T. Murray, Department of Biology.
