

H.S.T. Sees No Change In Foreign Policy Plans

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11 (AP)—President Truman said yesterday he sees no reason to change the bi-partisan foreign policy as a result of the defeat of Senator Dulles (R-NY) in Tuesday's elections.

Mr. Truman also told a news conference he hopes—as always—there will be better relations with Russia.

And he said as far as he knows there have been no more atomic explosions in Russia since his first announcement of one several weeks ago.

The foreign policy discussions came up when reporters sought the President's reaction to the defeat of Dulles, a Republican leader in carrying out bi-partisan action in the international field. Will that mean any change in the policy? The newsmen wanted to know.

The President replied of course not. He added there is no thought of changing that policy except in the minds of people like Bertie McCormick or Hearst. He called them isolationists. Robert R. McCormick is president and publisher of the Chicago Tribune and William Randolph Hearst is head of a group of newspapers.

Asked about Dulles' future in the operation of foreign policy, the President said that question should be put to Dulles. He added he didn't put Dulles in the Senate race.

To another question he said he has not considered putting Dulles back on the American delegation to the United States.

Newsmen then wanted to know whether he thought the Democratic victories Tuesday constituted a "mandate" for his party. He replied that when the Democrats win an election on a certain platform they have the authority—call it mandate if you want—to carry it out. He said he thinks this week's elections will make it easier to carry out that platform.

A discussion about the Big 3 Foreign Ministers' meeting in Paris brought out a question whether this country is getting anywhere in its dealings with Russia and if there is a chance of bettering relations.

Mr. Truman replied he hopes, as he always does, that things are moving in that direction. What about the medium for improving such relations? Regular diplomatic channels, as always, he said.

The President replied with a categorical no when asked if the U.S. planned to raise the price of gold. As long as he is President the price of gold is fixed, he declared, emphatically.

He said he never heard of a report that another attempt was about to be made to increase by two the membership on the Supreme Court.

He would not comment on the coal strike truce called by John L. Lewis. But he got a laugh when he said Lewis' picture—showing the mine union leader very stern-faced—was on the front page of a local paper. He asked newsmen to look at it.

Asked whether the steel and coal strikes could have been settled if the Taft-Hartley Act was not held over them, he said that question should be put to the managements and the workers.

A query whether he had any plans for keeping the mines open in event the strike is resumed after Nov. 30 brought the reply that he will cross that bridge when he comes to it.

There were a lot of questions. In reply Mr. Truman said:

The State Department has under consideration plans for a visit to the country of the Premier of Pakistan.

He has been invited to visit Bolivia, but he does not think he can go.

He had no news on prospects for a loan to Mexico for the development of oil resources in that country. He did not know, he said, whether negotiations are now underway.

He had no comment when a reporter asked if he had written a strong letter to Secretary of Interior Krug dealing with differences on some reclamation policy.

THE BATTALION FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 11, 1949 Page 4 Four Topics Await Solon In January Special Session

AUSTIN, Tex., Nov. 11 (AP)—The legislature will have four specific subjects including taxation to act on when it is called into special session during the latter half of January.

Gov. Allan Shivers yesterday announced the appropriate date of the call, and listed these as the topics he would submit:

1. Administrative funds for state hospitals and special schools in a specific amount based on recommendations of the board studying their needs.
2. "Some start" on a building program for these institutions, based on the board's recommendations of what is most urgent and what can be accomplished immediately.
3. Buildings for the dental school and cancer research project at Houston; buildings for the medical school at Dallas "if the program is ready"; buildings for the Texas State University for Negroes at Houston "possibly if the need is great."
4. Taxation, assuming additional revenue will be needed, on a broad base along lines of the existing omnibus tax law. Shivers said it was apparent more money would be needed, but it was too early to say how much, or to get a bill ready.

Shivers answered most questions about results of Tuesday's elections with "no comment."

"I am never surprised at what happens in an election," he said. Asked if he still favored the idea of annual sessions and annual pay for legislators, as expressed in his inaugural address as lieutenant governor, Shivers said: "I always bow to the will of the people."

"Would you take the vote as a sign of conservatism?"

"The vote was no indication of anything but what they were voting on," Shivers replied.

The special session call will come for a specific date depending on when the state hospital board finishes its study and makes its recommendations.

The extraordinary session—the first in recent years—will be called because Texas voters rejected the idea of annual sessions of the legislature. If it had been approved, the matters to be submitted by Shivers would have come up with the regular session.

Wallace Speaks On Hy-Line Chickens

Henry B. Wallace, owner and operator of the Hy-Line Chicken Farms of Des Moines, Iowa, spoke to the Poultry Science Club Tuesday on the production of Hy-Line chickens.

Wallace discussed the breeding program that his company follows in the production of these chicks. He stressed the fact that it takes about eight years to develop one strain of Hy-Line. Wallace said that they produced about 12,000,000 chicks last year and hope to produce about 24,000,000 this year.

The film, "Improving Chickens by Crossing Inbreds", was shown after Wallace had spoken. After the film, Wallace answered questions concerning the Hy-Line business which he says, "we are still trying to improve."

Discharge Set For Army Men

AUSTIN, Tex.—The Army plans to offer discharges to 30,000 men who entered the military service under provisions of the Selective Services Act, Texas Military District announced here today.

Upon completion of 12 months service, these men will be offered immediate discharge beginning December 1. It is anticipated that most of these men will take advantage of the offer.

Several thousand trained young soldiers will be phased back to civilian life during the next several months with an obligation to serve in one of the civilian components for three to five years, depending on the type of organization they join.

The program will affect some 24,000 inductees and 6,000 21-month Army enlistees, who are expected to request separation. However, all 30,000 of the men affected will be offered these options:

1. Immediate separation from Army, following the completion of 12 months of service, with the Reserve component obligations provided by the law.
2. Completion of 21 months of service, with the same Reserve component obligation.
3. Completion of a tour of 33 months of service, which would wipe out all obligations to enter a Reserve component after separation.
4. Enlistment in the Regular Army for a period of three or more years, which would, of course, remove any Reserve component obligation.

Also eligible for release after completion of 12 months of service are some 400 officers—ROTC graduates who were ordered to 21 months of service under Section seven of the Selective Service Act.

more powerful, brass section gives the band an added kick that has kept it on top all year.

Realizing that Aggies' favorite music is interpreted by a swing band, the orchestra increased its size and changed its style to compare with the big name bands that visit A&M.

Freshmen can now alert their dates to the effect that the dance will be semi-formal. All cadets will be expected to wear their No. 1 serge uniform.

The regimental committee, in cooperation with Mrs. Ann Hilliard, Annex hostess, has arranged the dance, and with the present plans, it will be one of the most successful dances held at Little Aggeland.

The gymnasium will be elaborately decorated for the occasion, the committee announced.

Rich Harvest

These are the products of man's labor—and God's. From the moment the seedlings were placed in the warm earth, they have been under constant care.

First came the rain and the sun—and then the ceaseless work of fertilizing, cultivating, and spraying. Last, came harvest time, when the proud growers gathered the rewards of their labor.

Only by such diligence, can we hope for a truly bountiful crop. God has given the refreshing rain and warm sunshine, but He expects us to do our part.

And so it is with the care and cultivation of our spiritual lives. Man is endowed with many talents and qualities, but unless he tends and nurtures these gifts, they will not increase and grow.

Harvest time in the life of every person is at maturity, when men are at the peak of their usefulness and wisdom. By attending the services of the Church and by studying the Scriptures, we will realize greater happiness and contentment here on earth—and will be preparing ourselves for the RICH HARVEST of a life hereafter.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL...
ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake, (2) For his children's sake, (3) For the sake of his community and nation, (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.
