Grading System To Be Discussed By Debate Club

A panel discussion of the A&M grading system coupled with the so called "pass or fail" system will be featured Monday night at a meeting of the Debate and Discussion Club, Karl Elmquist, debate coach, announced Friday.

The discussion will take its cue from the recent Battalion editorial concerning the demand of students at Tulane University for a pass or fail grading system. Under the proposed set-up only two grades may be given a student: P or F.

The panel will attempt to clarify details of the system, and will ask the audience to participate in a question period at the conclusion of the discussion.

Students who desire to compete in the proposed intramural debate tournament may file application at the meeting. Elmquist declared.

The meeting will be a regularly-scheduled one for the debaters. Business affairs of the club will precede the panel discussion. Refreshments will be served.
