One of the Waco scribes described yesterday's baseball game as a comedy of errors, but to our mind it was a comedy of the Aggies banging every offering the Bruin twirlers served them.

In the first of the fourth it looked as if the rain gods would take over, and Coach Dimmitt, seeing his boys with a comfortable 7-1 lead, decided it would be a good idea to get the required four and a half innings played. Therefore, the Aggies did everything except go to bat without a bat trying to make outs, but the Baylor boys had different ideas. They started prolonging the contest, and it looked as if it might go on forever. But eventually the side was retired, and the ball game went the entire nine. The boys could have easily used flashlights in the ninth because of the darkness. Umpires could have used them during the entire game. (All right, maybe we don't have a right to talk about the umpires).

Bill Bradley, stellar first baseman for the Aggies, was called out of the ball game in the fourth inning when he received an emergency call from college that his little girl was seriously ill. He was rushed to Bryan, and reported last night that she was resting much better.

Hubert Moon got a freak hit yesterday. It was of the infield variety. With the count 2 and 1, "Hub" took a terrific cut, and hit the ball on the handle of his bat. The bat broke into three pieces, the big end going toward the second baseman, another piece going to the pitcher, and Hubert was left with a small piece of the handle. The second baseman chased the big end, the pitcher the small sliver coming his way, and the catcher was dumfounded, watching the ball trickle down the third base line. "Hub" took off for an infield hit, and a small piece of bat, he carried with him.

Bill Yeoman, outstanding basketball and football player has announced that he will enter West Point July 1. It will be a severe loss to both the teams, but the coaches and the student body wish Bill all the luck in the world in his new venture.

Yeoman is also a distinguished student here at college, and he passed both the competitive examinations for Annapolis and West Point.

in order to prevent runaway inflation the process of releasing price controls should be very gradual and on a selective basis.

The trend toward superiority in bargaining power of labor over capital started in 1930, Col. Chevalier said, and will result eventually in improved social and economic conditions. He warned that the transition would be accompanied by a good many evils and abuses and that the possibility of a government-controlled economy would be an attendant danger. He labelled as a common mistake the effort to arrest the trend rather than to control and guide it.

Col. Chevalier concluded his remarks by scoring the policy of isolationism and citing "our mutual dependence upon one another" as the hope for solution of both our domestic and international problems.

Aggies Trounce Baylor For Win No. 3

Beesley Pitches Five-Hit Ball As Cadets Hit Hard

The Texas Aggie baseballers chalked up victory number three in the Southwest Conference race yesterday, trouncing Baylor 13-2 at Waco. Earl Beesley went the route for the Ags and pitched another swell ball game, allowing only five hits.

The Cadets were hitting the ball hard, getting a total of 15 hits off the offerings of Garcia and Sheats, and were aided by the wildness of Garcia, who started for the Bears and donated six bases on balls in 2 2/3 innings. Hub Moon again led the Aggie offense, garnering four hits in five official trips to the plate.

The Aggies will travel to Dallas this weekend to play a two-game series with S. M. U. on Friday and Saturday, and will move on to Ft. Worth Monday for a single game with T. C. U. The Aggies are now leading the Conference, along with Texas university which has won
