

Capacity Audience Views School Film Monday in YMCA

The premiere showing of the film, "Building for Learning," drew a capacity audience Monday night at the YMCA. The sound and color picture depicted old and new school rooms and buildings.

The film was produced by the Architecture Department in cooperation with the Experiment Station, Texas A&M College. It depicts the school room and building, when properly lighted, ventilated and sound proofed.

The showing was part of the program of the Texas School Administrators conference now in session here.

E. R. Langford, head of the Architecture Department, gave a brief outline of the work that led up to the completion of the film. H. W. Barlow, Dean of Engineering, and Terrell Ogg, president of the Texas School Administrators Conference, gave short talks.

Oklahoma Ex-Students Throw Barbeque for Cadets In Camp

By LARRY GOODWIN

The old saying, "once an Aggie, always an Aggie," was never proved more conclusively than last Wednesday, July 20th at Ft. Sill, Oklahoma, when seven Aggie-exes in the Lawton-Ft. Sill area got together and threw a huge barbeque for the hundred Aggies now enrolled in ROTC training at the Artillery School.

Held at Craterville Park, a resort 15 miles from Ft. Sill, the barbeque was attended by every Aggie in camp—much to the chagrin it is reported of the assorted Oklahoma, Colorado A&M, Arkansas, and St. Mary's cadets, whose ex-students apparently had no such school spirit.

As a matter of fact, Col. William Becker, class of '41 who also attended the affair was quoted as saying that the jealousy of the cadets from the other schools was so noticeable that he anticipated trouble in upholding the esprit of corps of his unit. Col. Becker is in command of Battery A at the camp, one of the three units into which cadets have been placed for training purposes.

Responsible for the barbeque were seven Aggie-exes ranging from the class of '25 to the class of '45. They were: W. R. Benson, '41 of Ft. Sill; C. F. Young, '43 of Ft. Sill; Ben Ansley, '38 of Lawton; Lee Woods, '43 of Lawton; John Kenney, '25 of Lawton; Dr. Charles Kelsey, '45 of Lawton and Dr. "Kid" McCoy, '42, Lawton. Also present was John Bryan, '38 of San Angelo.

In addition to Col. Becker, four other officers at the camp who wear Aggie rings attended the barbeque. They were: Major Brock H. Faulkner, Captain T. M. Kirkpatrick, '44, Captain R. G. Tittley, '42, and Lt. Herb Carter, '49.

The affair was enlivened by talks on the part of Ralph Daniels, Art Haws and Johnny Heeman on the prospects for '48-49 in football, track and swimming. With Jimmy Stephens, Head Yell Leader for next fall, leading the way the group ended the evening by bouncing a few dozen yells off the surrounding Oklahoma mountains.

The annual ROTC Artillery dance was held at Ft. Sill, July 16th at Dan T. Moore Hall. Expected to be a rousing success anyway, the dance was further enlivened by the importation of some 60 stag females from Lawton and Chickasha, towns near Ft. Sill.

With only one more week to go before camp closes Saturday, cadets at Ft. Sill are undergoing a final intensive phase of training before calling it quits for the summer.

Conducting fire all last week from observation posts in the capacity of forward observers, cadets this week will go on a series of Battery RSOP's (Reconnaissance Selection and Occupation of Position), to be culminated next Wednesday and Thursday by a two-day field RSOP involving the entire Battalion.

When camp closes on the 31st, cadets can look back on a six-weeks that saw them observe and conduct 105 mm Howitzer fire, both from the ground and from the air; undergo two weeks of intensive training in the technical aspects of anti-aircraft gunnery followed by another week in the field and finally undergo simulated "attacks" from a squadron of P-51 fighters attacking an artillery position at an altitude of 10 feet!

The ROTC Camp at Ft. Sill will be inspected this week, by General Thomas T. Handy, commanding general of the fourth army.

Graduation exercises at Ft. Sill will be held Thursday July 29th, with processing slated for Friday and departure for Saturday.

Aggies were very much in evidence at the annual camp Fite Nite held Thursday night at the "Artillery Bowl" at Ft. Sill. Aggies were involved in eight of the nine fights on the card, winning five of them.

After a first round flurry, Arthur Exell, '49 outpointed Lee Duggan, '26, also of A&M and won by a decision. Murray Cox, '35 of A&M dropped an eye-lash decision to Orville Wise, '35 of Oklahoma University. An exhibition between 1/Sgt. George Scott of St. Mary's and M/Sgt. James Norman of A&M showed polish and style to the crowd. Norman cuffed Scott soundly to take a unanimous decision.

Lonnie Cole, '37 of A&M beat Jack Chin, '37 of St. Mary's, by a decision in a bout marked by frequent flurries of solid punches. The crowd suffered a severe disappointment when what looked to be the top fight of the evening between Dick Mitchell, '55 of OU and Don Decker, '55 of A&M, was credited to Mitchell on TKO in the first round after a right cross closed one of Decker's eyes.

Desk Fite, '60, OU had James Dismuke, A&M reeling but still upright as the third round ended and won by a decision.

Harold Zeitman, A&M, took a close exhibition bout from Richard Colianni, '65, of the 17 FA Bn. in which Colianni went down for an eight-count in the third round.

In the final event, heavyweight Bob Holmes, '20, clashed with Sammy Bishop, '98 of the 1st Obsn. Bn. in an exhibition which was a real slug fest. Bishop had the reach on Holmes but the Aggie kept landing the most punches and won by a close decision.

Williams to Teach At U. of Minnesota

E. L. Williams, director of Industrial Extension Service, will teach at the University of Minnesota during the second summer term.

Williams will teach courses in supervision for the Department of Industrial Education. He has taught former summer courses at Colorado A&M College, Pennsylvania State College, and the University of Texas.

He will return to the A&M campus on August 30.
