

Sanity Code Feud Flares Up Again

New York, Jan. 12 (AP)—Figure this out if you can . . . the NCAA sanity code argument, getting hotter every day, looks to be mainly a large college debate. But if any action is taken, the little colleges probably will decide what it is to be. The simple fact is there are more of them, and each one has a vote.

Prof. Karl Leih of Iowa, NCAA proxy, sounded off in Washington to the effect that a college which, by reason of location or other causes, can't support a big time football team without subsidizing should "get out of major football and stay in their own class."

But last night President John A. Hannah of Michigan State (in the same league with Iowa) told Philadelphia's Maxwell Club: "I have seen no evidence that by abandoning intercollegiate athletics, a college or university has improved either its quality or its reputation as a center of learning."

Rancher Worried Over Army Buying

Kingsville, Tex.—(AP)—The manager of the King Ranch says he is concerned over what he calls the Army's new policy of "restricting its meat buying mostly to grade A beef."

Ranch Manager Robert J. Kleberg, in a statement yesterday, said "what they're buying is corned, grade A cattle out of the Midwest."

The Army Quartermaster Corps has said it has a current program of buying only grade B beef and eliminating grade C. The Quartermaster Corps insisted the plan to buy only grade B beef as a regular thing is only "under consideration."

Kleberg said a survey had made among cattle buyers and packers indicated that the army is limiting its purchases almost wholly to "grade A beef," or grain fed cattle.

Freshmen Plan February Ball

The Freshman Ball has been scheduled for Saturday night, February 25th, W. G. Brazeale, dean of students at the Annex, announced today.

Although no definite plans have been made, Spisa Hall will probably be selected as the site for the affair.

Jack Brooks, Freshman class president, has called a meeting of freshman officers, and representatives of various organizations on the Annex campus to discuss plans for the dance. Brooks said that admission would be on a ticket basis.

Arrangements for an orchestra and other items of immediate importance will be discussed with Grady Elms, director of student activities, and Brazeale after dance committees have been appointed by the executive group.

Snack Bar to Try Later Closing Time

W. G. Brazeale, dean of students at the Annex, has announced that the Snack Bar will remain open until 9:30 p. m. starting Sunday and continuing through final examinations.

The longer hours have been provided for two reasons; (1) To give students studying late a chance to obtain refreshment and break the monotony of a long study period, and (2) to experiment on the volume of business which would be carried on during the extended time limit. If the Snack Bar breaks even during the trial period, Brazeale said he expects that the regular service will be given another trial next semester.

Saunders, Preston Marry in Lamarque

Charles "Lundy" Saunders, junior electrical engineering major from Texas City, and Miss Beverly Jean Preston of Lamarque were married Dec. 22 at the Pauls Union Church in Lamarque.

The couple took a brief wedding trip to Monterrey, Mexico. Mrs. Saunders is residing in Lamarque with her parents while Lundy is continuing his work on the campus.

Keep 'Em Flying . . .

Balsa Butchers Concoct All Types of Flying Craft

One of the Annex's most enjoyable and spectacular clubs is its model airplane club.

This group of balsa butchers meet every Saturday afternoon in their workshop across from the biology building. "There are quite a few modelers here at the Annex but too few of them are interested enough to come down to the shop and look over the place," said Fred Michna, patiently trying to re-assemble a model motor.

Dale Grissom, another dope fiend (model airplane, not marijuana) said that the club, although not organized at the present, was planning many big and spectacular events this coming semester.

Gazing around the workshop, one sees a wide and varied selection of models. One of the most unconventional models there was an ordinary turpentine can complete with wings, wheels, and tail assembly. Another looked similar to a broomstick with a motor attached. Of course, there was the usual assortment of models scaled from real airplanes.

Flying is done mostly in the vacant lot south of 100 block of barracks. From noon Saturday until dusk Sunday, the modelers can be found in this area, patiently making last minute repairs, spinning props, and finally launching their "screaming meemies" into the air.

Next weekend when you have nothing to do, except study for those all important finals, go down to the model flying field for an afternoon of thrills, chills, and spills.

Lights After Taps Allowed

Freshmen will be permitted to keep desk lamps on after taps until examinations are completed. Col. Robert L. Melcher, commandant at the Annex, announced yesterday.

Study halls are becoming overcrowded, thus making it hard for those students who wish to put in extra time on their studies, Col. Melcher said. Overhead lights will be turned out at 10:45 as usual, but desk lamps may remain burning indefinitely.

Col. Melcher added that he intended to see that every man was insured proper study conditions in the barracks. The penalty for disturbances after C.Q. will be one hour of extra duty on the building, instead of the usual eight rams.

Medicine Placed With Sergeants

A kit of medicines for use after clinic hours has been placed in the barracks of each of the company supply sergeants.

The medicine was distributed in an all out effort to stop the epidemic of colds which has been moving through the Annex. Cadets developing cold symptoms after clinic hours are urgently requested to immediately take the medicine according to the directions posted by the medicine chests, clinic officials said.

Rogue Elephant Killed

Penang—(AP)—The distinction of having killed "the big tusker with the stumpy tail" goes to a Malay District Officer of a small animal-infested area in Kedah State. The rogue elephant has been eluding many a game hunter and terrorizing the village folk for quite a long time.

The elephant was reputed to have destroyed more than a thousand coconut trees, devastated sugarcane plantations and other crops, and even pulled down a number of village huts.

Slickers Use Talent, Work To Cultivate Musical Corn

By DAVE COSLETT

There's an art to murdering music. That's the claim made by the hard working musicians who aid and abet "Killer" Spike Jones in his numerous atrocities against bars, sharps, flats, and quarter notes.

The guilty party himself, often called the "dandruff" in long-haired music, says, "musical satirists are a rare breed." Spike explains, "First of all—and this is what most people don't realize—it has to be terrific musicians, with flawless technique and a sound musical background."

And to prove his contention that he has to hire the best musicians available, the City Slickers director cites members in his band who once played with such notables as Charlie Barnett, Glenn Miller, Benny Goodman, Alvin Karpis, Horace Heidt, Henry Busch, Red Nichols, and Russ Morgan.

Jones' Drummer, Joe Sircusa, once played with the Cleveland

Municipal and El Paso Symphony orchestra. Spike himself, served an apprenticeship as a drummer with the John Scott Trotter orchestra.

As further proof of the skill required by his cohorts, the mad-cap musician tells of serious musicians who, tackling one of Spike's fantastic musical satires, concede that it is much tougher to play than the number which is being satirized.

Nor is there any slipshod arrangement for the various screams, honks, grunts, clangs, beeps, or shots which accompany the music produced by the zealous musicians.

"The discords have gotta be harmonious," explains Spike.

Every noise-making contraption used by the band is tuned to a specific key so that it will produce the precise—and often discordant—effect wanted.

And ad libs by any of the boys in the band are strictly not allowed. Any musicians who run away with themselves and try to sneak in an extra bang or burp are dealt with in a hurry by a seltzer bottle which Spike aims squarely at the face of the offender.

Equipment Given EE Department

The Electrical Engineering Department has received a gift from the Radio Corporation of America, Camden, N. J. Two vacuum tube voltmeters, two frequency modulation sweep generators, a new improved type direct current oscilloscope, a signal generator, and a dynamic demonstrator of one of their latest model radio receivers, according to M. C. Hughes, head of the department.

This equipment constitutes a valuable addition to the electronic and communications laboratories in the Electrical Engineering Department and will be used in a number of graduate and undergraduate courses, Hughes said.

Incidentally, the City Slicker head is constantly on the lookout for new instruments. He's already been named "Man of the Year" by the nation's hardware dealers for "lifting kitchen utensils and workshop tools to the high cultural level of the music room."

Among his instruments are 13 tuned flit guns and two and a half octaves of tuned doorbells.

Spike brings his "Musical Deception Revue of 1950" to Guion Hall Thursday, Jan. 19. He will give two shows, one at 6:45 and the other at 9 p. m. Tickets for the performances are now on sale in the Student Activities Office in Guion Hall.
