Navy Patrol Bomber Makes Long Flight From Carrier

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Oct. 7.—(AP)—A Navy patrol bomber capable of carrying the atomic bomb landed at the Naval Air Station here at 12:58 p.m. (CST) yesterday after a 4,863-mile non-stop flight from the Aircraft Carrier Midway in the Atlantic. The flight was described by the Navy as the longest ever made after launching from a carrier. The twin-engined bomber was in the air 25 hours, 42 minutes.

Comdr. Frederick L. Ashworth, executive officer of Composite Squadron Five, Moffett Field, California, was pilot. The plane carried a seven-man crew.

The epochal flight was made from the Midway, off Norfolk, Virginia, across the Caribbean to the Panama Canal, back northwest across the tip of the Yucatan Peninsula, and over San Antonio and El Paso, Texas, Tucson and Yuma, Arizona to San Diego.

Dean Lectures At Hearne Club

Chief weaknesses in American international relations were discussed Thursday by Dr. Ide P. Trotter, dean of the Graduate School.

Dr. Trotter gave a talk on "International Relations" before a joint meeting of the Hearne Shakespeare Club and Hearne Study Club. The meeting was held in the home of Mrs. George Chalmers of Hearne with 45 women attending.

Key points of weakness in American international relations, as described by Dr. Trotter, was that the United States has been unwilling or unable to encourage the development of a healthy opposition party even in countries where the existing government is known to be a dictatorship with many limitations in efficiency and democratic proceedings.

"The absence of opposition parties have caused difficulty in the Orient, Europe and South America, and many patriotic individuals who opposed the existing government have been branded as disloyal and forced into the so-called communist camp," said Dr. Trotter.

"Furthermore, whenever a dictatorship is terminated by revolution or otherwise and no strong opposition party is in existence, a political vacuum is created which so-called communists take advantage of."

Mrs. Jud Collier of Mumford was program chairman for the meeting. Mrs. Trotter accompanied Dr. Trotter and showed some of the souvenirs which Dr. Trotter brought back from a trip to the Far East.

of the third game, the Bronx slugger finally came to life in the last two struggles and laid it on the Brooks with a heavy club.

Hit Barney Early
They ripped into Red Barney for two runs in the first inning, knocked him out with a 3-run assault in the third and continued to rake Jack Banta, Carl Erskine and Joe Hatten until they had run up their apparently safe 10-2 margin going into the seventh inning.

During their big spree, Bobby Brown, the hitting hero of Saturdays fourth game, slammed his second triple in two days. No player ever had belted more than two in a 5-game world series.

DiMaggio, weak and wan from his recent bout with a virus infection, finally got the range in the fourth and poled his homer near the left field foul line with the bases empty. He was given a fine location by the Brooklyn fans.

Raschi, who had pitched a fine game on the second day of the series but was victimized by Roe's shutout, looked safe as a bank going into the seventh. The Dodgers had pecked away at him for seven hits and a pair of scattered runs, but nothing spectacular, and it seemed a cinch the righthander would carry on with his big bulge.

Raschi Tired
But he suddenly found himself tired. He said later it was tough out there under the hot sun. He got Pee Wee Reese, the first Brooklyn to face him in the seventh, on a line drive to left, then walked Spider Jorgensen on four pitches.

Duke Snider, who was to tie an unenviable world series mark by striking out for the eighth time later on, chose that point to bang a single past second and into center field, sending Jorgensen to third.

Jackie Robinson lofted a long, high one to Gene Woodling in left, on which Jorgensen trotted home. When Hermanski worked the sweating Raschi for a walk, Page began warming up his flipper at a fast pace, but he wasn't quite soon enough.

Hodges found one to his liking and laid a hot smash into the seats in left-center field to score Snider and Hermanski ahead of him and make the count too close for Casey Stengel's comfort. Thus there were two Dodgers down when Page took over and faced Luis Olmo, a right-handed pinch-hitter, with the stands yelling for more. Joe fanned him on three fast balls, as he was to fan three more before his sting was ended. His pitching hand was sore, he disclosed, and he threw only one curve to the nine men he tackled.

The Dodgers got a runner aboard in the eighth when Bruce Edwards, another pinch-hitter, laced a single to left with one out, but Reese hit back to the mound and Page started a swift double play to Phil Rizzuto.

Eddie Miksis, pinch-hitting for Jorgensen, led off the ninth with a long double to the left wall, and then Joe began spinning some more of his magic. Snider went down swinging for the third time in the game. Jackie Robinson missed a hard swipe at a third one. Hermanski drew his second straight walk to send some hope swelling in flatbush hearts, but then it was Hodges' turn to sample the Page fire, and he too found it too hot to handle.

When the last strike thudded into his mitt, Catcher Yogi Berra dashed out to lead the happy assault on Page by the Yankee players. They pounded his broad shoulders all the way off the field.

With all the savage hitting by both clubs, the final game abounded in brilliant fielding. Snider luckless with his bat, tried to make up for that with two wonderful catches in center field. He came in to make a shootout catch that looked a certain hit by DiMaggio in the third, and in the eighth he made a similar robbery on a belt by Tommy Henrich, somersaulting after the ball hit his glove.

Brown, the Tulane student who played third base only off and on during the Yanks flag drive, proved the hitting hero of the final two games. His 3-run triple broke Saturday's game wide open, and he drove two more mates across with his triple and two singles Sunday. He wound up with a lofty .500 average for the series, six hits in twelve tries.

Honmy Henrich, whose ninth-inning homerun beat Newcombe in the first game at the stadium, and Jerry Coleman, the rookie second baseman, each collected five hits in the series. Coleman, as well, fielded brilliantly all the way, as did rock-like little Phil Rizzuto at short.
