Who's Got the Spirit? . . .

Yell Leaders and students alike have been using all kinds of methods to get the so-called two percenters to attend the yell practices at the Annex. In their efforts, they have omitted one little detail. That detail, which makes all efforts worthless unless it is corrected, is the attendance of the Freshman Regiment at football games.

If a poll was taken every week and each Freshman would honestly answer the question, it could probably be found that as many as 30 percent of the freshman at the Annex aren't attending home football games. We realize that many of the students at the Annex don't care much for football and would rather do other things which they consider more important. But I ask you, what is more important than going into College Station and standing with the Twelfth Man (as a full fledged member) to help the fighting Aggie team to a victory?

Certainly anyone should regret missing the spectacular playing on the part of the Aggies last Saturday against SMU. Throughout the game, however, the Twelfth Man was there, backing the team on to a near victory over the highly rated Mustangs.

Many reasons have been attributed toward the absence of freshmen at these games, but very few could be excusable and those students who offer them know this to be a fact.

One person in particular said that he had to study, and we must admit, he spent the entire game time and much after that in the study halls. But when night came, he was one of the many boys that found time to go out and have a good time until mid-night.

Another freshman made a statement that should not come from the lips of any Aggie, whether he meant it or not. To quote him, "I haven't been to a single A&M game this year and what's more I don't intend to go to one. In our estimation, there is a boy that needs to be straightened up just a little.

Probably the majority of students that miss the football games do so because they are afraid they might receive a little encouragement from upperclassmen to yell. We will admit that they see to it that we show proper enthusiasm as far as yelling is concerned, but after all not much more is asked of the Twelfth Man.

The football season is nearly over. The only remaining games are going to be gone before we know it. School will be dismissed Saturday in order that students of A&M can attend the game to be played with Rice in Houston. As a result, freshmen are planning to boards can use their knowledge to tween the teams as the races betake advantage of this extra holiday in order to go home (those that | win both prestige and prizes. The gan to take shape. It became evidon't live in or near Houston) or do some other things. Long lines have prevailed almost all week in Col. R. L. Melcher's office with students freshmen. asking for permission to go places other than Houston.

If this is the kind of spirit the class of '53 is going to sponsor, we look for A&M to loose one of its oldest and most treasured traditions, the Twelfth Man.

Officers to Be Elected Soon

Class officer elections will be held by the Annex freshmen after Thanksgiving it was announced today by W. G. Breazeale, dean of students at the Annex.

Breazeale emphasized the importance of this election and urged that students begin to think about who they want for the various positions. The vice-president of the class automatically becomes a member of the Student Senate and the other officers have squally important jobs.

Applicants for the different ofices will probably be allowed to file next week. The preliminary ballot will be taken after the Thanksgiving holidays. Necessary run-offs will be announced. Freshman Class Tickets Will Be Sold Monday

The Aggieland Orchestra, under the direction of Bill Turner, has been scheduled to play for the Freshman Bonfire Dance November 23, J. C. Wallace, regimental commander. announced today.

Tickets will go on sale Monday, November 14, for $1.50.

Paralleling the bonfire dance on the main campus, the freshman affair will begin at 10 p.m. and continue until 1:30 a.m. Housing accommodations for dates and mothers will be made available in several of the barracks to be set aside in the hospital area.

Dance Delayed

Home games, corps trips, and various dances on the main campus have delayed the dance up to this time. Another reason for not having it sooner is that no one was interested enough in having a dance to inquire about getting one underway, Wallace said.
