Finds Summer Here Cool After Venezuela . . .

Dr. JOSEF STADELMANN

Prof Creates Own Language When Other Seven Don't Satisfy

By MACK T. NOLEN "I am too old to learn anything new," says Dr. Josef Stadelmann, most recent addition to the modern language staff, "but I want my children to have the advantages of growing up in America."

There is no arguing about the benefits of growing up in America, but no matter what Dr. Stadelmann says, he is not the type to stop learning. A tall, gaunt man, Dr. Stadelmann has been in the United States just a year. He came to A. & M. from Denver University where he taught German and Russian, and he hopes to start classes in Russian here.

The Stadelmann story reads like fiction. He was born in Munich, Germany in 1904, attended three European universities, was imprisoned on political charges, and escaped to Switzerland. From Switzerland he went to Venezuela to work in the National Academy of History, and finally arrived in the U. S.

Dr. and Mrs. Stadelmann have two children—Sonia, born in Zurich, Switzerland, and Bimbo (Walter Bruno), born in Caracas, Venezuela. Sonia, a master of four languages, is in the fifth grade at Consolidated, a very American little girl after only one year. Bimbo, four years old, understands German, Spanish, and English, but prefers to speak Vouidu, a language of his father's invention.

Hearing Bimbo speak can be confusing at times, for he changes languages at the drop of an imperfect subjunctive, leaving his listeners baffled.

Dr. Stadelmann studied at the University of Tuebingen in Germany, the Sorbonne in Paris, and the University of Munich. For a year after graduation from Munich in 1931 he taught languages in a lyceum or high school. From Munich he moved to Ulm where the Nazis invited him to join the party. By refusing to do so, he cut himself off from any further teaching positions. In this state of enforced semi-retirement he did some translating and puttered around in his private chemistry lab.

In 1935 Dr. Stadelmann imprudently passed on a political pamphlet regarding the character and fitness of a Nazi official in Ulm. Betrayed by the person to whom he gave the pamphlet, he landed in prison, first in Ulm and later in Stuttgart. In 1936 with the aid of two friends Dr. Stadelmann made a daring escape from prison.

G. G. Gibson and J. W. Davis, dairy husbandmen for the A. & M. Extension Service, will attend the All-American Junior Dairy Cattle Judging Contest at Columbus, Ohio October 16-17. Gibson will stop over at Tiffin, Ohio, to visit a dairy cattle artificial breeding center. At Columbus he will assist with the cattle judging contest program. Davis will accompany the 4-H Club dairy cattle judging team from Texas to Columbus. Enroute they will visit the St. John Farm in Joplin, Missouri, the H'Doubler Farm in Springfield, Missouri, and the dairy department of the University of Illinois at Urban, Ill.

(in the spoon and door lock tradition) and fled to Switzerland where his wife joined him and Sonia was born. He worked in the International Labor Office of the League of Nations in Geneva as an interpreter for two years. Remuneration for this sort of work was not exceptional, and he turned to teaching, translating, and painting to support his family. He stayed in Switzerland as long as he did only because he expected a war which would turn into a German revolution to begin immediately.

Despairing of revolutions, Dr. Stadelmann packed his tribe off to Caracas, Venezuela, where the position of cataloger occupied him for eight years. While there, Mrs. Stadelmann, a student of her husband's own school of art, did a great deal of painting, and shortly before departing for the U. S. had a one-man show of her work which received the acclaim of the critics.

Also in Caracas, Dr. Stadelmann indulged in his favorite study—philosophy. He has spoken to several large audiences on the philosopher he likes the best Spinoza—and others. Herr Doktor is not content with knowing German, French, Spanish, Italian, and Russian. He has originated a language of his own. This language, called Vouidu (rhymes with scold you), is in sixty libraries in twenty-three countries. It is based on English with Spanish phonetics and traces of various others. When Dr. Stadelmann first revealed his language to the public, the Venezuelan newspapers compared him with Moses in the potential scope of his project.

Dr. S. had a two-inch thick bundle of passports and identification papers when he arrived in the U. S. The immigration officer told him he could throw away the bundle, he was free here. That impressed him, and since then he has been further impressed. He remarked, like most newcomers, about the way Americans live on a time-table. However, he feels the freedom about which the officer spoke. Before coming to the States he had a keen interest in political affairs, but now doesn't even read the newspaper. He subscribes to one because Sonia likes the comic section.

Devising international languages and exploring the mysteries of philosophy are not Dr. Stadelmann's only interests. While in prison in Germany he pondered over the eternal problems of chess-players, and with more time on his hands than he needed, invented a system of three-dimensional chess in which the pieces control rooms rather than lines. In Zurich, after his escape, he published his methods, and the experts of the chess world marveled at the plan. Needless to say, he is an expert himself. However, he considers the early work faulty and has revised it thoroughly.

A. & M. holds Dr. Stadelmann's interest because of its wealth of scientific and engineering material. He thinks the housing situation well-solved, and the quiet college atmosphere soothing. People warned him before he came here that the summers were unusually warm but his family has been sleeping under two blankets for weeks. Caracas definitely was not polar.

When asked what he considers his profession, Dr. Stadelmann answers, "Philosophy." He would like to get classes in that study started here if enough people show interest. "Teaching," he says, is the greatest and noblest good that man can do.

Professor A. L. Darnell of the dairy husbandry department left today to serve as superintendent of the Regional Guernsey and Ayrshire Show now in progress at the State Fair in Dallas.

Professor Darnell, who has also been superintendent for the last 21 years of the Dairy Division at Fort Worth Fat Stock Show, announced that more Guernsey entries have been made at the state fair this year than at any previous time during the last 20 years.

Professor Darnell also made known that the giving of premium money on prize winning Ayrshires will be resumed this year for the first time since before the war. The National Dairy Show for all breeds of cattle except Jerseys was held last week at the Waterloo Dairy Cattle Congress in Waterloo, Iowa. The A. & M. Judging Team, accompanied by their coach, Professor Darnell, attended the Waterloo Dairy Cattle Congress where they won fourth place in the judging of all breeds of dairy cattle.

Buntyn, Hancock, Slagle Vie For Veterans Association Presidency

Three candidates are running in the race for president of the Veteran Students Association; Grady Elms, Club advisor, announced yesterday afternoon when the filing deadline passed. They are: E. C. Buntyn, John G. Hancock, and C. V. Slagle.

Four veterans are in the vice-presidency race: William Grunelsen, Charles D. Kirkham Jr., Gus W. Lampe, and John W. Laufenberg.

Lauren D. Hobbs, Edward O. Courtade, and Thomas C. Brennan are vying for secretary, treasurer, and parliamentarian, respectively. There were no candidates for sergeant-at-arms.

Buntyn, a 23-year-old veteran student from Temple, is a member of the Class of '45. Majoring in agricultural economics, Buntyn was a former treasurer of the Veteran Students Association, vice-president of the Bell County A. & M. Club and staff member of The Agriculturist and The Battalion.

Hancock, '46, another candidate for president, is also 23 years old. From Corona, New Mexico, he was a representative of the Veteran Students Association and member of the Spanish Club and American Society of Civil Engineers.

Slagle, 23-year-old Army Air Force veteran from Taylor, is a member of the Class of '45. Majoring in aeronautical engineering, he was formerly president of the Williamson County A. & M. Club.

Grunelsen is a 25 year old veteran from Dallas. Taking chemical engineering, he is a member of the Class of '45, American Society of Chemical Engineers, and the Dallas A. & M. Club.

Kirkham, 22, an electrical engineering student from Cleburne. A sophomore, he was on the Veteran Students Association mess committee and a member of the Johnson County A. & M. Club.

Lampe, 25-year-old navy veteran from La Grange, is a dairy husbandry major. Finance chairman of the Kream and Kow Club, he was vice-president of the Annex Veterans Club last year.

Laufenberg, 25, is past president of the Annex Veterans Club. From Fort Arthur he is taking chemical engineering. Laufenberg is a member of the Port Arthur A. & M. Club, Fencing Club, and American Institute of Chemical Engineers.

Hobbs is sole candidate for the position of secretary. From Pecos he is a member of Flight A, Air Force and managing editor of The Battalion.

Courtade, 36, a horticulture major, is from Waco. He was summer treasurer for the Veteran Students Association, member of the Exchange Store Committee for 1946-47, and present president of the Waco-McLennan County A. & M. Club.

MacPhail Trades $2 Million For Share in Yanks

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK, Oct. 8 (AP)—So Larry MacPhail picks up the $2,000,000 and goes back to his Maryland farm and the world champion New York Yankees start down a new road under the direction of General Manager George Weiss.

The era of showboat promotion that resulted in new all-time records for baseball attendance at the Yankee Stadium in 1946 and 1947 and a new world series high probably will be forgotten. The turnstiles still will whirl under the impetus of a hustling ball club and night ball, but no more pre-game archery tests.

"You can only promote so far," Dan Topping, the new Yankee president, said last night after announcing that he and Del Webb, MacPhail's former partner, had bought up Larry's one-third share for $2,000,000. The official word from Topping followed by several minutes a telephone call to the Associated Press by MacPhail who gave out the same information.

During the hectic 27-hour period since the final out of the series, MacPhail blackened the eye of a former associate, John McDonald, who was road secretary under him at Brooklyn. That happened in a "victory" celebration at a mid-town hotel, climaxed by a number of arguments that Topping said were "better left unsaid."

Topping admitted one of MacPhail's acts during the victory celebration was to "fire" Weiss, who came with the organization in 1952 after operating minor league clubs at New Haven, Conn., and Baltimore, Md. He operated the extensive Yankee Farm Empire that now includes 25 ball clubs, seven under direct ownership.

Bucky Harris remains at Yankee manager. He has a two-year contract running through 1948.

English Department to Revive Debating and Discussion Club

Debating will be resumed at A. & M. this year, on both intercollegiate and intramural levels, according to an announcement by Dr. T. F. Mayo, head of the English department. Under sponsorship of that department the Aggie Discussion and Debate Club will be formed Tuesday night, October 14. The meeting will be held in Room 324, Academic Building immediately after yell practice, at approximately 8 p. m.

Membership in the group will be open to veterans and end-of-student. Previous experience in public speaking is not required under present plans, a student may join merely to take part in general discussions, or may participate in these special activities:

Debating on intercollegiate and intramural levels. Panel discussion on intercollegiate and intramural levels (possibly over the radio). Guest speaking at service clubs in various Texas cities.

The programs will be under the general direction of C. O. Spriggs, professor of speech, and will be supervised by three members of the English department staff: H. E. Herrth, M. A. Huggett and K. E. Elmqvist. Students are expected to take a leading part in directing the group once it has been organized.

4-H Story to Be Told in Magazine

Information on the Texas 4-H Club program has been requested by Frederick Simpck, associate editor of National Geographic Magazine.

Dr. Ide P. Trotter, director of the Texas Extension Service, J. W. Potts and Lorene Stevens, state club leaders will supply the information for the National Geographic.

A series of photographs, both kodachrome and black and white, which deal with 4-H work have also been sent to National Geographic, but the visual aids section of the Extension Service editorial office.

The information and pictures from Texas will be part of the material being assembled for an article on 4-H Club work which will appear in National Geographic.

Baptist Students Lead in Number

More than half the student body of A. & M. College are members of either the Baptist or Methodist church. According to J. G. Gay director of YMCA, Baptists lead with 2,288 members and the Methodist are next with 2,230.

The Catholic Church has 700 members, Presbyterian 752, Episcopalians 397, Church of Christ 360, Christian Church 338, Lutheran 285, Jewish 122, Christian Scientist 59, and miscellaneous 69.
