

Jakkula Heads Bridge Design Research

Specifications for suspension-bridge design which will insure against repetition of spectacular failures like that of the Tacoma Narrows bridge in 1940 will come from the work of a committee of engineers of which Dr. A. A. Jakkula, acting vice director of the Texas A. & M. College Engineering Experiment Station, is chairman.

Dr. Jakkula's committee on interpretation and analyses, part of an advisory board appointed by the Public Roads Administration, to investigate causes of the Tacoma failure, will coordinate the results of research by other committees probing the behavior of suspension bridges when acted upon by wind forces.

A meeting of the advisory board was held recently in New York, Dr. Jakkula said.

We read the other day of a man who visited the cemetery every day to mourn over the death of his wife's first husband.

Aggie Players Picnic at Hensel

The Aggie Players, campus dramatic club under the direction of Forrest Hood of the English department, closed their semester's activities with a picnic last night in Hensel Park.

Barbecue and all the trimmings was prepared and served by the mess hall staff.

Approximately 40 members attended.

M. & S. E. DEPT. HEAD RETURNS THIS FALL

Col. Ernest W. Steel, head of the municipal and sanitary engineering department, now on military leave, has drawn high praise for his work as head of a public health program in Venezuela, according to press reports. Col. Steel is expected to resume his college post next September.

EXTENSION SERVICE ECONOMIST RESIGNS

W. E. Morgan, economist of the Extension Service, has tendered his resignation effective May 31. Morgan has found it necessary to devote full time to his business interests in Bryan and vicinity, he said.

Apart from time spent at Harvard and almost four years in the air corps, Morgan has filled the position of economist since 1936. While in the army he served on the air corps planning staff in Washington and in the CBI theater.

PHYSICS LABORATORY ASSISTANTS NEEDED

The departmental program of student laboratory assistants instituted at the commencement of the present semester has a number of vacancies for the summer term, and the semester starting next September.

Students who have proficiently completed the equivalent of the college sophomore course in physics are invited to apply to the physics department at once for these assistantships. The number of hours per week and the schedule can be arranged to suit the convenience of the assistant.

OBITUARY

Tessies Re-live Ring Dance While Cramming for Exams

The news this week concerns the senior ring dance down in Aggeland this past weekend. From all reports of the Tessies who journeyed "south of the Brazos" the ring dance was one huge success. Just ask any who attended. They returned Sunday night starry-eyed and wishing the weekend weren't over—nothing unusual about an Aggie weekend however.

It comes around every year, the same old thing, haunting you until it has passed. That thing known as exam week. Preceded by "dead week" exams will begin May 23 through the 31. During this period the campus is dead, but definitely. Why talk about it any longer? It's bad enough.

Heard of the wheat shortage? Well, so have we. The first breadless meal was held at Tuesday's dinner with Thursday's lunch completing the plan of two breadless meals per week. About 150 pounds of bread were saved at Tuesday's dinner.

The Metropolitan Opera performances in Dallas are drawing large crowds from TSCW with the use of the college buses to take students to the performances.

Winding up activities here at TSCW are lake parties, dinners, and picnics. Everyone is trying to grab that last minute bit of fun before the grusome ordeal of cramming begins. The call of the lake is mighty tempting, though, and sunbathing too, detracts from studying. However, the Denton rain, (how we love it, big joke) hasn't provided much opportunity for the latter.

Time to sign off now. Happy cramming!
