Public is Invited To Mexican Movie

Color movies of old Mexico will be shown at the Chemistry Lecture Room tonight under joint auspices of the Latin-American Club and the Spanish Club. The free pictures will start at 7:30 p. m., and the public is invited to attend.

Filmed in natural color, the movie is set to music and narrated by Otto Mayer, who describes himself as "a photographer with itchy feet" who has spent much of the last 11 years traveling through Latin American by every conveyance from ox-cart to Pan-American Airways.

Scenes include the Floating Gardens of Xochimilco, the Aztec Sacrificial Dance at the Pyramid of the Sun, Conchita Cintron in the Mexico City bull ring, views of Cuernavaca, Taxco, Patzcuaro, Pueblo, Orizaba, and Fortin de las Flores. Also included are scenes of snow-capped volcanoes, waterfalls, rare tropical flowers such as orchids and gardenias, and pictures depicting the life of the people and customs of the country.

Mayer has shown the movies throughout Texas, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Iowa, and Minnesota.
