agent. From him we learned that her "Salome" has proved a smash-hit all over the country and that she is rapidly on her way to top-notch stardom.

After leaving Miss De Carlo's set, the Aggies visited on the set of the latest picture of Miss Ella Raines, Miss Geraldine Fitzgerald, and George Saunders. There they had the pleasure of conversing a few minutes with those stars, and witnessing the shooting on their latest picture.

After leaving the set, they found an entire day had slipped by, and so took their leave of Universal. In passing out their famous gates, Kearby and Spragins both remarked how gratifying it was to have everyone remember A. & M. and acknowledge the Aggies as they did. Apparently, the principles for which A. & M. is famous made a powerful impression on everyone out there, and certainly they have never forgotten the Aggies.

Man, Your Manners

By I. Sherwood

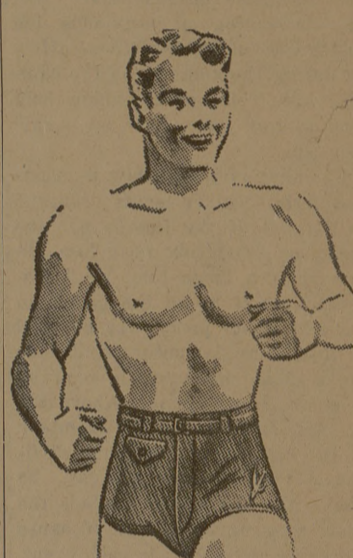

A. & M. depends largely on the dance for its social life; it is important in the life of the student. Pre-war dances at A. & M. were grand affairs with very elaborate decorations.

All authorities on dance manners insist that a man or woman must know how to dance before attending a dance; they insist that at the dance is not the place to learn to dance.

"Cutting in" is the accepted technique at dances, even though it has the earmarks of rude procedure. It seems the only way to handle the problem, of 3 "stags" to one "dated" man, and to finance the dance.

"Cutting in" has an etiquette all its own. Under the system, a man on the sidelines, seeing a girl with whom he wishes to dance, simply approaches the couple on the floor and lays his hand on the shoulder of the girl's partner, who must relinquish the girl to him. According to the rules, if he wishes to remain popular a man who has been "cut in" on will not cut back until the couple have danced around the room once or the girl is dancing with another partner; he should not cut in on a couple sitting out a dance.

Everybody in Germany was not converted to the doctrines of Adolph Hitler and his cohorts, according to M. Emmett Walter, managing editor of the Houston Chronicle, who spoke Wednesday evening under auspices of the College Station Kiwanis Club at the Baptist Church here. Had every German agreed with the policies of Hitler there would have been no prisoners in the concentration camps prior to the outbreak of the war, and information obtained by the group of 18 American newspaper editors and publishers proved conclusively that the 'horror camps' originally were built and operated for German political prisoners.

Horror Camps Were Built for Germans, Says Houston Editor

Of course, after the war began, the camps were filled with prisoners from conquered nations who were imported for slave labor and the like, but two weeks before Germany's surrender, when the American editors visited the camps, there still were many hundreds of Germans in the concentration camps.

Mr. Walter declared that in his belief the Russians are handling the matter of occupation much more sensibly than the British or the French, or the Americans.
