

Aggies Tie Razorbacks 21-21; Take on Mustangs Here Saturday

Farmers Come From Behind To Hold Lead Until Final Period

By Art Howard

The Texas Aggies fought the Arkansas Razorbacks to a 21-21 tie in a cold misty rain at Fayetteville Saturday. Practically starting the game with a 14-point deficit, the Aggies amazed the fans by racking up 21 points in about half that many minutes.

Clyde Scott was the real show, netting 115 of Arkansas' 124 yards by rushing. He kept breaking loose for runs when the Aggie line held back waiting for a pass. On one 21-21 tie in a cold misty rain at Fayetteville Saturday. Practically starting the game with a 14-point deficit, the Aggies amazed the fans by racking up 21 points in about half that many minutes.

Clyde Scott took the ball around his own right end on a thrilling side-line run for the second Arkansas touchdown in the first four minutes of play. Arkansas had touched the ball twice and had made two touchdowns. Fowler again converted and the score stood 14-0 against the Aggies.

Deep in the first quarter Stan Hollmig kicked out on the Arkansas one-foot line. Aggie Guard Charles Overly blocked Fowler's punt in the end zone and tackle Joe Sacra fell on the ball for a score. The 30-man Aggie cheering section breathed a little deeper.

Early in the second quarter A&M started from its own 24 and threw four out of five pass completions to score from the Arkansas 35 on a clicking Baty-to-Welch combination. After the kickoff, end Charlie Wright intercepted a pass from Arkansas' Ken Holland and took it to the Razorback eleven. Ed Dusek drove to the six and Baty passed to Whittaker for the TD. Ballentine again kicked to make it 21-14 in favor of the Aggies.

Arkansas was tied down the whole second quarter when the hogs could not get beyond their own 37-yard line.

The final scoring of the day came when Scott passed to Pritchard who, with perfect blocking, ran the ball over from the A&M twenty. Thomson kicked the all-important point and tied the score up, 21-21.

The Aggies threatened again in the fourth quarter when Baty threw a pass to Whittaker to set the ball up on the Razorback thirty-seven. But the Arkansas defense held and the Aggies were forced to kick.

The crucial play of the game came in the last four minutes when Arkansas made its final bid to win. On third down, two to go, from the Aggie 45, Clyde Scott faked back to pass and the crowd stood up, expecting to see a touchdown. But before Scott had time to find his receivers, end Charlie Wright threw him back to the fifty, stopping the last serious Arkansas scoring threat. A few minutes later Jesse Burditt intercepted a pass on his own twenty. With the unofficial scoreboard showing no time left in the game, the Aggies drove down to the Arkansas 33 where play ended a few minutes later.

Coach Homer Norton said that he is satisfied and happy with his boys' performance. No new injuries or rehurt old ones came up except for a charlie-horse acquired by Ed Dusek.

CHARLIE WRIGHT, 21-year-old third string left end of Beaumont, played a bang-up game against Arkansas Saturday, intercepting a pass that set up an Aggie tally and setting the opposing ball carrier for losses on two occasions. Last year against Texas, the 200-pound, 6 foot three inch end with two varsity letters to his credit, snagged a pass from Stan Hollmig to become the first Aggie to ever score on a play from scrimmage on Memorial Field in Austin.

Aggies Force Forecaster to "Eat" Pre-game Predictions With Unexpected 21-21 Tie

Having just polished off the words of last Friday that an alert fighting Aggie football team made us this week-end, this corner officially goes on record as conceding the point that forecasting isn't one of our stronger points.

Not only did we manage to miss the Arkansas-Aggie score (we picked Arkansas 13-0) but our hunches on Texas and Baylor failed to pan out. Only on the Rice-Texas Tech game did we score a bulls-eye which couldn't have been very hard in view of the fact the Owls were no less than a four-touchdown favorite.

Two of Top 20 Teams to Clash In Alamo Bowl Jan. 1

SAN ANTONIO—"Football fans of South Texas need no longer take a back seat to Pasadena, Dallas, New Orleans or Miami," C. C. Krueger, football chairman of the San Antonio Chamber of Commerce, declared this week with his announcement that the Chamber will sponsor an Alamo Bowl Game on New Year's Day in San Antonio.

With all the major bowl games sold out, visitors expecting to come to San Antonio were requested to write immediately to the San Antonio Chamber of Commerce, 700 Insurance Building for ticket reservations which will be filled in order of receipt. Money order or check must accompany reservation.

Prices for the game are $7.29 for box seats, $4.80 for reserved seats on either side of the field. $3 for seats in the south section and end zone bleachers.

Alamo Stadium, with a normal seating capacity of 22,418, will enlarge facilities to take care of the sell-out crowd of 25,000 expected to attend.

Top teams in the first twenty of the nation are being scouted preliminary to feeder bids being sent out. The Chamber will offer each team $30,000 or forty-five percent of the receipts. This figure is slightly lower than the cash inducements of other major bowls but will attract most of the good football teams of the country.

Krueger extended a hearty welcome to all out-of-town visitors. He stated: "This Bowl game will stand on its own feet as a national attraction. The teams selected will be among the nation's best."

The Elk's Crippled Children Hospital at Odine, Texas will share in the net receipts. Louis Sien, publicity chairman of the Alamo Game committee, announced.

Aggie Coach Botchey Koch One-Man Show In Press Box During Arkansas-Aggie Tilt

Occupants of the Press Box atop Razorback Stadium were treated to a special attraction during the game which caused no small amount of laughter from the sports scribbles and a shocked look or two from the women present.

This one-man show was in the somewhat ponderous form of Botchey Koch, Aggie line coach who spent the afternoon telephoning defensive instructions to the Aggie bench.

Hardly a play passed that Koch didn't make an off-hand and highly partial remark.

Late in the second period when Arkansas launched a drive into A. & M. territory, Koch began squirming around in his seat trying to watch the scoreboard clock and follow the game at the same time. Finally, with five minutes remaining in the half the ex-Baylor great could stand it no longer and blurted out, "I don't believe that clock is running. It said four minutes to play a while ago." Then when Arkansas substituted the fleet Aubrey Fowler into the game, Botchey all but had kittens. On third down, Fowler dropped back in punt formation. Botchey immediately screamed into the phone that Fowler wasn't going to kick. "Tell the ends to get wide; if Fowler gets around them, it'll take a 30-30 to stop him." Fowler ran all right, but the Aggies, properly rehearsed by Koch, stopped the

Newmanites Beat TU Football Team Lose in Volleyball

The Newman Clubs of Texas A&M and Texas University inaugurated a series of intramural style sports on the Aggie campus Sunday, November 2. Only two sports were engaged in; volleyball was played in the morning and football in the afternoon.

The University of Texas Newman Club was the victor of the volleyball competition as they took two games out of the three played. The Aggies won the first game but lost the next two to a determined Texas sextet.

On the football field the Aggies reigned supreme. While officials of the A&M intramural staff handled play, the A&M eleven completely outplayed the Texas team and won by a score of 24 to 6.

Jim Tetley was responsible for the single Texas tally. He took a pass early in the game and stepped over the double mark for six points. The point-after was no good. The Aggies soon scored as R. B. Longman, end, took an Aggie pass and galloped across for a TD. There was no stopping the Aggies after that.

Frank Wagenhauser quarterbacked the Aggies to three more touchdowns before the plays ran out. He threw another paydirt pass, this time to Maurice Zery who ran the ball over from the Texas three yard line, and shot another pass to Longman for the last score. None of the conversion attempts were successful.

In the statistics department, the University Club managed to make only one 40-yard penetration while the Aggies pushed over four 40-yard penetrations and four more 20-yard penetrations.

There are more cars on American farms than telephones—4,150,000 cars as compared to 1,900,000 telephones.

WRAY WHITTAKER, right end from Houston, has a varsity letter to his credit and three years of eligibility left. The 21-year-old ex-sailor averaged 11 yards gained per pass last year. Against Arkansas last Saturday, Whittaker carried the ball over for an Aggie touchdown on a pass from the six.

SMU Has Unbeaten Record; Clash With Cadets Saturday

PAUL MARTIN

By virtue of a 14-13 victory over the visiting Texas University Longhorns in the Cotton Bowl Saturday afternoon, the Southern Methodist Mustangs now hold the only unbeaten and untied record in the Southwest Conference.

This leaves the Ponies bringing an unblemished record to Kyle Field next Saturday against the Aggies who sport one loss and one tie in conference play.

A special train has been provided to convey SMU fans and at 8:30 Saturday morning and returning at 5:15, arriving back in Dallas at 9 p. m.

SMU's All-American candidate Doak Walker piloted the Ponies to top place in SWC rankings, personally accounting for two conversions as well as setting up the winning touchdown by snagging a 64-yard pass from rifle-armed Gil Johnson.

The Red and Blue played hard a one-man game though for Dick McKissack and Paul Page in the backfield and a hard-charging forward wall contributed their share to the victory.

Texas' Bobby Layne was hampered by a brisk wind when he attempted to take to the air but nevertheless completed nine forwards in 13 tries.

The statistics indicate that the game was as close as the score showed. SMU outstripped Texas by three yards net gain passing and rushing—196 to 199, but the Steers won nine first downs to seven.

Even though Steer halfback Frank Guess' second try for the extra point was wide, the talented toe of the 25-year-old Junior from Wharton accounted for a 51.5 punting average.

In other title in the Southwest, Baylor dropped its second in a row, this one to TCU in the tune of 14-7. Though two losses do not mathematically eliminate a team from a bid for the honors, the chances are practically nil.

A pass from Frog quarterback Lindey Berry to Bill Moorman in the middle of the fourth quarter clinched the game for the visiting purple eleven but until that time, a strong Bruin ground game left the outcome in doubt.

With Rice and Arkansas already out of the running, this leaves only SMU, TEXAS, and TCU as strong contenders. One loss and one tie leaves the Aggies with a questionable chance.

Rice came alive in the second half of its scramble with Texas Tech to edge the Raiders 40-7. The end of the first half found the count 12-7.

The Owls showed a strong ground attack, racking up 287 yards on the sod while holding their foes to a net gain of seven yards. In the air, however, the Raiders chalked up 116 yards to 67 for the Owls.

This week-end finds the Horned Frogs tying life in preparation for the crucial Texas tilt on November 15. TCU has also the tough SMU game to play before the season ends. Rice and Arkansas meet to decide which is the stronger of last years co-champions but the outcome should have no effect of the conference and Baylor and Texas clash in Austin.

Baylor-A&M Film Late and Too Long

Students attending the Quarterback Club meeting last Thursday night no doubt were disappointed and wondered-what had happened to the A&M-Baylor football film they had expected to see. The film arrived too late to find a reel large enough to accommodate its 1900 feet. All available reels held only 1800 feet and there was no time for cutting.

The Quarterback Club is promised that they will get to view the game on the screen next Thursday.
