"Forestry For Teachers," a new 76-page illustrated publication which the Texas Forest Service at A&M, believes will serve as a model in its phase of educational in-struction, is now being distributed Freshman Net school and college librari throughout Texas.

"Forestry For Teachers" was written for the use of elementary and high school teachers. It was designed to give teachers a background of basic subject matter in forestry and to provide pupil activities and suggestions for correlating forestry topics with reg-ular school courses.

The booklet was approved by the state Department of Education and was prepared as part of the Texas Forest Service's cooperative education program with that depart-ment. Members of the technical staff of the Texas Forest Service made noteworthy contributions.

"Forestry For Teachers" is the latest work of the author, Everett F. Evans, who wrote six of the seven Conservation Teachers manuals published by the Missouri Conservation Commission in 1940-41. Evans came to the Texas Forest Service as school specialist in 1946. After getting his master's degree at the University of Missouri in 1941, he worked with the Missouri Conservation Commission until he entered military service

Evans has published a number of magazine articles in the field of conservation education. He will soon publish another booklet through the Texas Forest Service, "Pupil Activities in Forestry and Related Conservation Sub-

Quarantine Not To Affect NC State's Football Practice

In spite of a polic quarantine on its players, North Carolina State's football team will continue practice. After doctors informed school athletic officials that exercise would not increase susceptability to the disease, practice for North Carolina's first game with Duke was resumed.

The quarantine was evoked after a 20-year-old freshman was diagnosed as an "acute case" of infantile paralysis.

At least the team should be free of pregame "scouters."

Yanks Cop AL Flag Helps Aggie Cause Fifteenth Time In League Play

By Joe Reichler

Associated Press Sports Writer

The New York Yankees were receiving congratulations today for having won their fifteenth flag in the last 27 years, a feat accomplished by no other team. Indications are that the new American League champions will shortly have a national league partner in the pennant celebration in the Brooklyn Dodgers.

The Yankees clinched their championship yesterday without lifting a bat. The assurance of mathematical certainty came when the Chicago White Sox defeated the Boston Red Sox 6-3 in the first game of a dobule header.

The Dodgers' clinching date should come before the end of the week. Leading the fast fading St. Louis Cardinals by seven and a half games, the Brooks need only a combination of six victories or Redbirds defeats to earn the right to face the Yankees in the world series.

Longhorn League umpires ausigned to tonight's playoff game between Big Spring and Ballinger at Ballinger have refused to work, but the game will be played as scheduled, League president Howard Green said today. Last night heard the return of yell practice.

The organized confusion, the spaghetti-like confetti and the jokes were the same as always, the der fire. It marks the end of the "recruiting season" and the coaches are tired of it all—tired of traveling the state seeking athletes. Thus, they will be more critical perhaps than at any other time.
