Postwar Expansion Planned by YMCA

Texas YMCA's will spend more than $765,000 for postwar construction of new buildings and remodeling of present structures to meet changed community needs and demands for more educational programs, M. L. Cashion, general secretary of the A&M YMCA disclosed today.

Construction slated in Texas is part of a $50,000,000 nation-wide "Y" building program, according to Cashion, who said that figures for Texas, based on reports from national headquarters, will be greatly increased as estimates of other projects are completed.

The A&M YMCA is making plans to enlarge bowling and billiards facilities by extending the sub-basement of the present building out to the Military Walk on the east and to the sidewalk on the south, Cashion said. A concrete slab will be run over the top which will give a large surface for deck chairs, tables, games, and the like.

This arrangement, according to Cashion's figures, will add five bowling alleys to present equipment, several additional billiard tables, an office for the supervisor, and modern opera chairs for spectators. The room will be air conditioned, he said.

Man, Your Manners

By I. Sherwood

Girls Ask:
1. "Why do boys call up and ask, 'What are you doing tonight?'" instead of asking for a definite date which you may accept or refuse?"

2. "Is it good taste to keep one's date waiting for a few minutes after he calls?"

3. "If a boy takes a girl to eat following a date, how should the girl determine the amount of money to be spent on her for food?"

4. "If you know your escort is short of money, should you offer him some?"

5. "May a girl suggest not finishing a dance?"

6. "Upon receiving a corsage that definitely clashes with one's formal, what does one do?"

7. "If when traveling, a stranger on the train offers to pay for your meal, what should you do?"

8. "Do men consider it poor taste for girls to ask whether or not they should wear formals to a dance or party?"

Former Jap Prisoner Visits A&M Campus

Captain Herbert I. Ott, former instructor in Veterinary Physiology at A. & M. College, visited the campus last week after returning from the Philippines where he was held prisoner by the Japanese for a period of thirty-four months.

Captain Ott, entered the Army Veterinary Corps in September, 1940, and was assigned to the Philippines after a training course in Chicago. His duties on the islands included servicing a mule unit engaged in the transportation of supplies to the men on Bataan Peninsula. Upon the surrender of Bataan, he was taken by the Japs and endured the hardships of the infamous "Death March of Bataan". In the prison camps he was assigned to a detail to search for and kill the native water buffalo, which supplemented the diet of the prisoners. He was also instrumental in improving the sanitation conditions of the camp during his imprisonment.

Upon his release, he was flown from Luzon to Leyte, where he was provided with boat passage to San Francisco. He is scheduled to return soon to Chicago for a physical examination, after which he will receive new orders.
