

So You Know A & M?

Work Begun On Consolidated's New Building

Foundation work on the new A&M Consolidated senior high school building got under way last week. A contract for the construction was signed with General Contractor C. L. Andrews of Bryan in a school board meeting early last week.

The contract is for the erection of a senior high school building and a negro school building at a total cost of around $94,000, Supt. A. M. Whitis said. About $75,000 of the total will go for the high school building, and approximately $20,000 for the negro school.

The buildings should be completed in six months, in time for the opening of school in September. Foundations for the senior high school building were lined out last Tuesday.

When completed, the buildings will be equipped with new furniture. Cost of the furniture is not included in the construction estimates.

R. G. Schneider of Houston is architect for the two buildings.

The high school building will be brick veneer finish, with an interior finish of wood panel wainscot, and sheet rock. Floors will be oak, except for the rest rooms, which will have tile flooring.

The negro school will be a frame building with asbestos siding. Sheet rock, wood panel, and wainscot will be used in the interior.

The contract was the major concern of the school board at its meeting, but plans were made for election of school board members on April 2.

Rodeo Team Will Hold Eliminations

The prospective calf ropers for the Aggie Rodeo Team will compete in an elimination contest to determine the men to represent the Texas Aggie Rodeo Association in intercollegiate competition, Saturday, March 12, Lucian Kruse announced.

Arrangements were made last Wednesday night with the Franklin Roping Club at Franklin, Texas whereby the Aggie cowboys may use their arena and calves for the roping contest, Kruse stated.

The three ropers with the shortest average time on five calves will take their places on the team with Maxie Overstreet of Fort Worth, Lloyd Griffith of Dallas and Bubba Day of Batesville, the three riders already selected by the association.

The men who will compete for the top positions are Prince Wood, who hails from Sabinal; Bill Hogg, Max Word and Sid Lanier from Fort Worth; Jack Kingsberry from Santa Anna; Wally Cardwell from Rockdale; Charlie Wampler from Gladewater; Punk Sauls from Cisco; Buck Steubing from San Antonio; Olin Goodspeed from Nocona; Dwight Graham from Mesquite; C. Y. Townley Jr., from Huntsville and Lucien Kruse from Cameron.

words in teaching and he makes a course in business cycles a comprehensive study of everything from a history of economic theory to a daily quotation of how American Radiator common stock is doing on the New York Stock Exchange.

Although it might seem far from the world of correlations and quotations, Dr. Hamilton makes a hobby of nature study. He enjoys hiking and likes to get away from standard deviations to enjoy the great outdoors. He also reads many literary works in keeping with his bachelor's degree in English. He likes the writings of contemporary American authors.

Dr. Hamilton has been associated with students and colleges all over the United States and in some foreign countries, and expresses the belief that many A&M students rank with the best anywhere in scholastic ability. The school spirit, he says, has no equal. His biggest ambition for the school is to see the incorporation of the honor system with the students taking the initiative in making it work.

The little man with the umbrella (when the sky looks like rain) drives a pre-war, well-greased Studebaker listed by Consumer's Research as the best base-year buy for the money. He dabbles in the stock market, using a formula of his own innovation.

American Radiator was down again today.
