Baitling on a slippery, soggy field with rain falling during half of the game, the Longhorns outplayed the Porkers even more than the score disclosed.

The Longhorns took charge after the conference's co-champion eleven scored after eight minutes of play and the Rasorbacks were in Texas territory only once more. That time came in the last minute and a half of the context.

This count lacked two points of tying the 34-6 drule in 1938, the all-time high. The single Farrier tally that year was scored by Dick Todd.

A brisk north wind dominated the fray, knocking down punt averages and making passing difficult. The so-called 'vaunted Aggie passing attack' bogged down sand didn't start clicking till the final quarter. Two of the Frog tallies were set up by pass interceptions. Red Burditt took the opening kick-off and ran it to the A&M 46. Here the Aggies failed to make headway and Stan Hollmig punted to the TCU six. The rest of the quarter was primarily a punting duel with Holking recovering one of his own that had been blocked.
