

LABOR DISPUTES DECREASE IN MONTH OF DECEMBER

AUSTIN, Tex., Jan. 20 (AP)—Three new labor disputes were reported during December compared to 14 during November. The Texas Employment Commission reported that a total of four disputes were settled in December, but at the month's end there were still 27.

TWO BILLS REORGANIZING SCHOOL SYSTEM INTRODUCED

AUSTIN, Tex., Jan. 20 (AP)—Introduction in the Senate of the first two of nine bills to enact the Gilmer-Aikin education proposals into law is awaiting a message to the legislature from Gov. Beauford H. Jester.

FRANK KOVACS PLAYS IN TENNIS QUARTER FINALS

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., Jan. 20 (AP)—Top-seeded Frank Kovacs of Oakland, Cal., faced Joe Whalen of Ponte Vedra, Fla., a former national pro champion, in the quarterfinals of the national professional clay courts tennis championships today.

ZAHARIAS FAVORED TO WIN IN WOMEN'S GOLF TOURNEY

TAMPA, Fla., Jan. 20 (AP)—Babe Zaharias was so heavily favored to win the Tampa women's open golf tourney beginning today that there was more interest in who would finish next to her.

US FIGHTER PLANES COLLIDE OVER GERMANY

NEUBERG, Germany, Jan. 20 (AP)—Three American fighter planes collided in the air over southern Germany today, killing two of the pilots.

AIR FORCE HASTENS PRIVATE TO ATTEND INAUGURATION

SAN ANTONIO, Jan. 20 (AP)—The air force slashed red tape yesterday to allow a Lackland Air Force base private, William H. Dorsey, Jr., to attend the inauguration of President Truman in Washington today.

11 MISSING, 20 INJURED IN CRASH OF SHIPS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20 (AP)—Thirty-one casualties of the pre-dawn collision of the coast guard cutter Eastwind and the S. S. Gulfstream were announced today by the U. S. Coast Guard here.

Only Cadet Corps Will Attend Ball

All students presently active in the Cadet Corps this semester are eligible to attend the Military Ball according to a decision made by the Military Ball Committee yesterday.

WEATHER

East Texas — Partly cloudy to cloudy, not so cold this afternoon and tonight, turning colder extreme north-west portion late tonight or Friday. Friday cloudy, snow in northwest, warmer south east, colder northwest portion. Lowest tonight, near freezing extreme north-west portion. Moderate north-east winds on the coast, becoming southeast Friday.

Aggie Players To Give Follies All-College Day

The Aggie Players will put on the follies for this year's All-College Day, the all-college day committee decided at a meeting Wednesday evening.

The sub-committee working on the follies reported that an agreement had been reached with the Aggie Players in which they will take the responsibilities for the entire show. The reservation was made, however, that the show produced by the Players will be subject to the approval of the all-college day committee which is offering its assistance in the production.

Tom Puddy was added to the follies sub-committee which will act as an advisory group to the Aggie Players. Presently the committee is planning to give two performances of the show, one on Friday, May 6, and the other on All-College Day which will be on May 7.

The all-college day committee then heard representatives of the Ross volunteers who are planning to print a program for the All-College Day and Mother's Day week-end. Both groups agreed that (See AGGIE PLAYERS, Page 6)

HARRY S. TRUMAN will be inaugurated today as president of the United States for four fateful years.

One Hundred Cadets Receive Commissions Tonight In Guion

Kemplin Leads Saddle, Sirloin In Spring Term

Carl Kemplin was elected president, and Tom Bergen was made vice president at the Tuesday night meeting of the Saddle and Sirloin Club.

F. I. Dahlberg was the unanimous choice for club sponsor to succeed Jim Gray, who is now with the extension service.

Other officers elected were Charlie Rankin, secretary-treasurer, and Scot Howell, parliamentarian.

Charlie Rogers, chairman of the band committee, announced that Jessie James and All the Boys have been contracted to play for the Cattleman's Ball, which is to be held March 19 in Sbisla Hall.

Jack Kingsberry, retiring president, reported that the Saddle and Sirloin Rodeo Arena plans are progressing satisfactorily and that the arena is expected to be completed by summer.

Dr. J. C. Miller, head of Animal Husbandry Department, commended the retiring officers on "an excellent job done this past year in helping to make the Saddle and Sirloin Club one of the most active clubs on the campus." The club sponsored three main attractions on the campus; the Aggie Rodeo, the Little Southwestern Show and the Cattleman's Ball.

Charlie Rankin, reported the financial condition of the club at the meeting. The September 1948 balance was $65. Total receipts from donations, the Aggie Rodeo and dues amounted to $5,330.77.

Expenditures for judging team medals, federal taxes, printing, advertising, rodeo stock, and expenses for judging team trips to Kansas City and Chicago came to $4,850.30.

The present balance is $480.47 with the Little Southwestern Show and the Cattleman's Ball yet to come, Rankin said.

Contribution Made To Ag Sub-Station

In order to complete cattle pens and sheds at the new Beaumont Rice-pasture substitution of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, the Texas Rice Improvement Association has granted $871.93 to the station.

"This is only one of many contributions by the Texas Rice Improvement Association toward the new substitution," Dr. R. D. Lewis, director of the Experiment Station, "because of this grant, we have been able to make essential modifications in the construction of cattle pens and sheds to make them better suited for experimental purposes."

Experimental work at the rice-pasture station is under the direction of W. C. Davis, superintendent.

Major General Berry to Award Commissions; President Bolton Will Address New Officers

One hundred Reserve Office commissions will be presented to eligible cadets tonight at 7:45 in Guion Hall by Major General K. L. Berry, adjutant general of the State of Texas. The cadets receiving their second lieutenant's commissions have completed four semesters of advanced military science and four semesters of basic military science or equivalent. Gen. Berry is a native Texan who entered the Texas National Guard as a private in 1916.

Truman Takes Oath At Huge Ceremony

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20, (AP)—Jaunty, confident Harry S. Truman becomes president of the United States today for four more uncertain years. And for his inauguration, America put together the greatest national pageant in all its history.

Hundreds of thousands of his countrymen, the big people and the little, were on hand to crowd the capital's gaily decked streets and give him a "Hi, Harry" pay him honor and wish him well. Yet beneath all the gayety and excitement, the most Washington has stirred up in many a year, there was an undertone of solemnity, and dignity.

For at this supreme moment in the story-book career of the one-time Missouri farm boy there rested on him the eager expectations of millions of Americans for more bounteous blessings, and hopes of an uneasy world for peace in our time and peace for all time.

And peace was the theme everybody expected in advance in Mr. Truman's inaugural address. That—and a "fair deal" at home—was what he hammered on hardest in a rousing campaign that produced one of the biggest upset victories in American politics.

He repeated it last night at a dinner given him by the electoral college—an ancient institution he says he wants to preserve unchanged.

The chief executive seemed once more to underscore his will for peace in selecting the ten commandments and the beatitudes as the biblical passages on which to steady his left hand while taking the oath of office for the world's most trying job: "Thou shalt not kill" . . .

Blessed are the peacemakers: for they shall be called the children of God."

A white frame platform with towering columns, built across the front steps of the capitol building, was the setting for the inaugural ceremony at 11 a.m. CST. Out front there were seats for 17,500 and standing room for another 100,000.

First there was the vice presidential oath for Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky. Then it was Mr. Truman's turn to hold aloft his hand and repeat after Chief Justice Vinson of the Supreme Court:

"I do solemnly swear that I (See TRUMAN, on Page 6)

Attendant To Aid Students In New Library Music Room

Aggies who like to "listen" to music instead of just hearing it have access now to a brand new music room on the third floor of the Cushing Memorial Library.

Although the room itself is the same one where music lovers previously "roughed it" it has an entirely new air about it. The furniture is new, the record player is new, paint is new, and the feminine addition to the record player is decidedly on the improvement side. This addition comes in the form of an attendant who operates the new record player.

Yes, all the dreamers have to do is fill out a request slip for the selection they want played and relax in one of the several comfortable chairs in the room. It's just like playing a classical jukebox without having to use a nickel.

The old record player, together with several volumes of books on music, was given to the library music room ten years ago by the Carnegie Corporation. The antiquated piece of machinery has long since gone up the trail of obsolescence and was justified in doing so because of the wear and tear at the hands of classically inclined but machine-stupid Aggies.

In late 1947 the library received money from the Exchange Store Fund, and the Student Life Committee consented to have the fund used to purchase equipment for the renovation of the music room.

The new record player cost $700 and was specially built by Wilkerson Brothers in Dallas. Stock machines were examined and tried, but were found lacking in sturdiness and completeness. The new machine's electronic system is of Stromberg-Carlson origin and the speaker cabinet and speakers are by Jensen.

The turntable has two speeds and will play the new type long-playing records through the high fidelity amplifier. New chrome-plated furniture with well-padded cushions makes for restful listening. There are two settees, four big chairs, two or three tables, and several indirect floor lamps. New shelves with plenty of room for expansion hold the record albums.

Paul S. Ballance, acting college librarian, officially opened the new music room yesterday for the use of students and other users of the library.

Short Course on 2-4-D Opens Today; U.S.D.A. Experts to Talk

The short course on the application of 2,4-D week killers began today in the YMCA Chapel under the chairmanship of Dr. A. A. Dunlap, head of the Plant Physiology and Pathology Department.

The course, sponsored by the Plant Physiology and Pathology Department, is designed to present the latest developments in the application and use of 2,4-D, now the most widely used of all weed killing chemicals, Dunlap stated.

The meeting, which will continue through Friday, led off with a talk by Dr. L. S. Evans, agronomist of the USDA Bureau of Plant Industry, Beltsville, Maryland, on the subject of "History and Importance of 2,4-D in Crop Production."

An interesting point brought out by Dr. Evans was that 2,4-D is not a poison, but a hormone-like material that causes serious disturbances in plants.

Other speakers to be presented are M. D. Thornton, Extension agricultural chemist of College Station; J. D. Prewit, vice director of the extension service; Edgar C. Tullis, plant pathologist, USDA, Beaumont, Texas; D. D. Clinton, Harris County agricultural agent; and Claude L. Welch, director of the division of production and marketing of the National Cotton Council, Memphis, Tennessee.

Others were D. R. Ergle, chemical department of plant physiology and pathology; O. K. Hedden, USDA agricultural engineer, Toledo, Ohio; and R. D. Lewis, director of Texas Agricultural Experiment Station.

The program will return to the air February 1, Wise said.

Major General Berry to Award Commissions; President Bolton Will Address New Officers

One hundred Reserve Office commissions will be presented to eligible cadets tonight at 7:45 in Guion Hall by Major General K. L. Berry, adjutant general of the State of Texas. The cadets receiving their second lieutenant's commissions have completed four semesters of advanced military science and four semesters of basic military science or equivalent. Gen. Berry is a native Texan who entered the Texas National Guard as a private in 1916.

Truman Takes Oath At Huge Ceremony

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20, (AP)—Jaunty, confident Harry S. Truman becomes president of the United States today for four more uncertain years. And for his inauguration, America put together the greatest national pageant in all its history.

Hundreds of thousands of his countrymen, the big people and the little, were on hand to crowd the capital's gaily decked streets and give him a "Hi, Harry" pay him honor and wish him well. Yet beneath all the gayety and excitement, the most Washington has stirred up in many a year, there was an undertone of solemnity, and dignity.

For at this supreme moment in the story-book career of the one-time Missouri farm boy there rested on him the eager expectations of millions of Americans for more bounteous blessings, and hopes of an uneasy world for peace in our time and peace for all time.

And peace was the theme everybody expected in advance in Mr. Truman's inaugural address. That—and a "fair deal" at home—was what he hammered on hardest in a rousing campaign that produced one of the biggest upset victories in American politics.

He repeated it last night at a dinner given him by the electoral college—an ancient institution he says he wants to preserve unchanged.

The chief executive seemed once more to underscore his will for peace in selecting the ten commandments and the beatitudes as the biblical passages on which to steady his left hand while taking the oath of office for the world's most trying job: "Thou shalt not kill" . . .

Blessed are the peacemakers: for they shall be called the children of God."

A white frame platform with towering columns, built across the front steps of the capitol building, was the setting for the inaugural ceremony at 11 a.m. CST. Out front there were seats for 17,500 and standing room for another 100,000.

First there was the vice presidential oath for Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky. Then it was Mr. Truman's turn to hold aloft his hand and repeat after Chief Justice Vinson of the Supreme Court:

"I do solemnly swear that I (See TRUMAN, on Page 6)

News of Aggeland To Take Time Out

Tomorrow morning's presentation of the program "News of Aggeland" will be the last to be broadcast this semester, according to Sid Wise, assistant director of Student Publications.

The program is a short radio edition of the Battalion, and is broadcast by members of the Battalion staff every week-day morning over Station WTAW at 7:30.

The program will return to the air February 1, Wise said.

And the Wind Blew . . .

Realizing the seriousness involved in judging the "Tall Tales Contest," the editors of The Battalion have looked long and carefully to find one man equal to the task.

No stone was left unturned in the search for individuals qualified to weigh the various merits of the different entries. And so, from under the upturned rocks, emerged the gentlemen who are giving the momentous task of judging the competing stories in the liar's contest.

Harry Kidd, prominent member of the English Department, was chosen unanimously by the editors as was Dr. Paul J. Woods, self-styled historian. Some debate arose over the picking of James B. Ashby of the Business and Accounting Department.

Opponents to the selection of Prof Ashby argued that he not only had moments of sanity, but that he had been known to tell the truth on different occasions. Both of these arguments were jeered down by the majority of the selecting editors so Ashby proved to be the third judge.

All three of these judges are connoisseurs of the fine art of ejecting the proverbial male-bovine. Each has either received his BS degree or has done a considerable amount of work towards achieving that coveted sheepskin.

Various reactions were demonstrated by these gentlemen when they were informed of the honor bestowed upon them. Ashby when told that he was to be a judge had to give into his emotions. As tears silently slid down his cheeks a huge lump slowly rose in his throat hindering his speaking. In a voice muffled with feeling he said, "This should happen to me!" in a bewildered tone.

Dr. Woods accepted his lot with less show of spirit. His sole comment was, and we quote, "I'll be damned!" The third judge, Harry Kidd, made a modest acceptance speech. He pointed out that he felt inadequate to the task. "Many others in the department know far more about judging," he said. However, when assured by the editors that he was mistaken he added that perhaps he was under estimating himself.

Although the contest is now officially closed, we think the following entries should be printed now. As yet no decision has been reached as to the winners. Picking the top tale will indeed be a difficult task.

Even though extremely short, J. W. Timlinson's entry is certainly appropriate for a contest of this nature. He writes, "Texas University has the greatest, student-body school spirit of any school in the world."

Swain Stodghill relates about the size of the mosquitoes in his part of the country. "The largest one I ever saw," tells Stodghill, "was one day while I was hunting a yellow bill Hummingbird with my double barreled 4 gauge shotgun. While walking in a densely wooded section I noticed that the whole sky was getting dark.

Major General Berry to Award Commissions; President Bolton Will Address New Officers

One hundred Reserve Office commissions will be presented to eligible cadets tonight at 7:45 in Guion Hall by Major General K. L. Berry, adjutant general of the State of Texas. The cadets receiving their second lieutenant's commissions have completed four semesters of advanced military science and four semesters of basic military science or equivalent. Gen. Berry is a native Texan who entered the Texas National Guard as a private in 1916.

Truman Takes Oath At Huge Ceremony

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20, (AP)—Jaunty, confident Harry S. Truman becomes president of the United States today for four more uncertain years. And for his inauguration, America put together the greatest national pageant in all its history.

Hundreds of thousands of his countrymen, the big people and the little, were on hand to crowd the capital's gaily decked streets and give him a "Hi, Harry" pay him honor and wish him well. Yet beneath all the gayety and excitement, the most Washington has stirred up in many a year, there was an undertone of solemnity, and dignity.

For at this supreme moment in the story-book career of the one-time Missouri farm boy there rested on him the eager expectations of millions of Americans for more bounteous blessings, and hopes of an uneasy world for peace in our time and peace for all time.

And peace was the theme everybody expected in advance in Mr. Truman's inaugural address. That—and a "fair deal" at home—was what he hammered on hardest in a rousing campaign that produced one of the biggest upset victories in American politics.

He repeated it last night at a dinner given him by the electoral college—an ancient institution he says he wants to preserve unchanged.

The chief executive seemed once more to underscore his will for peace in selecting the ten commandments and the beatitudes as the biblical passages on which to steady his left hand while taking the oath of office for the world's most trying job: "Thou shalt not kill" . . .

Blessed are the peacemakers: for they shall be called the children of God."

A white frame platform with towering columns, built across the front steps of the capitol building, was the setting for the inaugural ceremony at 11 a.m. CST. Out front there were seats for 17,500 and standing room for another 100,000.

First there was the vice presidential oath for Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky. Then it was Mr. Truman's turn to hold aloft his hand and repeat after Chief Justice Vinson of the Supreme Court:

"I do solemnly swear that I (See TRUMAN, on Page 6)

Agreements Of Deferment Now Being Signed

Deferment agreements are now being accomplished by students who signed advanced ROTC contracts in Sept. 1948, and who were not exempt under the Selective Service Act, Colonel H. L. Boatner, PMS&T, announced today.

Truman Takes Oath At Huge Ceremony

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20, (AP)—Jaunty, confident Harry S. Truman becomes president of the United States today for four more uncertain years. And for his inauguration, America put together the greatest national pageant in all its history.

Hundreds of thousands of his countrymen, the big people and the little, were on hand to crowd the capital's gaily decked streets and give him a "Hi, Harry" pay him honor and wish him well. Yet beneath all the gayety and excitement, the most Washington has stirred up in many a year, there was an undertone of solemnity, and dignity.

For at this supreme moment in the story-book career of the one-time Missouri farm boy there rested on him the eager expectations of millions of Americans for more bounteous blessings, and hopes of an uneasy world for peace in our time and peace for all time.

And peace was the theme everybody expected in advance in Mr. Truman's inaugural address. That—and a "fair deal" at home—was what he hammered on hardest in a rousing campaign that produced one of the biggest upset victories in American politics.

He repeated it last night at a dinner given him by the electoral college—an ancient institution he says he wants to preserve unchanged.

The chief executive seemed once more to underscore his will for peace in selecting the ten commandments and the beatitudes as the biblical passages on which to steady his left hand while taking the oath of office for the world's most trying job: "Thou shalt not kill" . . .

Blessed are the peacemakers: for they shall be called the children of God."

A white frame platform with towering columns, built across the front steps of the capitol building, was the setting for the inaugural ceremony at 11 a.m. CST. Out front there were seats for 17,500 and standing room for another 100,000.

First there was the vice presidential oath for Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky. Then it was Mr. Truman's turn to hold aloft his hand and repeat after Chief Justice Vinson of the Supreme Court:

"I do solemnly swear that I (See TRUMAN, on Page 6)

Agreements Of Deferment Now Being Signed

Deferment agreements are now being accomplished by students who signed advanced ROTC contracts in Sept. 1948, and who were not exempt under the Selective Service Act, Colonel H. L. Boatner, PMS&T, announced today.

Truman Takes Oath At Huge Ceremony

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20, (AP)—Jaunty, confident Harry S. Truman becomes president of the United States today for four more uncertain years. And for his inauguration, America put together the greatest national pageant in all its history.

Hundreds of thousands of his countrymen, the big people and the little, were on hand to crowd the capital's gaily decked streets and give him a "Hi, Harry" pay him honor and wish him well. Yet beneath all the gayety and excitement, the most Washington has stirred up in many a year, there was an undertone of solemnity, and dignity.

For at this supreme moment in the story-book career of the one-time Missouri farm boy there rested on him the eager expectations of millions of Americans for more bounteous blessings, and hopes of an uneasy world for peace in our time and peace for all time.

And peace was the theme everybody expected in advance in Mr. Truman's inaugural address. That—and a "fair deal" at home—was what he hammered on hardest in a rousing campaign that produced one of the biggest upset victories in American politics.

He repeated it last night at a dinner given him by the electoral college—an ancient institution he says he wants to preserve unchanged.

The chief executive seemed once more to underscore his will for peace in selecting the ten commandments and the beatitudes as the biblical passages on which to steady his left hand while taking the oath of office for the world's most trying job: "Thou shalt not kill" . . .

Blessed are the peacemakers: for they shall be called the children of God."

A white frame platform with towering columns, built across the front steps of the capitol building, was the setting for the inaugural ceremony at 11 a.m. CST. Out front there were seats for 17,500 and standing room for another 100,000.

First there was the vice presidential oath for Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky. Then it was Mr. Truman's turn to hold aloft his hand and repeat after Chief Justice Vinson of the Supreme Court:

"I do solemnly swear that I (See TRUMAN, on Page 6)

Aggeland Desires Outfit Snapshots

Military organizations have been asked to turn in 6 to 8 small snapshots of their outfit activities to be published in Aggeland 1949.

Truman Takes Oath At Huge Ceremony

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20, (AP)—Jaunty, confident Harry S. Truman becomes president of the United States today for four more uncertain years. And for his inauguration, America put together the greatest national pageant in all its history.

Hundreds of thousands of his countrymen, the big people and the little, were on hand to crowd the capital's gaily decked streets and give him a "Hi, Harry" pay him honor and wish him well. Yet beneath all the gayety and excitement, the most Washington has stirred up in many a year, there was an undertone of solemnity, and dignity.

For at this supreme moment in the story-book career of the one-time Missouri farm boy there rested on him the eager expectations of millions of Americans for more bounteous blessings, and hopes of an uneasy world for peace in our time and peace for all time.

And peace was the theme everybody expected in advance in Mr. Truman's inaugural address. That—and a "fair deal" at home—was what he hammered on hardest in a rousing campaign that produced one of the biggest upset victories in American politics.

He repeated it last night at a dinner given him by the electoral college—an ancient institution he says he wants to preserve unchanged.

The chief executive seemed once more to underscore his will for peace in selecting the ten commandments and the beatitudes as the biblical passages on which to steady his left hand while taking the oath of office for the world's most trying job: "Thou shalt not kill" . . .

Blessed are the peacemakers: for they shall be called the children of God."

A white frame platform with towering columns, built across the front steps of the capitol building, was the setting for the inaugural ceremony at 11 a.m. CST. Out front there were seats for 17,500 and standing room for another 100,000.

First there was the vice presidential oath for Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky. Then it was Mr. Truman's turn to hold aloft his hand and repeat after Chief Justice Vinson of the Supreme Court:

"I do solemnly swear that I (See TRUMAN, on Page 6)

NO 6:45 SHOW AT GUION

The 6:45 p.m. showing of "The Olympics" will not be shown at Guion Hall today, due to the commissioning ceremonies, Tom Puddy manager, announced.

The 9 p.m. show will be held. The 1600 meter relay (Harden) was not filmed, contrary to previous announcement, Puddy said.

Those receiving Reserve Officers' commissions in the U. S. Army are: James W. Alexander, Alton L. Bailey, Sammy J. Black, Lloyd D. Booker, Billy W. Bowden, Roger E. Bradford, Raymond M. Champion, Robert W. Clauneh, Jack H. Dibrell, Lee M. Duggan, James R. Duke, John C. Eckert, Thomas C. Eklund, Henry M. Ellis, Roy L. Garner, Robert Gault, III, Ray M. Golden, Floyd W. Grona.

Sam P. Grundy, Harry K. Haines, Harold G. Harkrider, Bobby G. Harrell, Charles B. Harris, James P. Heath, William T. Hendry, Berndt Hirsch, Frederick R. Holste, Robert T. Holmes, Monroe F. Johns, Leiland L. Jett, James F. Jones, Marvin L. Jones, William L. Kendall, Victor G. Krauskopf, Richard L. Kunkel, Marshall E. Laswell, Albert M. Lewis, Gene E. Lewis, Elmo C. Livingston, Jr., Richard M. Love, Norman P. Luker, John P. McConnell, Joe G. Mears, Joseph T. Moore, Jr.

Robert M. Mullens, George O. Muller, Thomas R. Parsons, Henry A. Pate, Jr., Clyde H. Patterson, Jr., Edward A. Pela, Richard L. Ploch, Richard C. Prather, Albert S. Pugh, III, George H. Rice, Victor H. Schulze, Stanley A. Self, James D. Seymour, Jr., Dan D. Stehman, Dallas N. Stites, Billy Z. Strange, Billy J. Swange, John M. Swindle, William R. Thomas, John P. Tillery, Gus G. Vietas, Eugene W. Walters, John T. Weir, Whitney W. Wilson, Jr., James C. Winkler.

Air Force Those receiving Reserve Officers' commissions in U. S. Air Force are: John W. Askins, Clifton J. Bolner, Walter C. Brandstetter, Alton C. Brown Jr., Robert A. Canning, Harry M. Carlton, Lloyd K. Carter, Maurice M. Carter, Harvey J. Cheff, Eddie M. Coker, Thomas B. Crouch, Gerald W. Cunningham, Arnaldo J. Dickinson, Kenneth M. Frazelle, and August J. Gullo.

William S. Halcomb, Jr., John I. Hammonds, Jr., John F. Helm, Kenneth W. Hendricks, David R. Howell, Edgar B. Jemison, Marlin H. Keathley, Milton L. King, Gilford W. Koopmann, Norton Lovell, M. E. Robinowitz, Roy G. Thornal, Eugene W. Trotter, Arnold M. Walkow, Jim E. Wheeler, and Carlos A. Zuniga.