Texas A. & M. Offers Wide Choice of Fields for Technical or Liberal Study

Four different schools of higher education are available for students who come to Texas A. & M. College.

The School of Agriculture, headed by Dean Charles N. Shepardson, features specialized training for those who plan to follow agriculture as a vocation, and offers a wide course of instruction in a variety of fields connected to agricultural interests. Included in the curricula are four-year courses in agriculture, agricultural engineering, agricultural administration, agricultural education, and landscape art. Instruction is designed to prepare students for the pursuit of scientific investigation in agricultural fields as well as the more practical aspects of farming and ranching, county demonstration agencies, and teaching. Also offered is a two-year course in cotton marketing and classing.

The School of Engineering Under the supervision of Dean Howard W. Barlow, the School of Engineering offers a highly technical and specialized course of study in a wide choice of fields. Included in the curricula of this school are aeronautical engineering, chemical engineering, civil engineering, electrical engineering, mechanical engineering, petroleum engineering, industrial education, and management engineering. Also offered is a five-year course in architecture.

The School of Veterinary Medicine

The School of Veterinary Medicine, headed by Dean R. P. Marsteller, is one of the outstanding veterinary schools of the nation. The school is organized in six departments: veterinary anatomy, veterinary hygiene, veterinary medicine and surgery, veterinary pathology and bacteriology, veterinary parasitology, and veterinary physiology and pharmacology. The basic business and professional training is designed to qualify graduates both to care for the ills of animals

A DANCE AT AGGIELAND

Y. M. C. A. Is Scene Of Yell Practices, Student Conferences, Varied Recreation

Traditional gathering place for the yell practices that unite the Texas A. & M. Corps into the "Twelfth Man" is the entrance stair to the Y.M.C.A. building. Here also is where visitors and cadets may come to turn in or claim lost articles, to check their parcels, write letters, make their telephone calls, read magazines and newspapers, or play checkers, chess, or dominoes.

Here, too, is where the homesick boy or the student in need of advice of a social, spiritual, or personal nature will find the ready hand of friendship and understanding. The feeling of most of the cadets on the campus, that "you can start at the 'Y' and get almost anywhere you want to go," is true in a much deeper sense than merely the geographical.

The Y.M.C.A. is a four-story structure in the center of the campus proper. Improvements have recently been made, with the cooperation of the A. & M. Mothers Club and the Former Students Association, to make the Y.M.C.A. much more beautiful and more useful. Located on the main floor are the business office, a lobby, chapel, reading room, two lounges, and a ladies' parlor. A modern assembly room and offices take up the second floor, and the third story is devoted to dormitory space. Bowling alleys, billiard tables, a barber shop, sandwich shop, and soda fountain are found in the basement.

In the new dormitory area, on the south side of the campus, the "Y" has constructed a temporary building which houses a well-equipped confectionery, the South Branch postoffice, a barber shop, and a cleaning and pressing substitution. Across the street, another temporary building houses a game room, a reading room, a prayer room, an office lounge, and numerous meeting rooms and conference rooms. The Y.M.C.A. also sponsors Kiest Lounge in the north end of Kiest Hall in the new dormitory area; Kiest Lounge is open for the benefit of cadets and their visitors every weekend during the football season and the spring dance season, offering maid service and matron service, as well as facilities for making and serving coffee.

On the regular schedule of activities of the "Y" are the ten-day Hollister Student Conference at Hollister, Missouri; Religious Emphasis Week, held during the early part of spring; the Inter-church Council, coordinating the efforts of all campus churches; and the Freshman Councils, which promote fun, fellowship, and serious inspiration. Also sponsored by the Y.M.C.A. is the Cashion Cabin, located on an island in a willow-bound lake near the Campus. The cabin contains a fireplace, game rooms, and a piano, and is ideal for picnics, weiner roasts, or small informal gatherings. Outside is a campfire circle and a barbecue pit, and ample room for softball or touch football.

General Secretary of the Y.M.C.A. is M. L. Cashion, who is assisted by J. Gordon Gay. Acting in an advisory capacity is a board of directors, composed of faculty members, and a student cabinet.

Smith Announces New Tin Can Salvage Plan

Tin cans collected from College Station and Bryan residents will be converted into syrettes to be carried by soldiers on the battlefield, under a new tin can salvage plan announced by Lloyd D. Smith, chairman of the College Station Tin Can Salvage Committee. There is enough tin in two cans to make one of these little devices, which are used by the wounded soldier to give himself a hypodermic which will ease his suffering for six or eight hours or until medical aid can be given him.

Public-minded College Station citizens are requested to remove the labels, clean the cans thoroughly, cut out and tuck in both ends, and mash them flat with the pressure of the foot. Tin cans should be set out in sacks or boxes separate from the garbage, and will be collected monthly. They will be picked up all day Monday and on Tuesday morning, May 21-22 in the Oakwood, College Park, and West Park areas; on Tuesday afternoon and Wednesday morning, May 22-23, in the College Hills section; and on Wednesday afternoon, May 23, in the North Gate area.

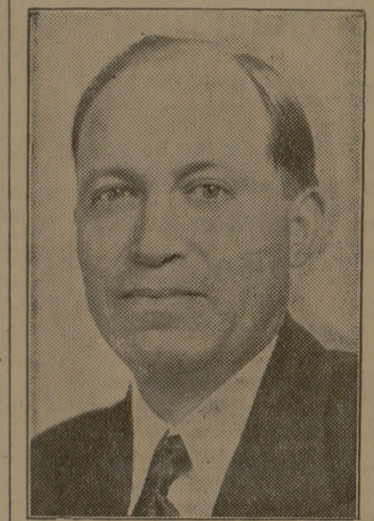

Two tin cans can be prepared in less than five minutes by the housewife, and may mean the saving of the life of one of our soldiers—possibly, even one of our own sons. Tin is one of our most critical materials at the present time.

Reading, Browsing, Music Rooms Included In Modern College Memorial Library

Erected in 1930 and named for E. B. Cushing, former member of the board of directors, the Cushing Memorial Library was built at a cost slightly in excess of $225,000. This three story building is an outgrowth of A. & M.'s original library which was destroyed when the old main building burned down in 1912. At that time the library started with nothing. For a number of years the progress was very slow. When Dr. T. F. Mayo took charge in 1919, the stock consisted of less than 20,000 volumes tended by one librarian and one untrained assistant. Under Dr. Mayo's able management, it has been built up to 116,000 volumes under the care of ten trained librarians and twelve non-professional assistants.

Lt. Governor Smith Denounces 36th Chief

Lt. Gov. John Lee Smith

Texas' scrapping Lieutenant Governor John Lee Smith, himself a veteran of World War I and the father of a son now fighting on Okinawa, in an extemporaneous speech on the floor of the Texas Senate last week, sharply denounced the action of Major General John E. Dahquist, temporary

At present this beautiful building houses not only the library proper, but also the Asbury Browsing Room where students gather to smoke and enjoy idle moments. On the third floor is the music room which contains a modern remote control record player which, with 1,000 records complete with card index and 300 volumes on music and musicians, was donated to the library by the Carnegie Corporation. About 600 records have been added to this number and are in constant demand by music-loving students.

The library subscribes to about 1100 periodicals which are bound into permanent files and form a complete reference source for the student interested in research. The oldest of these is the Annual Register, a British periodical, which is complete from 1755 to date.

Newspapers from the leading cities of the country and most of the towns of Texas can be found in the newspaper room. In the same room can be found the oil painting of Reville, famed mascot of the Aggies.
