Telegrams Saturday

Fifty-four Texas Boys Will Receive Opportunity Awards

Fifty-four Texas boys, all recent top graduates from high schools all over the state, will receive telegrams Saturday from E. E. McQuillen, director of the A&M Development Fund, informing them that they have won Opportunity Awards of $800 to $1200 each, plus a chance for further earnings at a student labor job.

These awards, financed by philanthropists all over the state and administered by McQuillen, will enable outstanding high school graduates to gain a college education who otherwise might not be able to do so, McQuillen said.

The 54 winners were selected from a field of 200 applicants on the basis of a competitive examination given last May. All boys taking the examinations were hand-picked on a basis of scholarship, character and need. They all came from the top ranks of their graduating classes scholastically and have demonstrated their ambition, energy and character while in high school, McQuillen said.

Further awards will be announced during the summer as the funds are set up, until a total of 70 students will enroll under the Award system at the beginning of the Fall semester.

This group will be the fourth to receive the Awards, the first group being in 1946. The first year there were only 16 scholarships given, the next year 32, then 53 last year.

Ninety-three award winners are now in school and they have all made remarkable records here, McQuillen said. The first group has an overall, three year grade point average of a little over 2.13, and has produced many student leaders.

Both the president and vice president of the freshman class in 1946 were award winners and as they moved up have supplied a sophomore class vice-president, a managing editor of The Battalion, and two student generators. The later groups have continued as outstanding students, McQuillen added.

Geographically, the winners of the awards come from all over the state with only the larger towns furnishing more than two winners each year.

Aiding the Development Fund in the selection work were A&M Clubs, high school principals and teachers, and county agents, in each boy's home town.

urge to complain. Clutching his precious laundry bundle to his bosom, he slunk back to the dormitory.

Back in his room he felt better. What if he were broke and in debt to the laundry department? After all, Murgatroyd would soon be here, the Grove was free, and he at least had clean shirts to wear.

Willoughby broke the string on his laundry bundle, spread back the blue paper and took out his favorite white shirt with the three inch collars. Turning it over, he fell back in horror.

There on the left collar point were the words, "Willoughby McSnort, MX1313, Route 1, Dime Box, Texas" stamped in large black, block letters. On the opposite side of the collar an unfinished game of tic-tac-toe, scrawled in the wavering script of a tired laundry worker, accompanied with an arrow pierced heart, and the words, "Gertrude loves Eustace."

McSnort's piercing scream was heard all the way down the hall, out the dorm door, and over into the new area.

When McSnort's roommate, "Credit Sheet" Cassidy, a business major, returned that night from a hard afternoon in the pool parlor, he found Willoughby, dangling from the light fixture in the center of the room, hung by a sheet the laundry had slunk to one fourth its normal size. Pinned to his mangled, buttonless shirt was this poem.

I, Willoughby McSnort, by means of this here poem, Take leave of this earth, it just weren't my home. My exit is made happy, by the ecstatic knowledge, That I found a use for a sheet, after it was cleaned by the college!

Building Bonds Bid Open in Austin

Chancellor Gibb Gilchrist, E. L. Angell, assistant to the chancellor, and W. H. Holzman, comptroller, were in Austin yesterday, where seven state-supported schools opened bids for the sale of $8,825,000 in building bonds, R. H. Shuffler, director of information and publications said yesterday.

The bond issue, which was authorized by a constitutional amendment last November, included Arlington State, John Tarleton, and Prairie View A&M. For the three schools $2,985,000 was authorized.

The bonds, which are being issued against income from the five cent building tax, will be for 30 years, Shuffler said.

Funds realized from the bond issue will be used on classroom and laboratory building programs, Shuffler added.
