

Zinn Will Start On New Job After First of September

Effective September 1 Bennie Zinn will leave the Administration Building and go to Goodwin Hall and become Assistant Dean of Men. This is the position formerly held by W. B. (Woodie) Varner.

Although Zinn will not be active in the Veterans he will plan the policy of that office. Taylor Wilkins will succeed Zinn as active veterans adviser and carry out the policies.

Zinn began work as veterans adviser September 1, 1945, shortly after returning from Europe. Zinn worked under difficulties in the beginning, for some time without a secretary. Although the Veterans' Administration at Waco was not completely organized it rendered some assistance.

More than 8,000 men have been personally interviewed in this time. "A few veterans have raged and beat their fists on the desk, but the great majority have been pleasant and interesting to work with," Zinn stated. "I still wish to help any veteran or cadet with any problem he may have."

If every man, woman and child in the United States would eat one less slice of bread each meal, three-fourths of a million tons of wheat would be free for overseas shipment within 90 days.

Architects Plan and Build for Blanford

If you're having difficulty finding a place to live, you might take a tip from John Blanford, student from Port Arthur.

Blanford, a sophomore architecture major, gave his housing problem to the Architecture Department of the college and they have nearly solved it.

A fifth year architecture student, Otto Ransleben studied the needs of the Blanford family, consisting of Mr. and Mrs. and their small daughter. He designed them a functional modern house with many unused built-in features.

Sophomore architecture students, under the supervision of Ransleben, are building the house for the practical experience to be gained. They are doing all carpentry and painting. Outside contracts were let for concrete, plumbing, and roofing work.

The house is frame construction with waterproofed plywood exterior walls, plywood interior walls and insulation board ceilings. The structure has concrete floor throughout which is to be carpeted or linoleum covered. There is a flat deck roof covering the four room house.

"Although our labor difficulties have been a minimum, there have been several material shortages to cope with," Blanford said. In securing materials Blanford has made trips to Dallas, Fort Worth, Houston, Galveston and Port Arthur.

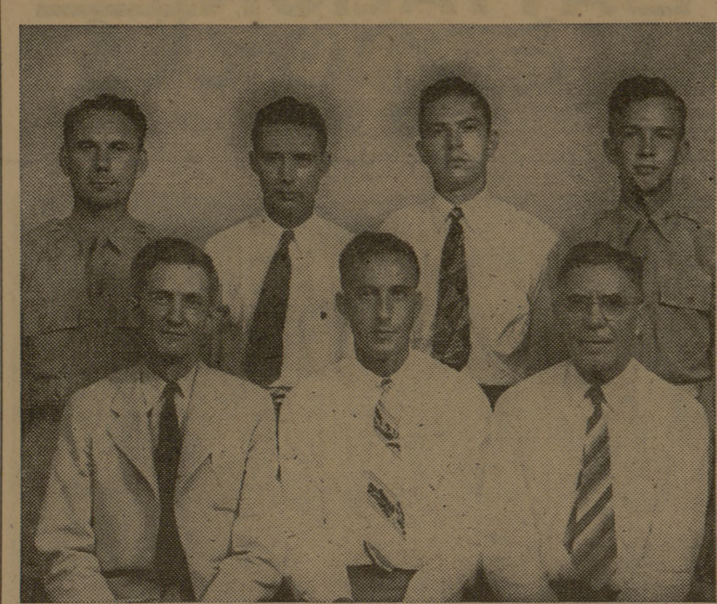

The Landscape Art Department is using the Blanford house as a final problem in the junior year landscape design class.

This project is drawing widespread attention and plans and scale models and photographs of construction progress is to be exhibited at the Museum of Fine Arts at the State Fair at Dallas this fall.

Blanford's house is located on South Foster Street in College Hills addition across from the East Gate of the campus. It is to be completed about the first of September.

Students Present Plans For Real Landscape Task

Students of Landscape Architecture have submitted plans in competition for the landscape development of the cottage behind the Quonset huts in the college nursery. The problem was assigned by N. M. McGinnis, professor of Landscape Art and instructor for the course. Mr. F. W. Hensel, head of the Department of Landscape Art, will choose the solution to be used.

Students who have submitted plans are: Sidney E. Bowers, Naud Burnett, Guy M. Chisolm, Jr., John F. Drozd, Alfred B. LaGasse, Lawrence S. Ross and Charles M. Trost. Plants to be used in landscaping the area will be taken from the college nursery. The cottage was moved from the campus to the nursery last year. It has been repapered and painted inside and out.

Married Couples Prove Bridge Players Saturday

The first bridge party for married couples was held last Saturday night in the Ex-Servicemen's Lounge of Sbis Hall.

Sharing hostess duties were Mrs. Nell Creel and Mrs. Bess Perkins, who awarded high prize to Mr. and Mrs. Dick Haas and low prize to Mr. and Mrs. Jack Newby. Soft drinks were served throughout the evening.

According to Mrs. Creel, the Bridge Club for Couples will be held once each month, beginning in September. Those interested are requested to watch the Battalion for future announcements of this event.
