SMU's Peruna Is Victim Of False 'Ponynapping' Report

By BUDDY LUCE

"Hang the boss thief!" This was one of the various and sundry uncensored screams of anguish coming up and down Highway 81 between Dallas and Austin yesterday. The reason for such an atomic upheaval was the report that some unscrupulous boss-thief had purloined and gone south, so to speak, with Peruna, the half-pint pony mascot of the Southern Methodist University football team.

While the Associated Press wire bulged with the blasphemous emitting from Dallas, keepers of the little steed dashed madly to the stables where Peruna is usually kept and made a hasty check on the whereabouts of same.

When accosted concerning the matter, the little lady in the SMU athletic office was very emphatic in her denial of the reported "ponynapping." "It's a gross exaggeration," she said. "We just heard about it and checked the stable where she's kept and Peruna is there, period!" The young lady, Miss Aline Hamlett, continued her statement by saying, "These folks down at the University of Texas would start any kind of story to try to get our goats."

Seating Plan Announced For Game Saturday

By HENRY LACOUR

Corps students will sit in the stands north of the 50 yard line on the east side of Kyle Field during the Arkansas game. Non-military students will sit from the 50-yard line south, according to C. D. Ownby, business manager of athletics.

On the west side of the stadium Sections 100, 101, and 102 are to be reserved for veterans with wives or dates. These sections are the last three on the south end of the west stands near the temporary bleachers.

The Corps will march into the stadium, as usual, circle the field and pass by the Corps Staff, which will be standing on the 50 yard line of the east side. They will then break formation and enter the stands from the 50 yard line north continuing around the curve of the horseshoe to section 120.

The band will sit in the lower 16 rows of Section 132, and the same space south of the 50 yard line will be reserved for Arkansas students.

These seating arrangements are only for the Arkansas game. Ownby said. The Student Senate will announce the arrangement for the Rice game later, he added.

Three Architects Enter Drawings In State Contest

Robert L. Palmer, Gene R. Summers, and Edwin S. Redondo, architecture students, have entered drawings which will be used in the state entry as competitive designs for a consolidated rural school in west Texas.

The designs will be displayed at the school seminar meeting in conjunction with the annual session of the Texas Society of Architects at Bandera, October 29 and 30.

The design is for schools of 500 scholastic population. Students presenting the winning designs will receive cash awards.

The school seminar was organized and is sponsored by the architecture department of which Dr. Ernest Langford is head. Dr. Langford will preside at the seminar.

Other schools which may enter students in the contest are Rice Institute, University of Texas, Texas Tech, and the University of Houston.

Five Students To Attend National SAM Conference

Five management engineering students left early in the week for New York where they will attend the National Conference of the Society for the Advancement of Management, Joe Reuss, reporter for SAM, has announced.

J. T. Williams, Marvin Keurs and Grady Griffin left by automobile early Monday morning and were expected to arrive in New York Wednesday night. Charles Jacobs and James White left early Wednesday morning from Dallas.

This is the second year that A&M has sent representatives to the national conference. Last year Jack Turner was the delegate from A&M.

The five delegates are expected to return to College Station next Wednesday. A complete report will be given to the Society at its next meeting.

Vet Patients To See Game Saturday

Thirty-four veteran patients of McCloskey Veterans Administration Hospital at Temple will be the guests of A&M College here Saturday according to P. L. "Pinky" Downs, Jr.

The veterans who are honor guests will be here to see the A&M-Arkansas game by arrangement of Wade Massenbuck, class of '23 and Joseph Westbrook, class of '23.

The guests will arrive in private cars at 11 a. m. through the cooperation of the "Grey Ladies" who are sponsoring the trip. They will be served meals in Dunce Hall.

In order that the veterans may have an unobstructed view of the football game, seats will be provided on a special platform on the 50-yard line.

Thirty Former Presidents Of Ex-Students Will Be Honored

Chem Workers Hold 3rd Short Course at A&M

With the aid of a "mock-up" of a chemical plant, temporarily installed in the Chemistry Lecture Room, 300 Texas chemical engineers were briefed on basic principles of automatic process controls here Wednesday by R. N. Pond, application engineer of Taylor Instrument Company, Rochester, N. Y. The engineers attended the third annual short course on instrumentation for the process industries at A&M.

By use of the "mock-up," which included basic units similar to those in chemical and petroleum plants along Texas' Gulf Coast, Pond showed how automatic instruments can control temperature, pressure and flow of liquids or gases.

Though basically similar to thermostats in home hot water heaters, these temperature controls will automatically keep a liquid within a pipe or retort at a temperature which never varies so much as one degree either way. By comparison, the household thermostat has a leeway of ten degrees.

The "mock-up," which was shipped from Philadelphia to College Station for the course, showed both those parts of the automatic controls that are usually seen on control panels, and the parts that are normally hidden behind metal panels or even inside retorts and pipe.

The short course was concluded after a display of exhibits and a question-and-answer panel Thursday.

G. L. Farrar of the chemical engineering department at A&M, is director of the course and secretary of the steering committee. P. G. Murdoch, also of the chemical engineering department at A&M, was chairman of the steering committee.

George G. Smith, '30, Will Be Toastmaster For Dinner Given in Sbis Saturday Night

Thirty past presidents of the Former Students Association will be honored on the Campus this weekend with a dinner in Sbis Hall, according to Dick Hervey, executive secretary of the Former Students Association.

Toastmaster for the dinner in their honor in Sbis's Banquet Room will be George G. Smith, Class of '30, and the current president of the Association.

L. B. Locke, '22, will give the invocation opening the ceremony. Smith will introduce the past presidents and present the scrolls which are all hand-embossed white parchment with the name of the recipient and the words "in recognition and grateful appreciation of his faithful, unselfish service as president of the association for the year."

All councilmen will register at the YMCA lobby Saturday from 10 to 2 and 2:30 they will go to the Aggie-Bazorbak game on Kyle Field.

From 6:30 to 9:30 there will be a reception in Sbis Lounge honoring the past presidents. After the reception will be the dinner lasting from 7 to 9. Besides the 30 past presidents, a group of about 186 others will attend the dinner.

This group will be composed of all class agents, a representative from each chartered A&M club, a representative from each of the 31 senatorial districts, 10 councilmen at large, officers of the Senior Class, and the president of the Junior Class. The group is representative of all ex-students and is the governing body of the association.

Melvin J. Miller, '11, from Ft. Worth will be the principal speaker of the evening. Miller is one of the executives of the DuBose, Rutledge, & Miller Insurance Agency in Fort Worth.

Three of the former association presidents — Tyree L. Bell, '13, Rufus R. Peoples, '28, and C. C. Krueger, '12 — are now members of the Board of Directors.

Following the dinner Saturday night, the regular fall business session of the association council will be held in the YMCA Chapel.

Two major items of business on the agenda will be the selection of the 1949 development fund objectives and amendments of the association's by-laws. Other routine business items will be discussed also.
