Nolan Announces For Commissioner Of Precinct 1

Raymond A. Nolan, 40, farm owner and operator of Wellborn, has announced his candidacy for county commissioner of Precinct 1, subject to the action of the voters in the Democratic primary. Nolan has lived in the precinct for 29 years. Born and reared in the Marvey community, he moved to Wellborn in 1922 where he and his family, Mrs. Nolan and their five children, live on their farm.

His only son plans to enter A. and M. in September, and three of his daughters are now attending A&M Consolidated School. If elected, Nolan says he will seek an increase in allotment of funds to keep the road machinery and crew on the roads when needed. He believes in using the equipment to build terraces, ditches, and tanks when not in use on the highways.

Nolan also believes that machinery should be used to build drives and on drainage work in cemeteries and around churches and schools. He pledges his support to save the taxpayer money or reduce taxes.

"I don't believe a commissioner should hold another job or operate any other business and use the commission as a sideline," Nolan told The Battalion yesterday. "If elected," he said, "I promise the voters of the precinct to stay on the job and do the best I can with what I have with which to do."

'Our Town' Production Tops Careers of Aggie Players

A living town—whose people were New Englanders but might as well have been rural Texans—was set upon the scenery stage of the Assembly Hall last night. Thornton Wilder's moving documentary play of American life, "Our Town," is the crest of achievement for the Aggie Players. It will be presented again tonight and tomorrow night at 8. Few plays seem as strange at the beginning as "Our Town," but the strangeness is due to a technique which throws away standard theatrical tricks and substitutes a lifelike simplicity. There is no scenery—the stage is bare when spectators enter the theatre, and only a few properties are set out from time to time. Yet the New England village with its white houses become more vivid to the mind than if it had been painted. The Aggie Players have come a long way since their foundation three years ago. Last night's smooth production is attributable both to the direction of George Dillavou and the considerable talents of a large group of players. Betty Knowles will have to be protected from screen scouts to Hollywood. As Emily, the young bride of the play, Miss Knowles gave the best performance seen in College Station in recent years. Closely pressing her for honors

Both Sides Of Bonus Issue To Be Discussed

Veterans on the A&M campus will have a chance to discuss "Operation Bonus" at a special meeting Tuesday in the Assembly Hall at 7:15 p. m. The meeting will be under the general auspices of the Veterans Students Association, but will be open to all student veterans. Taylor Wilkins, Veterans Adviser, will describe summer registration plans, in addition to telling how A&M received an invitation to participate in the recent "Operation Bonus" meeting in Austin. Bob Polson, one of the two Aggie delegates at the Austin meeting, will tell in detail what happened at that session.

"Letters to the Editor of the Battalion have indicated a great deal of interest in this subject. An open meeting seems to be the best way to answer questions," Polson said. Student speakers, both for and against the proposed bonus, will be given a chance to express their views, Polson stated. In order to make the most of the time allocated, however, he requests that those who wish to speak see him at Room F-3, Walton Hall. Knowing how many intend to talk, it will be possible to figure out how much time should be allotted to each speaker.

At the Austin meeting, a resolution was adopted to work toward a state bonus for veterans, to be paid from a natural resources tax, and not to exceed $500. A Communist, Wendell Addington, offered the support of that group, but on a motion by Polson, Communist support was repudiated and Addington left the convention hall. Most of the colleges in Texas are taking part in the movement. However, "Operation Bonus" is not limited to college veterans. Polson pointed out. Actually the bonus is a more critical issue to veterans now working than to those in school, he said.

Aggie Debaters To Meet TCU Team In Fort Worth Today

Eight members of the varsity debate squad left last night for Fort Worth where they will hold a series of classroom and radio debates with Texas Christian University, E. F. Hubka, debate coach, announced today. Representing A&M during the one-day meet are John L. Taylor, Jimmy Stevens, John A. Shortle, Milton Abelow, Charles Cabaniss, Thomas Cruz, Jack Sheppard, and Paul B. Wells.

J. R. Harvey and H. S. Creswell, members of the English department, accompanied the team on the trip. Each of the four squads is to participate in two debates on the topic "Resolved: That a Federal World Government Should Be Established."

Stevens and Shortle will debate over Radio Station KFJZ this afternoon, while Sheppard and Cabaniss are to engage in a formal debate this evening against TCU's number one team. The remainder of the debates today were to be held before classes on the TCU campus. The Aggie teams will return to the campus Friday.

Sam Donahue Band to Play For Senior Dance, May 14

Sam Donahue and his band have consented to play for the Senior Ring Dance, May 14, in Sbisla Hall according to N. R. Leatherwood, class social secretary. Upon receipt of a telegram from Donahue yesterday, Leatherwood said that final plans have been completed for the dance and the banquet in Duncan Hall. Seniors may make reservations with student senators in any of the dormitories or areas on the campus. Leatherwood asked that all seniors desiring tickets for the banquet or dance make reservations with these senators. The Senior Ring Dance Committee will compile a list to determine how many people will be expected. After-dinner speaker for the banquet, which will be at 7 p. m. is "Prof" R. E. Jackson of the history and government department at TSCW. According to Leatherwood, he is a humorist and philosopher who is well known for his speaking ability. Colonel Guy S. Meloy will present the organizational commanders with keys for their work during the past year. Bennie A. Zinn, assistant dean of men, will give the keys to the Moore Trophy, Award to the seniors of the winning organization. C. G. "Spike" White will give out "Who's Who at A&M" awards. Gus Vieta, Senior Class historian, will give the class history. Corps Chaplain Cliff Harris will give the invocation, and Sam Hill, college chaplain, will give the benediction. Leatherwood has been named Master of Ceremonies, and he will introduce all but the main speaker. President Gibb Gilchrist will introduce Jackson. The Ring Dance will begin as soon as the banquet is completed. Leatherwood said that the dance

Vocational Ag Students Will Participate in Contests Here

Over 600 vocational agriculture students are expected to enter the state judging contests to be held on the campus Saturday May 1. Approximately 150 agricultural instructors are expected to accompany the students. These men will arrive at A&M sometime Friday afternoon. At 7:30 that evening Charles N. Sheppard, dean of agriculture, will deliver an address of welcome in the gym. The welcoming address will be followed by a show. The contestants and instructors will spend Friday night at Little Aggie land where 12 barracks have been reserved for them. Judging contests will start at 8 p. m. Saturday morning. Contests will be held in the judging of livestock, poultry, dairy cattle meats, and dairy products. Contestants for all the groups will meet at 7:45 Saturday morning to organize and receive instructions. Livestock judging teams will meet in the A&I Pavilion, dairy judging teams at the dairy barn, poultry judging teams at the poultry farm, meat judging teams on the south side of the A&I Building and dairy products judging teams at the A&M Creamery. All contests will be completed Saturday morning. Winners will be announced in the afternoon in the lecture room of the Agricultural Engineering Building. Banners will be awarded to the first, second, and third place teams. There will be no individual awards. These judging teams will represent each of the 10 vocational areas in the state of Texas. Only teams which ranked in the highest 10 percent in their respective areas are eligible to enter the contest here. There is no limit to the number of teams which any team may enter, provided the teams placed within the highest 10 percent in the respective area. Any Aggie who is a student of agriculture and is interested in helping to put on the contest is requested to report to W. W. Warren of the animal husbandry dept. E. D. Parnell of the Poultry husbandry department or A. L. Darrell of the dairy husbandry department.
