Henry Cohen's Man . . .

B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation is giving $300 a year to A. & M. College for an unusual purpose. It does not go to the best athlete or the best-drilled soldier or the most accomplished scholar. It does not go to the winner of a jitterbug contest, the man who can call hogs most loudly or who can eat the most blackberry pies. It is not seeking out the most skilled essayist, the most fluent orator or the most active of those engaged in extra-curricular interests. The foundation has something else in mind.

A. & M. is asked to give this $300 each year to the student who, in the opinion of the deciding committee, has done most to promote friendliness between those of diverse religious faiths and racial origins. The purpose of the award, of course, is not so much to line the pockets of the winner as to call attention of young Texans to the good that such an influence can do.

The award thus has a direct objective which it may well do much to attain. But, incidentally, it was a stroke of inspiration to name the award the Rabbi Henry Cohen Fellowship. Henry Cohen stands in Texas for brotherliness under God. At an age when most men of his calling would be in retirement, contemplating a life's work well done, Henry Cohen is working harder than ever and enjoying every minute of his work. It is no trouble to Henry Cohen to aid his fellow men, because Henry Cohen just naturally loves them all. It should be a wonderful thing to be known at A. & M. as Henry Cohen's man. But it is far more wonderful actually to be that sort of man.

Intramural Pace Slows Down Friday

Friday was a slow day in intramural competition as attention of the athletes veered toward the double-dance weekend.

In Class A football, Mitchell Hall hit pay dirt in the last three plays of the game to overtake G Company 6-3. In the only other contest of the day, A Infantry swamped C Infantry 19-0 as Ferguson ran 30 yards for one T.D. and Matter and Lane providing the other scores.

Bizzell was apparently busy with dance plans and forfeited to H Infantry in their scheduled handball match with H Infantry.

In volleyball, H Company made short work of G Company, winning 15-7 and 15-2.

Wrestling eliminations continued with eighteen matches Friday. Survivors were Scheumack, Hedrick, Menger, Elrod, Koomey, Stides, Roach, Eckert, Rolinck, Hines, Williams, Crowder, Bowden, Zoller, Black, Berry Koeing, and Koopmann.

Our average income is about midnight.

ARE YOU FAMILAR WITH THE

PROFIT SHARING PLAN

1. Each regular student of the College is eligible.
2. Your cash register receipts are deposited at a convenient receptacle at each cash registrar.
3. These receipts are tabulated and filed.
4. At the end of the school year the Student-Faculty Advisory Board will declare a net surplus to be returned to student.

EXAMPLE: If the store has done a gross volume of $1,000,000.00, the net surplus amounts to $5,000.00 and a student has to his credit $100.00 worth of cash register receipts, his refund will be $5.00.
