Camp Hood Cadets Survive Another Week of Training

By FRANK CUSHING

Like the preceding ones, the past week of training for the Camp Hood doggies proved to be a busy one.

Although the majority of the hours were devoted to effective and efficient demonstrations of the 2nd armored division which is presently located here, the ROTC infantrymen were given the opportunity to try their hand at firing mortars, bazookas, and rifle grenades. Tank rides were also featured on the program.

Monday afternoon the four infantry companies were treated to the word is used loosely to anything but a smooth ride in medium tanks of the second armored.

The original plan called for a short ride around the immediate vicinity of the training area to at least give the doggies an idea of what the "jock's" life consists of. Because of the large size of the group, five men at a time were loaded into the tanks which possessed only two men of its usual crew of five—the driver and tank commander.

The medium tanks quite apparently weren't constructed with the idea of seven men being crammed within them and consequently furnished little room to spare. Two of the passengers were forced to grab a support—which usually turned out to be unstable—to fight down any feelings of claustrophobia they might possess, and hang on.

Most of the tank drivers seemed to have been frustrated pilots who had a phobia against level ground. The 30 to 35 miles speed which sounds so tame turned out to be sufficiently fast.

to satisfy anyone bouncing around inside the clattering vehicle.

The necessarily limited vision of the tank did nothing to ease the passenger's minds. Anyone who had the peculiar desire to see where he was going was out of luck; what the metal didn't shut off from the view, the hood dust did.

Two tanks had the misfortune of trying to occupy the same ground at the same time thereby semi-demonstrating the familiar physics law about an immovable object and an irresistible force. Being of a sturdy nature, however, the tanks emerged with only a more combat-like appearance.

None of the riders in the collidated vehicles were seriously injured. Robert C. Cecil and Harry D. Cain, two Aggies in the group, suffered only bruises. After the accident they both agreed that they had no inclination to transfer into the cavalry.

Tuesday evening all the Aggies were gathered for a group picture. Immediately after the formation, Glenn Kothman and Red Duke led a yell practice complete with jokes and pep talks.

One yell was dedicated to the gallant military police company of the ROTC camp as most of the boys in that outfit hail from the forty acres region.

The belated news of the Aggies in D company has at last been assembled. The report that no A&M men in that group had shot expert on the rifle range was incorrect for Billy R. White ran up a total score of 181 to earn that honor.

Aggies who qualified for sharpshooter's medals were John C. Schneider, Edward J. Simpson, Mortan M. Skaggs, Bobby Skidmore, Robert P. Speer, Thomas J. Speer, Frank J. Stanfield, Charles J. Winters, Jr. and Bennie A. Zinn Jr.

Bob Speers of that company is playing right field on their softball team. Company D presently holds a slight lead in the ROTC league having won a game over A company's squad. Wally Dixon, player-manager on the team filed protest because of the pitching which, Dixon maintained, was illegal.

"Rule Book" was persuaded to continue playing the game by various majors and captains in the area. The ROTC's league is still anyone's though, with several games to be played before any accurate predictions can be made.

The baseball squad formed from all ROTC companies played an excellent game against the Camp Hood all stars, another composite team.

Despite the lack of practice time available for the cadets, they preceded to win the game with a five to one score. Three Aggies played in the game: Wally Dixon, Frank Davison, and Will Barber. All three are from company A which furnished six men for the starting line up.

Chemist Makes Vitamin Study

A project designed to find a method of stabilizing the carotene in alfalfa meal is now being conducted here. The project is under the direction of Dr. Hermann Schlenk of the A&M Department of Biochemistry and Nutrition, according to Dr. Carl Lyman, head of the department.

Carotene, a plant pigment which animals convert into vitamin A, is necessary in the rations of livestock and poultry. A severe lack of this vitamin prevents normal growth and successful reproduction, affects the nervous system and causes blindness.

It has been found that carotene is destroyed by oxidation, and steadily deteriorates while the alfalfa meal is in storage. The result is that after a number of months, this feed may not contain enough carotene to prevent vitamin A deficiency, Dr. Lyman said.

A suitable compound which may be mixed with the feed to inhibit oxidation is being sought, and an entirely new processing procedure which gives promise of yielding a superior product is being investigated.

ORDINANCE NO. 134
AN ORDINANCE MAKING IT UNLAWFUL TO KEEP LIVESTOCK OR POULTRY WITHIN THE CITY LIMITS WITHOUT PERMITS AND REGULATIONS FOR KEEPING LIVESTOCK AND POULTRY; PRESCRIBING PROCEDURES FOR GRANTING AND REVOKING LICENSES; PROVIDING FOR INSPECTIONS; PRESCRIBING PENALTIES; PROVIDING SEPARABILITY OF PROVISIONS; AND DECLARING AN EMERGENCY.

BE IT ORDAINED by the City Council of the City of College Station, Texas:

1. No person shall keep livestock or poultry within the limits of the City of College Station without first obtaining and thereafter keeping in force a license permitting him to do so. The term livestock includes specifically but not exclusively horses, mules, asses, swine, cattle, sheep, goats, rabbits, and guinea pigs; and the term poultry includes specifically but not exclusively chickens, turkeys, geese, ducks, pigeons, and guilts.

2. Said licenses shall be granted or allowed only to persons who, when the regulations as follows are observed:

a. The livestock or poultry shall be kept within structures, enclosures, or pens, and not permitted to run at large.

b. The manure and debris incident to the maintenance and care of livestock or poultry shall be scraped from areas with such frequency as to prevent the same from serving as breeding places for insects and from emitting noxious odors.

c. The manure and debris scraped or raked as provided in subsection (b) above, shall immediately be collected and either placed and kept in a waterproof and insect-proof container until removed from the premises, or treated immediately and periodically thereafter with a chemical as directed by the manufacturer thereof that is manufactured and sold as an effective insecticide for the control of insects and lice and applied according to the manufacturer's directions.

d. The inside walls, ceilings, roosts and floors of the structure in which the livestock or poultry is housed shall be treated and kept treated with D. D. T. or other effective material manufactured and sold for the control of insects and lice and applied according to the manufacturer's directions.

e. The structure or enclosure within which the livestock or poultry are confined shall be not less than one hundred (100) feet from any dwelling house other than that occupied by the owner of the livestock or poultry.

3. The procedure and requirements for the granting and keeping in force of licenses shall be as follows:

a. Any person desiring a license permitting him to keep livestock or poultry within the city limits shall file an application with the City Secretary on a form provided by him for that purpose. Said application shall contain or thereon call for the name and address of the applicant, the estimated average number and types of livestock or poultry to be kept, a description of the structure, and the facilities to be used for the enclosure of the livestock or poultry and for the disposal of the manure and debris incident to its maintenance and care, and the distance to the adjacent residences from the outside boundary of the structure or fence in which the livestock or poultry are to be enclosed.

b. The application shall be accompanied by a fee in the amount of one dollar. The funds derived from such application fees shall be used by the City to defray the cost of inspections and other expenses incident to the enforcement of this ordinance.

c. When an application has been filed in due form, the City Secretary shall turn the same over to the City Health Officer who shall inspect the facilities wherein the livestock or poultry are to be kept and prepare an opinion as to whether the same are in compliance with the regulations hereinbefore provided.

d. The application with the opinion of the City Health Officer attached shall then be submitted to the City Council, which shall then pass on the application.

e. A license shall be valid one year from the date of issuance. The same may be renewed by the filing of a renewal application form with the City Secretary on a form provided by him for that purpose and the payment of a renewal application fee in the amount of ten (10) dollars.

f. The City Health Officer shall periodically inspect upon written complaint of the City Marshal or any member of the City police to ascertain whether the regulations as hereinbefore provided are being observed. If he finds that foregoing regulations are being violated, he shall prepare and file a statement to that effect with the City Secretary. The City Council shall then give ten (10) days notice by publication on a hearing. If after a hearing the City Council finds the aforesaid regulations have been violated, it shall then order the permit cancelled.

g. Any person who violates any provision of this ordinance shall be fined not less than twenty-five (25) dollars nor more than one hundred (100) dollars. Each day that such violation occurs shall constitute a separate offense.

h. If any section of this ordinance is found to be invalid, the same shall not affect the validity of the remaining sections. Passed this 29 day of June 1949.
