

Barlow, Marsteller Speak at A. A. U. P.

Programs for the Schools of Engineering and Veterinary Medicine at the Texas Agricultural and Mechanical College were presented by Deans Howard W. Barlow and R. P. Marsteller at a recent meeting of the Local Chapter of the American Association of University Professors in the Assembly Room of the Y.M.C.A. Dean Barlow's discussion covered the prospects for new buildings and quarters, which, he pointed out, are extremely important if teaching and research are to be effectively conducted.

Modern equipment will be procured as rapidly as possible and the following items have been procured or are under consideration: An alternating current calculating board, which alone will cost $106,000, an infra-red spectrometer, X-Ray machine, centrifuge, modern steam turbine-electric generator unit, and wind tunnel.

J. J. Woolket Is New Head of Modern Language Department at Texas A. & M.

Mr. J. J. Woolket has been recently appointed as the new head of the Modern Languages Department.

Mr. Woolket came to A&M in 1925 from Oberlin College in Ohio where he received his B.A. and M.A. degrees. He teaches Spanish, German, and French, and he is official advisor and guide to Latin-American students and visitors. He has studied in France and Spain, and has done graduate work at the University of Ohio, the University of Mexico, and the Middlebury school for Languages in Vermont.

During his years at A. & M., Mr. Woolket has helped to direct Aggie plays, organized and directed the Singing Cadets for four years, and has directed the broadcasting of WTAW during 1941 and 1942.

Mr. Woolket is also very active in social life. He is a Knight Templar in the Masons, a member of the Chamber of Commerce, on the Board of Directors of the Rotary Club, a member of the Student Welfare Committee, and a member of the Latin American Committee.

forward to having one of the best aerodynamic laboratories in the country. Manufacturers' exhibits will be provided for, and under consideration is a gauge laboratory for calibration and checking. The School owns seven airplanes already and the College has the best college airport in the country.

An expanded program for students was discussed; also the need for higher entrance requirements

CANCER ALSO AFFECTS YOUTH

Both directly and indirectly Youth has a stake in cancer prevention. Cancer kills more than accidents, more than war, more than all infectious diseases together. Cancer kills more mothers of school children than any other disease and almost as many fathers. Cancer is not limited to the middle-aged and elderly: It causes the death of 2 1/2 times as many young people as polio. 100 children under fifteen die each year from cancer.

Many more young people are suffering from it. Many need not die—if they have your help! IMMEDIATE DIAGNOSIS AND TREATMENT OF EARLY CANCER ARE IMPERATIVE. Learn these symptoms—learn that early cancer can be cured. A slow-healing sore in tongue, mouth or lips. A painless lump or thickening in breast, lip or tongue. Bleeding or discharge from any body opening or nipple. Change in color or size of wart, mole or birthmark. Persistent hoarseness, cough, or difficulty in swallowing. PAIN IS A LATE CANCER SYMPTOM — DON'T WAIT FOR IT. DO YOUR PART IN SPREADING THE KNOWLEDGE THAT CANCER CAN BE CURED.

in engineering. A screening program is contemplated which will help to guide those who are better fitted to become successful engineers. Objectives to be striven for include smaller classes, improved library facilities, and substantially improved instruction. Curricula need modernizing in the light of recent developments, explained Dean Barlow. Such subjects as electronics, radar, jet and rocket propulsion, atomic fission, gas turbines, new developments on geophysics, and other subjects were hardly known a few years ago.

Dean Barlow expects more emphasis to be placed on English and the ability to think and write clearly and concisely. He anticipates a broadening of curricula in the direction of the humanities, perhaps principally through the expansion of post-graduate extension work. The School of Engineering also appreciates that adequate progress can be made only with superior personnel.

Dean Marsteller discussed some of the problems and activities in Veterinary Medicine and Surgery. He pointed out importance of the field in the United States and referred to the close relationship between the veterinarians in the Russian Army and the outstanding success of the Russian military campaign. He referred to the close relationship between good roads, flood control and improved feed resources for livestock, and for people.

An optimistic note was struck by Dean Marsteller in reference to the future in Veterinary Medicine, which he said is bright. Attention to the diseases of farm and ranch animals is of the utmost importance, Dean Marsteller explained. There often is a relationship between diseases in animals and man since some animal diseases can be transmitted to human beings, and some human ailments to animals. The Dean listed a number of serious animal diseases which already have been controlled and largely eliminated; among them, glanders, tick fever, and tuberculosis in cattle. A number of others are being given effective attention by veterinarians.

Dean Marsteller pointed out that the main objective of the work of the School of Veterinary Medicine and Surgery is to give education and inspiration to each student. These values will last when others disappear, the Dean said. The Dean anticipates additional research work in the different divisions of the School of Veterinary Medicine. Like Dean Barlow, he also mentioned the need for buildings, classrooms, and other facilities.

Man, Your Manners

By I. Sherwood

Unfortunately, the way you eat, is not a private affair and since you are often judged by the way you eat, you should know how to do it correctly.

It is just as important to know what to do with your silver when it is not in use as to know what to do when you are using it.

Here are some of the things you should not do:

No matter where you are never wipe any piece of silver on tablecloth or napkin—trust the places where you eat or don't go there.

Don't rest a knife, fork or spoon on the edge of a plate so that any part of it touches the tablecloth.

Don't cut more than one bite of meat at a time. Eat it either by leaving the fork in the left hand, tines down, or changing it to the right, tines up, after the knife has been placed in the plate. Hold the fork prongs up when eating vegetables. Don't use your knife any more than necessary for cutting; use your fork for that purpose when possible. When you have finished with your knife and fork lay them across your plate parallel to each other, handles to the right, knife above fork with the blade facing you.
